NEUTRAL MARKINGS SHOULD BE SHOWN

ILLUMINATION IN NIGHTTIME IS SUGGESTED

Given on Account of Several Neutral Ships Having Been Sunk.

Washington, May 29.—An urgent warning to American shipping against traversing the naval war zone incautiously and to have all neutral markings displayed as conspicuously as possible, including illumination at night, was communicated to the state department today by the German government through the American embassy at Berlin.

German Warning.

"The American ambassador at Berlin has been informed by the German foreign office that in view of the fact that during the last few weeks, it has repeatedly occurred that neutral ships have been sunk in the waters designated as an area of maritime war by the German admiralty on Feb. 4, 1915, and especially in one case where it was established that the sinking was traceable to an attack by a German submarine, which took the neutral ship for an English vessel, in the darkness, on account of the inadequate illumination of its neutral distinctive marks, it recommends that American shipping circles again be warned against traversing the area of maritime war incautiously, and also be urged to make the neutral markings as plain as possible and especially to have them illuminated promptly and sufficiently at night."

DECREASE IN RAILWAY ACCIDENTS REPORTED

Washington, May 29.—A decrease in railway accidents is shown by a report for the final quarter of 1914, made public today by the interstate commerce commission. It shows 2,162 killed and 41,030 injured.

Of the killed, however, only seventy-eight met death in train accidents. More than 2,000 were killed in other than train accidents, including accidents to employes at work, passengers getting on or off trains, and trespassers.

OUTLOOK IS NOT BRIGHT

Flood Conditions in Southwestern States Show No Improvement.

Osage River Out of Banks and Kansas Steadily Rising.

Kansas City, Mo., May 29.—Flood conditions along the Missouri river eastward from Kansas City were gloomier today.

The Osage river is out of its banks forty miles above its mouth. The Kansas river is rising. The effect of the flood waters from those and numerous other tributary streams is being felt in the Lower Missouri.

Jefferson City, Mo., reported a rise of thirteen inches from 6 p. m. yesterday to 6 a. m. today, with much farm land inundated.

Pattonsburg, Mo., is entirely submerged by the flood waters of the Grand river. A shortage of food is reported. Rescuers worked all night conveying residents who live in one-story houses, to safety.

Conditions here and at Topeka, Kan., and St. Joseph, Mo., are about normal again.

The crest of the flood is not expected here until tomorrow, because of additional heavy rains in Iowa and Nebraska.

Tremendous Downpour.

Peoria, Ill., May 29. — The second heaviest rainfall in thirty-three years tied up street car traffic, disorganized railroad schedules and did $100,000 damage to crops in the vicinity of Peoria last night. In four hours the rainfall was 4.48 inches, reaching the proportions of a cloudburst at times. A large part of the south end of the city

ZEPPELIN HIT BY SHELL; FALLS IN SEA

Orders Promptly Given for New One to Replace It.

Geneva, Switzerland, May 29, via Paris.—A dispatch received this morning from Friedrichshafen says that one of the Zeppelin airships which three days ago raided South End, England, was struck by a British shell. It was unable to reach the mainland and fell into the sea of Helgoland. Whether the crew was saved is not known.

Orders have been received at Friedrichshafen to replace this vessel with a Zeppelin of the newest type. Such an airship, recently completed, will leave Friedrichshafen shortly.

GERMAN REPLY TO REQUEST AN AGREEMENT ON FACTS

ANOTHER BIG BRITISH LINER IS TORPEDOED

Elder-Dempster Ship Ethiope Victim of Submarine U-4.

Liverpool, May 29.—The Elder-Dempster line steamer Ethiope has been torpedoed and sunk.

The chief officer and sixteen men of the Ethiope have been picked up. The rest of the crew is supposed to be in boats.

The Ethiope was bound from Hull to Liverpool, whence she was to have sailed for East African ports.

The vessel was sunk by the German submarine U-24.

The Ethiope, of 2,475 tons net, was built in 1906 and was owned in Liverpool. She was 340 feet long. She was last reported as arriving at Hull, Eng., on April 22 from Lagos.

Desires to Open Diplomatic Negotiations on Lusitania Case.

Berlin, May 29, via London, 6:25 p. m.—Germany's answer to the American note was delivered to Ambassador Gerard this morning. The German reply avoids decisive statements in regard to the questions raised by the United States pending a further exchange of views.

Washington, May 29.—Ambassador Gerard reported today that while the German reply to the American note had not yet been delivered to him he knew that it contained a request for an agreement on the facts in the Lusitania case.

On the eve of Germany's reply to the American note on the sinking of the Lusitania, there are indications that President Wilson will take the position that if Germany wishes to conduct a long diplomatic negotiation she first shall suspend submarine warfare on American ships or those carrying American lives.

It was expected here that the German note might be delivered any hour today to Ambassador Gerard. The first official dispatch in from Europe gave no intimation of the situation and officials were of the opinion that should the document be delivered to the American embassy today it might not reach Washington much before Monday. They had no official intimation of its contents.

Tension Not Diminished.

The passing of three weeks, however, since the Lusitania was torpedoed has not diminished the tension in high official quarters, where the conviction prevails that President Wilson feels Germany should make an early disavowal of any intention that American lives should be lost. The admission by the German admiralty that a German submarine torpedoed the American steamer Gulflight without warning is taken to confirm the conclusion of the Washington government reached before the Lusitania note was sent. Reports from Berlin that

FIERCE FIGHTING CONTINUES IN VICINITY OF RIVER SAN

Russians Consider Repulse There Offsets Successes at Radymno.

London, May 29.—Terrific fighting is continuing along the River San, in Galicia, with the Austro-German hosts making progress except at Sieniawa, fifty miles north of Przemysl, where, according to the claims of Petrograd and the admissions of Vienna, an Austro-Hungarian force is being thrown back across the river to the west bank. In this action the Russians assert that they captured several thousand prisoners and a number of guns.

In the Caucasus the Russians, now in occupation of the city of Van, in Turkish Armenia, are steadily advancing against the Turks.

The latest reports given out by French army headquarters dwell on the British advance toward La Bassee and further French progress in the most difficult sector of the Lens-Arras line. Near Ecurie, a little to the north of Arras, a formidable German fortress bars the road eastward. The French have captured a part of this work, which is known as the Labyrinth, and they are now endeavoring totally to reduce it. The Germans are fighting stoutly to prevent allied progress in this direction, and they have made no

RUSSIAN BATTLESHIP NOT SUNK BY TURKS

None of Black Sea Fleet Either Sent to Bottom or Wrecked.

Paris, May 29.—The French minister of marine yesterday gave out an official announcement which read:

"The Russian admiralty denies categorically the Turkish official announcement according to which the Russian battleship Panteleimon was sunk in the Black sea by a submarine. The day when this was supposed to have happened the Panteleimon was in a Russian port and no vessel of the Russian Black sea squadron has either been sent to the bottom or wrecked."

The announcement referred to in the foregoing dispatch came from Constantinople by way of Berlin and London on the 26th of May. It set forth briefly that the Russian battleship Panteleimon had been torpedoed May 22 near the entrance to the Bosporus by a Turkish submarine.

LA CHAMPAGNE SAID TO HAVE BROKEN IN TWO

London, May 29.—A report received by Lloyds states that the steamer La Champagne of the French Trans-Atlantic line, which ran ashore near St. Nazaire, has broken in two.

The 900 passengers aboard La Champagne were removed in safety. The steamer, which was built in 1886 had a net tonnage of 3,068. She was 493 feet long, with a beam of 52 feet.

NEBRASKAN TORPEDOED, IS REPORT

Engineer Saw Streak in Water Just Before the Explosion.

Washington, May 29.—Evidence forwarded by Ambassador Page to the state department today, gathered by Lieut. John H. Towers, naval attache at the American embassy at London, indicates that the American steamer Nebraskan was torpedoed by a submarine.

Lieut. Towers made a technical examination of the Nebraskan on her arrival at Liverpool and took statements and affidavits from Capt. Greene and members of the crew. The chief engineer stated that he thought he saw the wake of a torpedo just before the vessel was attacked. The detailed evidence is being sent by mail, but a summary of the main features of the cable report was issued by the state department.

The American ambassador in London informed the state department that the investigation of the Nebraskan incident by Lieut. Towers brings out the facts as follows:

Name Painted on Ship.

"That the Nebraskan had left Liverpool bound for the Delaware Breakwater on the afternoon of May 24 and was in water ballast. The words 'Nebraskan, New York,' were painted on each side amidships in letters six feet high and she flew the American flag continuously up to approximately 8:10 p. m., May 25, at which time the ship was about forty miles southwest of Fastnet.

"The flag was then hauled down be-

HOTEL KEEPER QUITS COUNTRY

Naturalized Briton of German Birth Unable to Stand Taunts.

London, May 29.—Otto Humbert, owner of the Queen's hotel, Queenstown, a naturalized British subject of German birth, sailed from Liverpool today for New York.

A number of the Lusitania survivors were taken to Mr. Humbert's hotel upon their arrival at Queenstown. His origin aroused antagonism and he became the target of bitter criticism on the part of some of the survivors and their friends. His actions have been above suspicion, but his presence in the hotel where military and naval officials make their headquarters, caused protests. Consequently Mr. Humbert decided to leave.

MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR HERBERT S. STONE

Chicago, May 29.—Memorial services for Herbert Stuart Stone, the publisher, who lost his life on the Lusitania, were conducted by Dr. Timothy Stone at the Fourth Presbyterian church here today. Had Mr. Stone lived this would have been his forty-fourth birthday. Chicago was his home for many years.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Melville E. Stone, parents of the decedent; Mrs. William G. McCormick of Baltimore, mother of Mr. Stone's widow, other relatives and friends, and many Chicagoans to whom the torpedoing of the great liner brought bereavement.

AUSTRIANS ARE SLOWLY RETREATING

Order Issued Preventing Austrians and Germans Leaving Country.

Geneva, May 29, via Paris.—The Italians, after a severe fight along the frontier north of Lake Idro, have captured the town of Storo and are now bombarding Riva.

On the eastern front north of the Gulf of Trieste bayonet fighting is in progress south of Goritz. The Austrians are retreating slowly. Italian forces have arrived before Gradisca, about sixteen miles from Trieste.

The Italian authorities issued an order last night prohibiting Austrians and Germans from leaving the country.

Naval Losses.

Rome, via Paris, May 29.—A communication issued by the Italian ministry of marine gives the following details of the naval losses by Austria and Italy up to the present time:

On May 24, the Austrian torpedo boat S-20, having approached the canal at Porto Corsini, was so seriously damaged by the fire from our masked bat-

TURKS HAVE 80,000 MEN AT DARDANELLES

London, May 29.—The Turkish troops defending Gallipoli peninsula against the landing forces of the allies number 80,000 men, according to the correspondent at Athens of the Reuter Telegram company. The Turks are remaining on the defensive in the Caucasus and are concentrating all their efforts on the Dardanelles, whither reinforcements are being brought from Syria. The supplies of ammunition, both for the infantry and the artillery, are reported to be decreasing rapidly with no prospect of being replenished.

Reports reaching Athens from Sofia set forth that Bulgaria is holding to neutrality, but the leaders of the opposition party believe that if Roumania intervenes in the war Bulgaria will follow suit.

JEWISH PERSECUTION CEASES IN PALESTINE

Greatest Sufferers There Now Members of Catholic Religious Orders.

New York, May 29.—Persecution of the Jews in Palestine has entirely ceased, according to information received by the American Jewish committee and made public today. The greatest sufferers in Palestine at present, the committee was informed, are the members of the Catholic religious orders, whose property, it was stated, has been seized by military authorities. Economic conditions were reported as bad, as a strict blockade prevents imports and there was an invasion of millions of locusts, which were destroying the grain.

SUMMARY OF THE WAR NEWS

Armies of Italy are drawing nearer Trent and Trieste, the principal cities of the territory over which Italy went to war. Little news of the campaign is received from Italy on account of a rigid censorship, but dispatches from Geneva state that the Italians still are advancing. Near Goritz the Austrians offered determined resistance, leading to fierce bayonet fighting. In Trieste anti-Italian disorders are reported and the municipal authorities are said to have fled.

Turkey now has about 80,000 soldiers on Gallipoli peninsula, it is estimated at Athens, and is bringing in reinforcements from Syria, concentrating her efforts on the defense of Constantinople. On this account offensive operations in the Caucasus have been abandoned and the Russian army is pressing forward steadily from the province of Van. The Turks are said to be threatened with a shortage of ammunition.

The Austro-German advance in Galicia still is being prosecuted with success, except for the Russian victory on the San, at Sienawa. Reports from Vienna indicate the maneuvers designed to isolate Przemysl are proceeding unchecked and that this fortress may soon be surrounded.

INTERSTATE, DULUTH'S GREATEST MINING SUCCESS

This company has probably developed into the greatest mining success ever organized in Duluth, the home of many of the world's leading and most successful mining issues.

The company has, according to some experts, developed the largest known ore body of its kind in the world today and are earning on their present comparatively small production at the rate of $12,000.00 A DAY, $360,000.00 PER MONTH, $4,300,000.00 A YEAR.

The company has just declared an extra dividend of $1.00 a share which, with the regular dividend of 25 cents, will be distributed July 1st, making a total of $575,000.00 at that time. The company now has close to a million in the banks, what with the ore in transit unpaid for and the shipments for May and June to be turned into cash even after this great distribution of cash they will undoubtedly be in a better cash position July 1st than they are at present. Interstate closed $19.00 bid. Interstate, to our mind, is the greatest opportunity offered the big investor today. After the shares are listed in New York they will undoubtedly sell as high as Butte & Superior. Watch Interstate, and don't overlook that wonderful property adjacent to the great Interstate, known as the

SUCCESS MINING COMPANY

THESE SHARES CLOSED 60c BID, 65c ASKED

and at these prices present a wonderfully attractive investment opportunity, coupled with tremendous speculative possibilities. Success is now listed in Duluth, Chicago, Spokane and Wallace, Idaho. Negotiations are under way to list it in Butte, New York, Minneapolis and Boston as well as Seattle. This will give the shares a tremendous broad market, making it a great trading stock, insuring stockholders a good market price and an opportunity to sell as well as buy.

Capitalization—1,500,000 shares.	Par value—$1.00.
Location—Couer d'Alene district.	Eight patented claims.
Equipment—250-ton flotation process concentrator, same as Interstate.	Payroll—135 men.
Ore reserves—Ore for three years.	Development—1,100 feet workable depth in sight, blocked out and measured.
Dividends—1913 ..... $90,000.00	Present payments—Two cents a share a month. Will be increased to 3 cents in July.
1915, monthly 30,000.00	Total dividends to date for property, $1,350,000.00.
Earnings—March 57,000.00	Estimated earning at capacity—$80,000.00 per month.
April 65,000.00
May 65,000.00
Cash surplus $100,000.00

Here is a property that the state mining inspector of Idaho says was the largest zinc producer in Idaho in 1913; a company that issues to its shareholders frank, open, above-board statements. Why buy prospects when investment can be made in Success shares at the same prices. Market closed tonight, 60 to 70 cents; sales 63 and 65 cents. At this price on the 3-cent dividend this stock will pay 36 cents a share a year, or 50 per cent on the selling price. With three years' ore supply blocked out, and with spelter prices promised to be kept at a high level for two to three years, on account of the war, this stock certainly looks very attractive, and we urge our friends and clients to investigate. Read the official reports on the various mines of Idaho issued by the government. See what Inspector Bell says of Success and Interstate. You can depend on government reports. Sell all the dead stocks you have and put the proceeds into Success shares.

Our big special letter on Success, Interstate, Alex Scott, Ballaklava, Butte Superior and other leading issues, also a treatise on the present stagnate conditions in the iron and steel trade, especially its effect on the Cuyuna range, will be issued Thursday, June 3. Write for it—free on request.

CURTAILMENTS IN BASEBALL COSTS

New York, May 29.—That financial curtailments in baseball are not confined to the big leagues is shown by records compiled from the minor league statistics of 1914 and 1915. In a list comprising twenty-two leagues of various classifications below the majors, the records show that more than half reduced either the salary or players' limit or both during the past winter. In no case was there an increase over the 1914 regulations in either the player or salary limit.

Reductions in the number of players to be carried ranged from 2 to 5 per club which in the case of a six-club league aggregated from 12 to 30. The monthly salary roll dropped from $100 to $800 per month per club, with the average ranging close to $500. Taking $500 as a general average and five months as the average season, the saving per month figures $2,500, and for a six-club league $15,000 for the season.

INDIANA ORDER NOT COPIED HERE

Although an order has been issued by the Indiana national guard calling upon pensioned Spanish-American war veterans holding offices in the militia of that state to resign, no such action is contemplated in Minnesota, so far as Col. F. E. Resche of the Minnesota National Guard has been advised.

United Spanish War veterans of Indiana strongly resent the order which has been issued in that state with reference to pensioned veterans holding offices in the militia. They have petitioned the Indiana governor, who is commander-in-chief of the militia, not to permit this to be done. They claim that many Civil war veterans who were drawing pensions were among the first to respond to the country's call at the time of the Spanish-American war.

"No such order has been issued with reference to the Minnesota National Guard," declared Col. Resche this morning.

DULUTH'S NEW SERVICE TRUCK.

Duluth's fire horses are gradually giving way to the latest motorized apparatus and within a short time only a few animals will be used by the local fire department and these only in case of emergencies.

At the present time the city owns fifteen motor units, distributed in the various fire halls, extending from Lakeside to New Duluth. Since the motor apparatus was first purchased a few years ago, the department has sold over thirty horses, more than half that were in use at the time. There are now twenty-two horses distributed in the various firehalls and several of these will be sold this year, it was recently announced.

The accompanying photograph is of the new service truck purchased last spring by the city council for $5,750. The machine is valued at $6,500, but an allowance of $750 was made for an old horse-drawn truck owned by the city. Former Commissioner Hicken arranged for the purchase.

The new truck, which has been placed at headquarters, was given severe tests during this week and the machine has been favorably passed upon by Commissioner Silberstein of the safety division. Fred Florsdorf of Elmira, N. Y., representative for the American-La France Fire Engine company, came here two weeks ago to assemble the car after its arrival from the factory and to conduct the test runs. Mrs. Florsdorf accompanied her husband. They will return to Elmira next week.

Fire Chief Randall announced yesterday that the new truck will be driven by John McLean. The truck carries 250 feet of ladders, an extra set of tires and a life net.

SHAM BATTLE IS PROPOSED

May Be Part of Civic Celebration of Independence Day.

A sham battle between the National Guard and the naval marines at Lincoln park has been suggested to Mayor Prince as the main feature of the proposed civic celebration on the Fourth of July.

Capt. Henry Cleveland, park manager, made the suggestion this morning and nearly all those who have heard it express themselves in favor of the plan. In addition there would be a parade of all military organizations during the early part of the afternoon, and a flag-raising program on the court house square and fireworks at the Lake Shore park, Twelfth avenue east, in the evening.

The sham battle would be staged at about 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the Fourth, according to Capt. Cleveland, and could be watched by at least 15,000 people.

Suggested Program.

A tentative outline of a Fourth of July clebration was made this morning by Mr. Cleveland. It includes a parade of all military organizations in the city, the line of march ending in front of the courthouse, where a flag-raising program, including music and addresses, would be featured. The sham battle at Lincoln park would follow.

One force would endeavor to take the pavilion and it would be the job of the defenders to prevent it.

Mayor Prince said this morning that suggestions are constantly being received and that the commission is anxious to start plans at once for a large civic celebration on Independence day.

"The commission is very much in favor of a celebration," said the mayor this morning, "but the city has no funds to pay for any expenses that might be incurred. The public should get together and start a fund. Several have called me up and offered to subscribe from $10 to $25 and in this way enough money could be obtained to pay for a suitable entertainment to last the entire day."

ALL FACTIONS IN MEXICO ARE WARNED BY PRESIDENT

Says Conditions in That Country Have Become Intolerable.

If They Cannot Compose Situation Something Will Be Done.

Washington, May 29.—President Wilson has decided to serve notice on all the warring factions in Mexico that conditions in that country have become intolerable and unless they themselves compose the situation soon, some other means may have to be employed to accomplish the result.

The first intimation of the president's determination to take this step came yesterday in his appeal issued as the head of the American Red Cross, setting forth that "due to several years of internal disturbances the unfortunate people of many parts of Mexico have been reduced to the verge of starvation and urging contributions to relief funds."

Later the White House gave out the following:

"When the president's appeal for aid for the Mexicans was issued, it was also stated at the executive offices that a statement from the president on the present situation in Mexico might be expected within the next few days."

To Be Issued Tuesday.

This statement has been prepared and will be issued after the cabinet meeting next Tuesday and then communicated to the leaders of all the Mexican factions.

Officials at the White House and state department declined to say what the president's statement contained, but denied that recognition of any faction was now contemplated. It was stated authoritatively that while friends of Carranza here had been pressing for recognition, the Washington government has not been impressed with the ability of any of the contending chiefs to restore order. The present action, it was said, was to demand, in effect, that the Mexicans arrive at an early settlement of their troubles, or at least provide for the sustenance of the starving population.

No Immediate Intervention.

High officials referred to the president's forthcoming pronouncement as not meaning immediate intervention, and they emphasized the word "immediate."

The impression in executive quarters was that the purpose would be to place the responsibility for the present state of affairs squarely upon the military elements in the southern republic, which have overrun the country, and appropriated its food supply, or prevented the tilling of the soil. While anxious to continue the policy of allowing the Mexicans to settle their differences without outside interference the president is said to be determined that the civilian population of the country shall not be starved in the meantime.

Talk of intervention which has been dormant ever since the European war diverted attention from the situation nearer home, was immediately revived by the White House statement. Many diplomatists who interpreted the day's events as the forerunner of a new policy, thought intervention was an inevitable outcome of the situation, and that the United States was paving the way for such action by notifying the world of its purpose to take such a step for the sake of humanity. They pointed out that a similar utterance had preceded intervention in Cuba in 1898.

Allowed to Stand.

For the present, it is understood the notication to all the Mexican factions of the intolerable state of affairs and the desire of the American government for a betterment of conditions, will be allowed to stand without explanation while the relief work of the American Red Cross is undertaken in earnest.

The belief was widespread in official and diplomatic circles last night that an immediate effect of the forthcoming statement, will be to give warning that relief supplies must not be appropriated by the military factions, and that they must assist in feeding the starving populace.

While the president's statement will not say specifically the alternative course in case it is not heeded, the general trend of comment indicated that the United States government, as a first step in such a contingency, would insist on keeping the railroad between Vera Cruz and Mexico City open for the transportation of supplies, and might even deliver its supplies to the people in other Mexican cities by governmental agencies.

These parts of the government's plans, it is said, will take several weeks to be worked out, and they are not expected to come to a decisive point while the delicate negotiations with Germany are in progress.

President Wilson stated Tuesday after his conference with Duval West, his personal representative in Mexico, that he had decided on no change in the Mexican policy.

Sequel Caused Determination.

The events of the last twenty-four hours—the seizure by Carranza authorities of large quantities of corn purchased by the international relief committee, and the inability of the authorities at Vera Cruz and Mexico City to provide transportation for supplies to succor the ever-increasing bread line—brought about the determination to act.

Secretary Bryan announced that American consuls throughout Mexico had been instructed to keep the state department closely advised as to the suffering of the people and famine conditions. In the meantime the department is co-operating with the Red Cross in the arrangements for relief.

"It takes time," said Mr. Bryan, "to collect goods to relieve such a situation, and while the government is making arrangements for getting the goods there, it is losing no time in arranging the collection of the goods."

Mr. Bryan referred to the frequent changes in the control of various cities and remarked that recently there had been intimations that Mexico City would change hands again.

"The City of Mexico," he added, "is a very hard place to defend, and it has changed hands several times because those inside prove weaker in defense, and those outside stronger in attacking it."

No Pressure From Britain.

Officials flatly deny reports that Great Britain, through her embassy here, had been exerting pressure for the relief of conditions in Mexico. It was pointed out, however, that Duval West, after spending three months making an investigation of conditions in Mexico, was understood to have brought back information tending to show that none of the leaders had sufficient capital to dominate the situation, and to have suggested that the United States must compel a settlement. The idea that by relieving distressed conditions among the populace the influence of the United States government upon the warring factions would increase, is said to have been one of Mr. West's arguments. His reports were of a decidedly pessimistic character concerning the economic as well as political conditions. He found that most of the crops were failures, that the land had not been tilled, and that the food supply was diminishing to such an alarming degree, that almost the entire population was threatened with starvation.

PLEADS FOR SANE FOURTH

State Fire Marshal Starts State-Wide Movement for "Safety First."

Urges Official Guidance and Control of All Programs.

R. W. Hargadine, state fire marshal, who was in Duluth earlier in the week, has started a state-wide movement for a safe and sane celebration of the Fourth of July. He especially urges civic programs under the direction of the officials.

Aside from the financial loss that follows from fires caused by explosive fireworks, Fire Marshal Hargadine places special emphasis in his appeal on the toll of human life taken by a careless observance of independence day each year.

The campaign will not be of interest to Duluth as far as the fireworks are concerned, for their use is forbidden here.

Mr. Hargadine's statement to the officials in all the cities of the state follows:

Hargadine's Plea.

"This year it is more important than usual to take extra precaution against the usual results of Independence day celebrations, because the holiday falls on Sunday, thereby increasing the danger of fire because of the suspension of business for two days.

"Independence day is one of powder poisoning and lockjaw; a day of hospitals and ambulances; a day of mutilation, fire and death. Will it mean all these things to your community or, perhaps your own family?

"The Fourth of July can be made safe and sane. If there is anything that is sane in the American people it is the growing revolt against our insane manner of celebrating this holiday. Every man upon whose shoulders fall public responsibility dreads it. No fire department gets through the day and nights on both sides of it without exhaustion and it is doubtful if on some fifth of July an entire community may not burn itself up in the faces of firemen and fire horses too exhausted by silly firecracker fires the day before to cope with it.

"And even while the men and horses are doing their utmost to reach a fire caused by some careless or thoughtless persons, there have been cases where both men and horses were killed by being thrown from trucks by frightened horses swerving from explosives thrown at them as they galloped past.

"Aside from the financial loss, by far the most distressing results of the celebration is the loss of life and limb. Thousands of young men are going through life sightless or crippled and made dependent upon charity because of explosives on Independence day.

"The Fourth of July will be with us in a few weeks. What is your community doing to make it a 'Glorious Fourth' in reality, instead of a fatal Fourth, which it has been to thousands of the youth of the land in the past few years? What are you doing yourself in this respect?"

TWENTIETH CONVENTION

Duluth Episcopal Diocese Will Have Annual Meeting Next Week.

Large Attendance Is Expected; Diocese Soon to Reach Its Majority.

On next Tuesday and Wednesday the twentieth annual convention of the clergy and laity of the Episcopal diocese of Duluth will be held in Trinity cathedral, Twentieth avenue east and Superior street; and on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning the annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the diocese will be held.

The convention will open on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, at which time evening prayer will be said, and Bishop James Dow Morrison, the head of the diocese, will deliver a portion of his episcopal address. Immediately following this service the convention will be called to order, the convention committees announced and the nominations for elective officers will be received. If a quorum of the clergy and laity is present the secretary of the diocese will be elected.

First Episcopal Cathedral.

It is expected that there will be a full attendance of the clergy and that there will be a large representation of lay delegates, for this will be the first convention to be held since Trinity attained the dignity of a cathedral, and it is the first Episcopal cathedral in the state. It is hoped to have at this convention a celebration of this attainment in an informal way.

The real business of the convention will begin on Wednesday morning, following the celebration of holy communion at 10 o'clock. There will be a recess from 12:30 to 2 o'clock for luncheon and business will be then resumed. It is hoped to complete the business of the convention by 5 o'clock that afternoon, but in case this is found impossible adjournment will be taken at that time until the following day.

Woman's Auxiliary.

On Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 the annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held in the cathedral chapel, at which time the president's address will be given and reports of officers and committees will be received. This meeting will be resumed following the celebration of holy communion at 9:30 Thursday morning in the cathedral. The attendance at this meeting is expected to show a very complete representation from all parts of the diocese.

On Thursday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock Bishop and Mrs. Morrison will give a reception at Trinity cathedral for the members of the convention, the Woman's Auxiliary and the churchmen of Duluth.

HAVE NO IDEA OF GREAT WAR

English Have Confidence in Wilson in Lusitania Matter.

"America is too far away—you haven't any conception of the war," said Miss Laura Court, English nurse, who made the trip to New York recently on the funeral ship New York, which carried the bodies of many Lusitania victims.

"In England they say, 'There are no people so wicked as the Germans,'" she declared, "and that has been the general sentiment since the Lusitania was torpedoed."

Miss Court, who now is visiting Mr. and Mrs. William T. Atherton at Ye English Inn, Woodland, was in London when the war broke out. For the last five months she has been engaged as ambulance nurse in the St. James' infirmary at Belham, London. She sailed from Liverpool May 16.

"I will remember that journey as long as I live," she said. "It was an awful one. Everyone on shipboard seemed to realize the fearful conditions under which those people met their death and all grieved for them.

"When the New York passed over the spot where the Lusitania went down realization of the ghastliness of the tragedy was brought home to all of us the more strongly. There was complete silence on board when we passed the spot, and I could tell from the expressions on the faces of the passengers that they were thinking of the terrible scenes which marked the sinking of the steamer."

Miss Court added that the English people were confident that Woodrow Wilson would do justice to all as far as the Lusitania was concerned.

Large crowds attended the exhibit, which came to a close last night. J. Gootswald, Miss Lucretia Belting and Miss Mildred Works of the manual training department were in charge.

SALAS GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

Jury Returns Verdict in Case of Man Indicted With Burke.

New York, May 29.—Jacob L. Salas, a tobacco merchant of Colon, indicted with John Burke, former manager of the Panama railroad's commissary department, and Ricardo Bermudez, another merchant, on the charge of conspiring to defraud the government in connection with the tobacco contracts, was found guilty by a jury in Federal court here late yesterday. He was paroled in custody of counsel, with instructions to return Wednesday next when he probably will be sentenced.

Although indicted jointly, the court granted separate trials for the men. Burke became a witness for the government at the Salas trial, and it is said, will escape prosecution. Major George W. Goethals, governor of the canal zone, was a witness at the trial.

The jury reached its verdict of guilty, a half hour after Judge Hunt had delivered his charge. Earlier in the day, the defense introduced further testimony intended to prove that the government was not defrauded, when John Burke accepted $20,000 commission in purchasing supplies from Salas and after calling several character witnesses for Salas, rested its case.

William Rand, counsel for Salas, denounced Burke in his summing up. Burke, "a hundred times more guilty of wrong doing than anyone else," he exclaimed, "was to get immunity while delivering up Salas and other merchants, who dealt with him."

N. L. UPHAM,

JOHN DIMOND,

"Private" John Frazier of Company "G", One Hundred and Forty-Second New York volunteer infantry, the oldest "old" soldier in Duluth, will be the most honored man in the city Monday, when 90,000 persons will pay homage to the men who fought in the Civil war.

With him, however, will be eighty odd men who once were "boys in blue" and who are now living in Duluth. Monday's monster parade, with the exercises at the Auditorium and Central high school following, will go to make up the most elaborate Memorial day services ever held at the Head of the Lakes.

Four other oldest soldiers have been chosen as aids to the honorary grand marshal, and will occupy with "Private" Frazier the first automobile in the procession.

Dr. Nathaniel L. Upham, age 82, chaplain of the Thirty fifth New Jersey Infantry and later with the Sixteenth and Seventeenth corps of the army of the Tennessee, will be one of the aides. Rev. Upham was with the troops during the defence of Washington; at Eastport, Miss.; at Union City, Tenn.; at Vicksburg; from Chattanooga to Atlanta and in the march to Savanna, Ga., and back. He was ordained the year the war started and left his church at Manchester, Vt., to enlist.

John H. Baker, age 80, another of the aides, enlisted Aug. 11, 1862. He first was a private in "E" company, Thirty-first Iowa infantry, and remained in the same company throughout the war, being discharged Oct. 5, 1864, with the rank of sergeant.

John Dimond, age 80, the third aide, enlisted soon after the first call was sent out by President Lincoln, joining company "G," First New York cavalry, on Aug. 12, 1861. He fought through the war and was mustered out on July 27, 1865, with the rank of first sergeant in the same company in which he enlisted.

The line of March will be south on Second avenue east to Superior street, west on Superior street to Fifth avenue west, north on Fifth avenue west to First street and east on First street to the Auditorium.

When the head of the parade reaches Fifth avenue west and First street, it will halt and divide, allowing the members of the two Grand Army posts to pass between the lines and arrange for review at Fourth avenue west above First street, where they will rest. Then the procession will march in front of the G. A. R. for grand review after which the G. A. R. will resume their place in the procession to the Auditorium.

ADVISORY COUNCIL PLAN HIT AGAIN

Plans for an advisory council, fathered by the Rotary club, were not approved by the Munger Improvement club members last night during the regular meeting.

Official action was deferred for a week, although C. C. Firoved, president of the organization, said that there was no further need to discuss an intermediary council as the plan was "in the sere and yellow leaf."

The club passed a resolution providing that a request be sent to street railway company officials, asking them to replace wooden poles on Ninth street, between Seventh and Fourteenth avenues east, before paving was laid on that section of the street.

Cows should not be turned loose in residence districts or staked out where they would annoy residents or pedestrians, in the opinion of club members, who will petition the city commissioners to have this practice stopped.

BOXCAR "ROOMER" KEEPS AN ALARM CLOCK; "SHOEBREAKER" BY TRADE

Puts Footwear of Section Men in Good Condition; Afraid "Room" Might Be Pulled to Another City; Sent to Break Shoes at the Work Farm.

Alarm clocks are necessary, whether a man is rooming in a box car or living in a palatial suite in a hotel or residence, according to Charles Johnson, age 33, in municipal court today.

Special Officer Christensen was startled by an alarm clock as he went through the D. & I. R. yards early this morning. He locked in the nearest box car and saw Johnson jump to his feet, rub his eyes, and shake a collection of excelsior and hay from his clothes.

An hour or so later Johnson, with his clock was at headquarters.

"What were you doing with the clock?" asked Capt. A. G. Fiskett.

"Well, you see," was the reply, "I'm a traveling man, and I room right there in the cars. You see, I stay up pretty late and I might oversleep. They might pull my room out to some other town. Then I would be a long way from my work. I always pick out a car that will stay overnight, but I don't want to oversleep."

"What is your work?" was the next question.

"Well, I'll tell you," explained Johnson, "I'm a shoebreaker. I break in new shoes for the section men who have sore feet. I wear them around till they get nice and soft and then break in another pair. I get a quarter a pair."

"You ought to go to the work farm," said the captain. "There are plenty of heavy shoes out there and someone will call you early every morning."

Judge Cutting sentenced him to seven days at the farm, and Johnson, leaving his alarm clock at headquarters, was soon on his way. He expects to be able to break in a pair of shoes Memorial day.

DULUTHIAN IN GERMANY WRITES OF NIETZSCHE, TREITSCHKE AND BERNHARDI

Nietzsche Abhorred New Germany and Was Proud of Slavic Blood; Treitschke, the Bancroft of Germany; Bernhardi an Incautious Retired Cavalry Officer.

Wilson G. Crosby of this city, who has spent the last year in Munich, Germany, with Mrs. Crosby, has written an article on "Nietzsche, Treitschke and Bernhardi," which has for its feature a translation of part of Hermann Oncken's essay entitled "Germany, England and America." This article by Mr. Crosby was published in the last quarterly edition of American Notes in Munich, a publication for Americans living in the German metropolis. A copy has just been received in Duluth.

Mr. Crosby's article follows in full:

Reviews the Situation.

"Americans having the slightest knowledge of things German have been a little bewildered by the confident quotations from a few German authors appearing in the American press—all cited for their damning evidence against Germany and the Germans. They had heard of Clausewitz and his great popular work on 'War'—but who was Bernhardi? They were familiar with the name of Treitschke, Bismarck's contemporary and co-worker, and had heard of his eloquent outpourings long ago as a Berlin professor—but what had he to do with the present struggle? They had read Nietzsche and his philosophy of the superman—but how came he in this galley? We have therefore ventured to translate with many omissions a few paragraphs from a recent essay on 'Germany, England and America,' written by the Heidelberg professor, Hermann Oncken. These paragraphs deal with the authors in question who seem to be the only German writers of the last half century with whose names the American newspaper world is familiar. Perhaps Oncken's testimony will be taken as better proof of the true significance for Germany of these writers than the 'English made' comments of the American press. We must, however, refer the reader to the entire essay, warning him that the quotations give a very inadequate idea even of those portions of the essay from which they are taken. Oncken (in part) says:

Irony of History.

"The fate that has befallen the much-tried Nietzsche in this world-war is one of the ironies of history; he has been proclaimed one of the spiritual founders of modern Germany—of that Germany which he so deeply abhorred. All the dazzling brilliancy of the man has not saved him—the aristocrat—from having his utterances become part of the small change of the day in the coarse hands of the ignorant masses. Of nothing else was he so proud as of his Slavic blood; with no fancy did he daily so fondly as with that of the romance natures of his genius. This unhappy man who wished to be no German but a European, proclaimed more loudly than any other German of modern times his sympathy with French civilization and his hatred of the part played by German culture in the world, both in the past and under the new empire. He wrote in 1887 to Malwida von Meysenburg: 'In the Europe of today I feel myself related only to the greatest geniuses of France and Russia and not at all to my own people.'

Sympathy for French.

"'One can easily understand why Henri Lichtenberger, who was half a Frenchman, openly admitted after Nietzsche's death that one of the causes that had made Nietzsche so popular in France was his loudly proclaimed sympathy for the French. As a sort of compensation and consolation for 1870-71, a small circle honored this state's witness against German culture. We were on the point of being robbed of this genius in much the same way as Nietzsche himself loved to explain Goethe as an exception to the rule in Germany—when the English of a sudden, turned the table and began to advance upon us with the name of 'our idol,' the Hermit of Silss-Maria, like a new Attila upon their banners. It is inconceivable what an expenditure of ignorance and what poverty of mind were necessary to this change of scene; but the island was equal to the task. In the process the fact was overlooked that his ideal type of man was drawn by this romance genius from the Romantic Renaissance. They failed even to recognize that that dominating 'will for power' of his was realized in no history so memorably as by the great founders of English imperialism; and the fact, that among us only those who were non-politically inclined, only purely aesthetic spirits, looked up to Nietzsche, was as little known as was the fact that the workers of Germany in the army and official life, in manufactures and in science, had scarcely anything in common with him. But in England they needed the superman in order to mold his distorted features into a representation of our emperor, of his generals and statesmen, in a word of the New Germany as a final expression of the soul of our people. The Americans, however, who imitated this process did not at all recognize that they were compliantly thinking the thoughts of others.

Stands for New Germany.

"'With Treitschke's name the case stands differently. He belongs to the New Germany—to the Germany in which he struggled and evolution for to completed Germany whose features he helped to mold. Englishmen and Americans should be the first to understand him for, if he had one characteristic above all others, it was this: That he, a product of the political struggle for the new empire, poured into his historical writings a fiery national pride and a conscious political purpose such as an Englishman takes for granted in this field; such as Macaulay shows or, in a way, George Bancroft with his naïve pride in his great and wonderful American Fatherland. Every expert knows that Treitschke represents, in German historical composition, the culmination, and at the same time the conclusion, of a period. I do not need to discuss why Ranke must have a higher significance for the present generation of historians. An Englishman (G. P. Gooch) has recently pronounced a true judgment upon Treitschke's work: 'It had grown out of a national need and its raison d' etre ceased when the need was satisfied.'

"'It is quite at varfance with history to seek, as the root of all evil, the sowing of an alleged hatred of England in the work of a man who died nearly twenty years ago and who never experienced himself that rising wave of disfavor and malice which was to come upon us from across the channel. But he too was needed just as the superman was needed and there were not lacking penny-a-liners (like Ellis Barker, formerly Elizbacher) to write in the same little book about Nietsche and Treitschke, and so to harness together the despiser and the prophet of the New Germany, the non-political representative of European culture and the statesman to whom the national state was the breath of life.

Views of Bernhardi.

"'But England and America can produce yet another state's witness who, it is alleged, has given the strongest military expression to our political aspirations and thereby, without so intending, has revealed them to the world; that is Gen. von Bernhardi and his book written some years ago on "Germany and the Next War." This book of a general of cavalry, written five years after his retirement, received in Germany attention only in limited circles; it was used against us in England as vigorously as if its author were an official personage of political influence, and since the outbreak of the war the English manufactory of public opinion has shown towards no other article of export such as affectionate interest. The book has found in its English translation a circulation of a million copies—more than 100 times the number of its German readers.

Opinions of Military Men.

"'Nowhere are generals of cavalry numbered among the most cautious statesmen, and Americans will remember that they, too, have not been free from the type of admiral, whose strong words ring like sword on steel. The book belongs to a literature which is not unknown to any of the great nations (one might place beside the book as a parallel the utterances of Lord Roberts) and which seeks, whether in the form of a novel or in the form of an argument, half-political, half-military, to educate to a warlike spirit and to a strong foreign policy.

"'I willingly admit that unconsidered expressions are to be found in this book. These would receive the indorsement of few among us but I do not admit the conclusions which it is sought to draw from them. For one thing America overlooks the fact that Bernhardi is so little in agreement with the responsible heads of the imperial government that he frequently declares that the government forfeited public confidence by its peaceful settlement of the Morocco question. When a dissatisfied general in retirement proposes to replace the German policy of recent years by a different one, the ruling spirit of the German state is little responsible for it as the administration of President Wilson is responsible for all the utterances of Theodore Roosevelt. And if the objection should be raised that notwithstanding all this, Bernhardi is nevertheless, a characteristic specimen of all our public opinion (which is not in the least true), then we beg that attention be directed more closely to the part played for years past by the Matin in France and by the newspaper syndicate of Lord Northcliffe in England. There we find a plotting against peace and a 'poisoning of the springs' in a circle of a million readers; there we have the genuine chapters on the subject: Public Opinion and the Origin of War.'"

PLANNING FOR FAST SERVICE

Two Reports From Committee on Methods to Create Shipping.

Washington, May 29—Plans for steamship lines between the United States and South America—the one element which all delegates to the Pan-American financial conference agree is essential to closer relations between the Americas—were presented today by the transportation committee. A permanent committee of representatives of the United States, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay, Ecuador and Peru to work for the development of the plans were recommended. Two subcommittee reports differently only in proposals of procedure were submitted.

One signed by Delegates Aldao of Argentina, Caval Canti of Brazil and Cosio of Uruguay, proposes:

"A fast line of 10,000-ton steamers between the United States and Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo and Buenos Aires, capable of making the voyage to Rio in fifteen days.

"That as compensation for services rendered, such ships be exempt for five years from all fiscal charges and enjoy all facilities granted any other vessels.

Bids Not Later Than Dec. 31, 1915.

"Bids would be called for not later than Dec. 31, 1915, would be acted upon within three months and, if possible, awarded to the builder who gives earliest delivery; the North and South American governments would agree on the division of expense.

It was agreed between the other members and Delegate Veraga of Chile that there should be two lines of fast steamers, one to serve Brazil, Uruguay and Argentina and the other for Ecuador, Peru and Chile. Delegate Alzamora, while concurring in the report, did not sign it for lack of authority from his government, as was the case with Delegate Gonzales of Ecuador.

Delegate Veraga, in a separate report, made these proposals:

Shares for Public.

Organization of a corporation with stock offered to public subscription and any unsubscribed shares to be taken by the United States and Latin-American government; proportion to be agreed upon later.

That the corporation be organized under New York law; that the steamers shall be registered in different countries in proportion to capital subscribed.

That vessels be of 5,000-ton minimum and minimum speed of sixteen miles an hour.

That the board of directors be chosen by subscribing countries in proportion to their holdings.

The reports were presented to the conference this morning by the entire transportation committee with the recommendation that "it is the unanimous conviction of the committee that such plans should be adopted as will most speedily establish direct, effective and permanent transportation facilities between the United States and the republics of South and Central America."

Reply Awaited.

Washington, May 29.—Germany's reply to the American note regarding the destruction of the Lusitania was being awaited today by administration officials with keen interest. It was to be handed to Ambassador Gerard in Berlin today, who, it was believed here, would immediately cable it to the state department. Unofficial information received here said the reply would be given to the German press tomorrow for publication. It probably will be given out here for publication at the same time.

While state department officials momentarily expected word that the German answer was on its way, Secretary Bryan's early dispatches gave no indication that it had been started from Berlin. Like other messages from Berlin, now that Italy has entered the war, it probably will go from Berlin to Copenhagen, thence to London and then to Washington.

less than seven sanguinary assaults on the new French position at Angres. Berlin reports that the battle at Ablain-St. Nazaire is still raging.

Victory Is Offset.

Petrograd, May 29, via London.—Russian army officers assert that the victory of Emperor Nicholas' troops at Sienlawa, on the San in central Galicia, has offset the success of the Austro-German forces at Radymno and Gousskow.

At Radymno the Germans occupied territory on the right bank of the San extending five miles east and an equal distance south of the village. East of Gousskow they advanced a short distance in the direction of Lemberg. According to military opinion here, however, the advance of separate and isolated groups of German forces cannot result in material progress toward Lemberg, while the whole left flank of the German army operating between the Vistula and the Carpathians is being pressed back by the Russians along the line from Sienlawa to the mouth of the San. In this region the Russian forces threaten the German rear from the north. Every move eastward of the Germans weakens their communication with the rear and increases their danger of being cut off from their base.

Both north and south of Przemysl, the Austro-German assaults are being prosecuted with unusual vigor, but as yet no direct assault has been made upon the fortress itself.

The aim of the Germans apparently is to encircle Przemysl and attempt to work into a position from which it will be possible to proceed directly toward Lemberg.

French Statement.

Paris, May 29, 2:30 p. m.—The French war office this afternoon gave out a report on the progress of hostilities reading as follows:

"In the region to the north of Arras there occurred last night a very violent artillery engagement. The enemy bombarded particularly our positions on the heights of Lorette. A night attack made it possible for us to make further progress to the east of the roadway between Aix Noulette and Souchez. At about midnight a German counter-attack on our trenches at Ablain-St. Naziere was easily repulsed.

"In the Argonne, in the vicinity of Fontaine Madame, we yesterday took possession of a section of the enemy's trenches."

Nearly a mile of track on the Chicago & Northwestern and the Chicago & Burlington railroads was washed out. Long stretches of track on other roads leading into Peoria was out of commission during the night.

Mississippi Rising.

St. Louis, Mo., May 29.—The rising Mississippi river yesterday laid waste 700 acres of corn on Gabaret island near here, and threatened with similar fate approximately 1,500 acres of wheat. A hundred workmen are trying to salvage the wheat. The few persons who lived on the island escaped without injury.

Almost all trains from the west were delayed last night and washouts were reported at numerous points in Central Missouri. The Mississippi is expected to reach a bankfull stage tomorrow morning near Hannibal, Mo., and Grafton, Ill., the local government weather bureau reported today.

teries that she was forced to be convoyed to Pola. The torpedo boat destroyer Scharfschuetze, which was operating with H-20, was also damaged, suffering the loss of many of her crew. She called the scout ship Nova to her assistance, which also was struck several times, and who had several of her crew killed, including an officer.

"The destroyer Ozepel, which is of the same type as the Tatra, also suffered severe losses due to the arrival of our naval squadron during the action commenced against the destroyers.

"The above news has been confirmed by enemy communications which were intercepted. We believe, although no confirmations of it have been received, that the Austrian destroyer Helgoland suffered severely in the action against our ships, as she was seen listing heavily and was convoyed from the zone of action by another destroyer.

Lose One Destroyer.

"After the preceding brilliant action, we regret to announce the loss of our destroyer called 'Turbine.' She was built in 1901 and was of approximately 330 tons. During the morning of May 24, while on a tour of reconnoissance, she sighted an enemy destroyer and gave chase. The chase lasted half an hour, when four enemy war vessels appeared, including the cruiser Helgoland. The Turbine immediately turned about to return to her naval base, but was struck twice in her boilers, thus reducing her speed.

"She continued the battle for about half an hour, although fire had broken out aboard, and there was a lack of munitions. Then the commander ordered the water intake valves opened in order to avoid her capture. The Turbine commenced to sink, with all her men gathered at the stern, the enemy keeping up their fire all the while."

The sttement adds that nine of the Turbine's crew were saved by the fleet to which the Turbine belonged, which appeared on the scene in a few moments and gave battle to the retreating enemy.

"An enemy ship of the same type as the Tarta and also the cruiser Helgoland appeared to have been struck," the statement says.

Thirty-five others of the Turbine's crew, including the commander, are believed to have been picked up by the Austrians.

Two Boats Near Ill-Fated Craft Which Still Floats.

San Francisco, Cal., May 29.—Aid was reported to have reached the burning freight steamer Mackinaw early today, off Point Montra, fifteen miles south of here. The steamers Harvard and Klamath reported by wireless they were in sight of the vessel and she was afloat. The Mackinaw drifted fifty miles south from Point Reyes in a 70-mile gale during the night.

It is said her power has failed. Other steamers, including the Aroline and Beaver, and the coast guard cutter McCullough, have gone to the assistance of the Mackinaw.

The crew of forty were reported safe in the course of the night and nothing more was heard about them.

BRIEFS FOR PATTERSON

Opposition to Government Application in Cash Register Case Filed.

Counsel Hold Action of Circuit Court of Appeals as Final.

Washington, May 29.—Briefs were filed in the supreme court today in behalf of John H. Patterson and other officers of the National Cash Register company, in opposition to the recent application of the department of justice for a writ of certiorari to review their convictions under the criminal section of the Sherman anti-trust act in the Federal district court in Ohio, but which later was reversed by the Federal circuit court of appeals.

The reversal of the Federal circuit court is held to be final under the terms of the Sherman act. The briefs point out that Section 6 of the act provides that the decrees of the circuit courts of appeals shall be final in certain cases, "including cases arising under the criminal laws."

While this provision has qualifications, it is maintained that the act itself clearly makes the judgment of the Federal circuit court final in this case. It is also pointed out that the proper place for any further action is before the Federal district court, as the reversal did not dismiss the indictment or discharge the accused, but merely remanded the case back to the lower court for a new trial.

Answering the government's contention that the defendants had forced out of business many competing companies and absorbed the bulk of the trade, the brief quotes the finding of the circuit court of appeals, saying:

Pioneer in Business.

"In justice to the National company and the defendants, it should be noted that it was the pioneer in the cash register business and developed it. It owned the basic patents and must have acquired in a proper manner a very great number of improvement patents. In addition to this it had the advantage of very great capacity in the management of its affairs. These two considerations, together without reference to any unfair treatment of its competitors, are sufficient in themselves to account in a large measure for the success it has attained."

Replying to the strictures upon the accused, made in the petition and brief filed by the department of justice, the reply says:

"The criticism is unwarranted in a case where the circuit court of appeals has found that the defendants were erroneously prevented from offering very material evidence and where the government's evidence furnished no substantial proof of the existence of a conspiracy within three years and showed no questionable conduct on the part of any defendant during that period."

IMMORALITY NOT COMMERCE, IS PLEA

White Slave Law Issue Put Squarely Before the Supreme Court.

Washington, May 29.—The supreme court was petitioned yesterday to review the conviction in the California Federal courts of F. Drew Caminetti, son of A. Caminetti, commissioner general of immigration, on charges of violating the white slave law.

Former Senator Bailey of Texas will bring the case up Tuesday and a decision is expected on June 14. A similar application may be made on the latter date on behalf of Maury I. Diggs.

Caminetti and Diggs were convicted after a sensational trial and appeals to higher courts were fruitless.

Mr. Bailey in his petition to the court said the case presented for the first time the square-cut issue of whether the white slave law applies to cases which involve a mere immorality, and have no element of commerce or coercion. If it does apply to such cases he contends the law is unconstitutional.

In considering the constitutionality of the act Mr. Bailey urged that immorality was not commerce and no matter how much it might be abhorred, it was subject to state and not to Federal control.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY PAYS MORE TAXES

Than All Counties in the State Forty Years Ago.

St. Paul, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to an interesting comparative statement covering a period of forty years, prepared by State Treasurer Walter J. Smith, in 1875 St. Louis county paid the state $3,235.23 in taxes. In 1915 the same county will pay the state nearly $1,000,000, or 50 per cent more than all the counties paid in 1875.

The total receipts of the state in all funds for 1875 were $908,604.16, and for 1915 they have increased to $22,680,208.88. The total disbursements for 1875 were $1,033,609.78; for 1915, $20,714,745.33. At the close of the fiscal year 1875 there was a cash balance in the treasury of $130,245.29. At the beginning of the fiscal year 1915 the cash balance in the treasury was $3,807,830.45. The total amount of securities belonging to the permanent school fund of the state increased from $1,216,800 in 1875 to $19,125,110.26 in 1915. The total of all securities in all trust funds in 1875 was $1,207,800, and in 1915 the total was $22,908,596.26.

The population of Minnesota in 1875 was 597,407. The amount of securities owned by the permanent trust funds being $1,307,800, made a per capita of the invested funds of $2.18, while in 1915 the total securities being $22,908,596.26, and on the basis of a population estimated at 2,200,000 (in 1910 the official census gave Minnesota 2,075,708), the per capita is $10.41.

The state debt in 1875 was $500,000; in 1915, none.

The total amount of taxes paid by all counties in the state in 1875 was $662,700.90, and the taxes from other sources were $317,863.26, making a grand total of $980,604.16. In 1914, the total was $22,680,208.88, of which $6,143,596.88 was paid by the counties and $16,536,612 was derived from other sources.

In 1875, 69 per cent of all receipts to the state came from the counties, while in 1915 they paid 27 per cent of all the state's receipts.

In 1875 the railroads paid in taxes $138,368.72. From Aug. 1, 1914, to May 1, 1915, the railroads paid the state the sum of $5,006,264.01.

The amount paid to the school districts of the state from the general school fund as "school apportionment" in 1875 was $195,205.29. The general school apportionment from the general school fund from Aug. 1, 1914, to May 1, 1915, was $2,350,942.20. From Aug. 1, 1914, to May 15, 1915, there was paid the various school districts of the state, as special school aid out of the general revenue fund, the sum of $1,982,135.39, and for public school libraries, $30,834.30, making a total of $4,363,911.89.

In 1875 there was a school population in our public schools of 210,450, and the apportionment for that year was 91 cents for each pupil. In the 1914 and 1915 school year the school population was 412,466, and the apportionment for this year was $5.70 for each pupil. The school apportionment is paid from the general school fund only, and this fund is created by a one-mill state tax, and all the interest accruing from the permanent school fund.

SCORE FOREIGN POLICY.

Our Attitude Towards European Countries Criticized By Church Synod

Oshkosh, Wis., May 29.—At the convention here of the Wisconsin district of the Evangelical Synod of North America, resolutions were adopted declaring the practices of the United States government in relation to the European war to be "intolerable to all American citizens, who believe in the principles of neutrality, fairness and friendship applied to all nations alike."

The resolutions pledge the membership to support for office only such candidates who "will place American interests above those of any other country and who will aid in eliminating all undue foreign influence from American life."

MEXICANS REPRIEVED AT THE LAST MOMENT

Florence, Ariz., May 29.—The Board of Pardons and Parole at the last moment yesterday granted a respite to all five Mexicans who were condemned to die on the gallows at Florence penitentiary yesterday. The respite is not to exceed nine weeks and the recommendation is made that the men be hanged separately on dates to be fixed by Governor Hunt.

Advocates of the abolishment of capital punishment hailed the decision with delight. The least concerned were the Mexican prisoners for whose lives the struggle had been waged. They had smiled at the prospect of death and they did not change the smile when told they need not mount the gallows.

UNIVERSITY GIRL IS VICTIM OF GAS

Minneapolis, Minn., May 29.—Miss Esther Shol, who was to have graduated from the state university this year, was found dead in bed at her home, 2942 Park avenue by her father, late Thursday.

When her father, Christian Shol, returned home at 6:30 p. m. and called her for dinner, he received no answer and went to the room. At the door he smelled gas and when he entered he found his daughter dead on the bed. Physicians were called but Miss Shol had been dead for an hour.

Deputy Coroner C. A. Hobbs said she apparently had intended to turn off the electric light and instead had turned on the gas in the combination fixture.

Miss Shol had been prominent in university society, was in the senior class play and was a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Hurdsfield, N. D. Fire.

Hurdsfield, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Farmers' elevator here was burned from fire of unknown origin, which was first seen in the top of the building. MORE ITALIANS LANDED ON RHODES

Troops Sent to Turkish Island Held By Italy Since 1912.

Amsterdam, May 29, via London.—The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger states that Italian troops in considerable force have landed on the Turkish island of Rhodes, in the Aegean sea.

The island of Rhodes has been in the possession of the Italian authorities since the Turko-Italian war. The island was occupied by Italian forces on May 4, 1912, without opposition on the part of the Turkish garrison, which was captured.

At the conclusion of peace between Italy and Turkey a treaty was signed, in which Italy engaged to restore to Turkey the Aegean islands, including Rhodes, occupied by her troops, but on the condition that a general amnesty be granted to their inhabitants, that local autonomy be respected and that public liberty be guaranteed. If Turkey failed to fulfill these conditions, Italy reserved to herself the right of taking action against the porte and the islands were not to be restored until the agreement respecting them was carried out.

VACATION FOR THREE DAYS

Memorial Day Brings Rest to Pupils of Public Schools.

High School Examination Schedules; Plans Made for Commencement.

The students of Central high school, as well as those of the other schools of the city, are enjoying a three-day vacation, Monday having been declared a holiday. Memorial day exercises marked the chapel period yesterday morning, the program including speeches by veterans and members of the Citizens' Staff, and musical numbers by the choir and the Boys' Glee club.

Veterans Address Students.

The veterans on the program were E. G. Chapman, commander of Culver post; Jeremiah Kimball, Culver post; and J. R. Randall, Gorman post. Representing the Citizens' Staff were Mayor W. I. Prince and B. P. Neff. Both of the latter speakers emphasized the necessity and duty of the younger generation in respecting and honoring the men who saved the nation. They outlined the purpose of the staff as being one for the helping of the veterans in their declining years, of making active preparations for the annual Memorial day services, and of paying due reverence and homage to the men who laid down their lives for the preservation of the nation during a dark and doubtful period. The veterans, though advancing into a ripe old age, appeared hale and hearty, and they were enthusiastically received by the students. Their stories and "yarns," both serious and funny, of the "days of '61," made the students appreciate the fact that they were living in an age when there were yet a few of the heroes left. The old "boys" expressed their sympathy for the European fighters, who were being killed in an unjust war and who did not know why they were fighting. The Civil war was referred to as being "morally right" and one of only a few wars that could be called really just. Several of them paid loyal tributes to President Wilson and urged upon the students the necessity of preserving the government—"one country and one flag."

Patriotic Songs Sung.

The musical numbers were well received by the students. The choir sang most of the national anthems and songs referring to the Civil war. The Boys' Glee club stirred the hearts of the students and the veterans with "We Shall Meet, But We Shall Miss Him," rendered exceptionally well.

Following the close of school a number of the boys, at the request of Principal Young, gathered in the Assembly hall to discuss plans for representation in the parade Memorial day. The attendance was not what had been expected, but after considerable discussion the boys decided that it would be best to be represented. They considered it a disgrace if Central was not to be in the parade, and accordingly they decided to meet in the Assembly hall Monday morning at 9:30. Each boy was requested to notify some other fellows, and it is expected that there will be a good representation in the parade.

It was decided by Principal Young to give out the report cards once more before the close of school. Accordingly the teachers handed in the marks for the month of May during the last week and the cards will be given out when the students return on Tuesday, June 1. The time between the giving out of the April reports and the close of school was considered too long by Principal Young and the break was made. This makes three weeks more of school for the June reports. There will be but two more weeks of actual work in classes, as the examinations take up all of the time during the final week.

The most important matter that the students are concerned with at present is the "grind" for the final examinations, to be held during the concluding week of school. The examinations in senior subjects will be held on Thursday and Friday, June 10 and 11, while those for the lower classes will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of the week following. There will be no actual school Thursday, and on Friday morning the final chapel exercises will be held, including the formal exercises marking the close of school. On this day also the "fate" of the students will be determined. The students expecting to return next year will be asked to fill out their programs as they wish them for next year, and during the summer the classes will be arranged by Principal Young.

During the last week the schedule of final examinations was arranged by Principal Young. It includes the time during which each examination will be given, several being given at the same time. Those having conflicts will have to make special arrangements with the principal. The schedule is as follows: Examinations in senior subjects—

Thursday, June 10.

8:30-10:15—United States history and civics.
10:20-12:05—Latin IV.
12:45-2:30—English IV.
2:35-4:20—Agriculture II and art III.

Friday, June 11.

8:30-10:15—Chemistry.
10:20-12:05—German IV.
12:45-2:30—Trigonometry and algebra IV.
2:35-4:20—French III.

Examinations in subjects below senior grades:

Monday, June 14.

8:30-10:15—English.
10:15-12:00—Commercial geography and agriculture.
12:45-2:30—History.
2:30-4:15—French, biology, Norwegian and Swedish.

Tuesday, June 15.

8:30-10:15—Physics.
10:15-12:00—German and commercial arithmetic.

The first closed party of the freshman class, held in the lunchroom and gymnasium of the Washington building last night, was a decided success. There was an unusually large number of the class members present, and all of them expressed their approval of the informal method of holding the party, originated last year by Miss Taylor for the present senior class. Class President Frank Walsh acted as toastmaster for the affair, the program being as follows:

During the last week the seniors were especially active in their preparations for their farewell social events. The commencement arrangements were kept in the foreground. During the chapel period Wednesday morning the fourth-year students met in the assembly hall to practice for their music on class night. Something of a variety was offered as compared to the music that they had been practicing. Several of the members of the senior class, who were gifted with a "poetic genius," were called upon to "compose" some songs that would be fitting for the occasion. They responded well and several popular airs were used for the words that had been selected. In addition to those songs there will be several other more dignified selections rendered.

Practice for the class night play has been going on all during the last week and the several players have their parts practically learned. L. C. Rasey is in charge of the play, thus assuring the students that there will be no amateur acting. The play is a college drama, and it is expected that it will be well received by the seniors.

Invitations for the class night exercises were received at the school yesterday by Stanley Laskey and will be distributed next week.

Preparations for the annual junior-senor ball, to be held this year on the evening of June 17, were especially prominent during the week just closed. The invitations were sent out by the members of the junior class who are in charge of the affair to the members of the senior class. The junior class has charge of this affair, it being in the nature of a farewell to the seniors. It is the finest and most important social function of the year, and is the cause of considerable interest among the members of the two upper classes as well as among many of the graduates. The junior committee that is in charge of arrangements for the event is headed by Norman Tufty. The students have been especially fortunate in securing the Masonic temple for the occasion.

The girls of the junior class will hold a candy sale in the corridors of the building Tuesday, June 2. It is attracting considerable attention among the students, and it is expected that they will be able to raise a good sum.

Arrangements for the Lambs club banquet, to be held in the gymnasium and lunchroom of the Washington building Monday evening, were completed last week and it is expected that the affair will be a decided success. It is the first important social event of the Lambs club. It will be conducted along the lines of the class parties, in being altogether informal. The boys and girls are to come alone, but it is expected that each boy will do his duty when the party closes.

Following the banquet, one of the playlets that some of the club members have been preparing will be presented. There will also be a few vaudeville "stunts," while addresses will be made by several students and teachers and A. Romaine Callender of the Baldwin Players. Each boy is expected to bring some friend so that there will be enough boys to "go around," as the girls of the club greatly outnumber the boys.

ITCHY SALT RHEUM

Sometimes Called Eczema--Removed by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Salt rheum is one of the worst and unfortunately one of the most common of all diseases. How it reddens the skin, itches, oozes, dries and scales, and then does this all over again! Sometimes it covers the whole body with inflamed, burning patches and causes intense suffering, which is commonly worse at night.

Local applications may do some good, but they cannot permanently relieve. The disease will continue to annoy, pain and perhaps agonize, until the blood has been purified and the general health improved.

Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla, the good old reliable family remedy. It has given perfect satisfaction in thousands of cases. Insist on having Hood's Sarsaparilla, for no substitute acts like it. Get it today.

LOSES CASE FOR TREBLE DAMAGES

Jury Finds for Missabe Railroad After Inspecting "Trespass."

In Judge Dancer's division of the district court yesterday afternoon, a jury returned a verdict for the defendant in the case of Joachim Bohnsack against the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company.

Alleging that the railway company had so constructed a culvert over a stream which crosses its right-of-way near Grand Lake that during the rainy seasons of 1913 and 1914, water backed up from the culvert and flooded his property, Bohnsack sued for $2,400 or treble damages under the trespass statute.

Yesterday morning the jury visited the premises in question. A special car was employed in transporting the jurors to Grand Lake and return.

FAMOUS "WOLFER" HAS KILLED MANY ANIMALS

Fessenden, N. D., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a record of 187 coyotes for this spring and still after more, Adam Leismeister, the famous Wells county "wolfer," was recently here with another large batch on which he secured warrants for the bounty offered by the state. He gets $2.50 per head. Practically all of the wolves were caught in this county. Leismeister has a splendid pack of wolf hounds and few wolves ever escape when once seen in the open by his dogs.

THE BLACKEST "ATROCITY."

There has been a lot of talk, since the war began, about "atrocities."

Most of this talk has been baseless, and much of it has been deliberately devised to influence neutral thought.

But after all, you can take all these stories at their full value, mass them together, and still be unable to escape this tremendous fact:

That the greatest atrocity of all is war itself.

Two broken ribs and a libel suit all in the same month would be enough to satisfy a lot of people.

CLASS GOVERNMENT ALWAYS FAILS.

Judson C. Welliver has an interesting piece in the Century about Poland, in which he declares that Poland's democracy was a sham, because it was not the people, but an aristocracy, that ruled.

"The Polish aristocracy succeeded," says Mr. Welliver, "where other medieval aristocracies failed, and its success was Poland's ruin. The king was kept a figurehead, isolated from the mass of people largely by reason of the Polish custom of electing kings. It all looked very democratic, but in fact it merely served to keep aliens or weaklings on the throne much of the time. Thus suppressing the king and oppressing the people, the aristocracy became a military and political caste, lived in barbaric splendor, despised trade and industry, cultivated the arts of war and social decadence, affected the use of alien languages and devised institutions of government which ultimately deprived it of capacity for exercising the very governmental functions it had monopolized.

"The Poles called their country a republic, and their institutions might have justified their claim if only they had understood that a republican government must be truly representative. It must represent all the people; Poland's represented a select upper class only."

Though Poland's republic, not being a republic, failed through the selfishness and greed of its ruling class, the love of liberty was strongly implanted in the hearts of its people, and they are today as ardent lovers of freedom as the world knows. The tragedy of Poland's servitude, therefore, and the tragedy of its being laid waste now that it is the battleground where great issues are being fought, are all the more striking. Unhappily Poland is dismembered, blood-drenched in war, and its castles and hovels alike share in the wreck and ruin of alien strife.

Yet the fate of Poland's unrepublican republic, and the destroying success of its aristocracy, show that no class can rule for long to its own good or its country's good. Royalty, aristocracy, plutocracy, mobocracy—all have failed. All have wrought their own ruin in a riot of success. Selfishness, greed, oppression have inevitably followed where a class has won the power to rule; and these have sowed the seeds of destruction.

Any form of government would be ideal, perhaps, if selfishness could be eliminated. A wise and good despot could make his people ideally happy; though it is not good for mankind to leave to others the making of its happiness and well-being. A wise, kind and far-seeing aristocracy might rule over a contented and prosperous and happy people. But the temptations of power are too great. No royal family and no class can long withstand them; nor can any form of government long endure when the corruption of greed has entered its being. Oppression soon follows, and that leads straight to destruction.

In after times this great American republic will look back upon the days when Special Privilege, through the Old Guard Republican party, ruled the land as the period when the permanency of American institutions stood their greatest test. Had that rule endured, destruction would have followed as surely as the dismemberment of Poland followed the excesses of its selfish and venal aristocracy, as surely as the Reign of Terror rooted in the oppressions of the Ancient Regime in France.

No class is fit to rule. No rule is safe except that of the people. Popular rule may be uncertain, shifting, even vacillating. It may at times become the despair even of its most ardent supporters. But never at its worst is it so bad as the rule of a class. There is no fact that history more clearly demonstrates than that no class can be trusted with power over the common welfare.

It's still a little early to take the moth balls out of the bathing suit.

AN INTELLIGENT PARTNERSHIP.

The captain of industry will again become popular in the United States, and this sentiment has been brought about by the efforts of business men to satisfy the public in regard to their reasonable demands.—Judge Gary in his talk to the American Iron and Steel Institute in New York yesterday.

It was a good speech Judge Gary made to his fellow "captains of industry" yesterday, and there were many good and significant things in it besides the above.

Perhaps the crusade against big business was overdone. Certainly there was no lack of occasion for it. Whether or not it is over, though it now seems to be over, depends wholly upon how true it is that, as Judge Gary says, business men are determined to satisfy the reasonable demands of the public.

If the crusade against big business was overdone, certainly the raid upon the common prosperity to enrich the few regardless of the many was terribly overdone; and it was this raid that created the crusade. It is true that demagogues rode the wave, and sometimes rode it into places of leadership. It is also true that the American people are as quick as the next one to spot the demagogue and put him in his proper place.

If the raid upon the common resources for the benefit of the few is over, then the crusade against big business is over, for there is no longer occasion for it. Judge Gary believes that business is anxious to meet the reasonable demands of the public; and if that is so business and the people will have no difficulty in agreeing on a basis of stable and permanent and mutually profitable industrial activity.

It would be the saddest mistake imaginable for Special Privilege and its political agencies to presume upon the present amiable state of the public mind and to renew the old game of squeezing the public for inordinate and unfair private profit. If they avoid that mistake, there will be peace.

And certainly there should be peace. There is utterly no excuse, in the richest country on earth, for perpetual alarm and disturbance and revolt. The best way to keep industrial peace, as Judge Gary wisely said, is for business to avoid giving occasion for reasonable criticism.

The public and big business now seem to be in a reasonable and harmonious frame of mind. That's a splendid augury for prosperity. A wise partnership between big business and the public will be helpful and profitable to both, and the soundest statesmanship at this time is that which aims to maintain such a partnership.

What nation was it that put the scrap in scrapofpaper?

IS A WOMAN OLD AT THIRTY?

Boston is discussing the perfectly absurd question whether a woman is old when she passes thirty. The issue arose over a rule of the Boston Young Women's Christian association prohibiting women beyond that age and earning more than fifteen dollars a week from living at the Y. W. C. A. home.

The connection isn't clear. The purpose of the rule is plain enough. The facilities of the Y. W. C. A. are intended for those who need them most. Women earning enough to support themselves comfortably are not in that class. Hence the rule, and there seems to be nothing wrong with it.

But is a woman old when she passes thirty? Ridiculous! There was a time, perhaps, when a woman was expected to array herself in the drab of maturity when she passed thirty, and when if she was single she was catalogued as "spinster" or even "old maid." That time has passed.

Today, a woman has and asserts the right to be as young as she can feel and look. Her age—except when it comes to registering at the polls—is her business, and a matter of little consequence to anybody.

A woman who is old at thirty is very careless. She has no business to be old—to feel old or to look old. Cleopatra was thirty-seven when Antony and Augustus went to war over her. If it had not been for the incident of the asp she might have continued to charm mankind into her forties.

Age is a relative matter, anyway. Some people never are young; others seem never to grow old. Age is more a matter of the spirit than of the flesh, even though the flesh does perpetrate libels at times. Years have no terrors for the heart that stays young, whether it beats beneath the fair seeming of a woman, or beneath the more rugged exterior of a man.

The discussion is idle. Boston might as well end it. Even if the question were whether a woman is old when she passes forty, it would be idle still, because it cannot be answered. Some are old at twenty, some young at fifty. The question cannot be answered in the abstract—of womankind as a whole. Who has the courage to answer it in the concrete—of any woman as an individual?

European rulers assure us this is a "war of the people." Travelers from Europe assure us it is a "war of the monarchs." The European people say nothing, but just enlist and get killed or wounded. And once more Hon. Sherman is vindicated.

PAIR THEM.

Count von Reventlow, in his Deutsches Zeitung, breathes a defiance to the United States. Germany, he says, isn't afraid of anything the United States can do. "Further dangerous deeds of war by America against Germany are not to be feared because they are not possible. Also we do not forget certain interior difficulties in America." Whatever this may refer to, whether to party differences, which is folly, or to German-American sympathy with Germany, which is an insult to the German-American and an unfounded challenge of his loyalty to America, it is counting on something that does not exist. Finally, says the count, "we neither care for America's bluff nor for her deeds."

Now the best thing to do about a thing like this is to forget it. Germany is not responsible for the vaporings of an individual citizen, any more than we are.

THE GARDEN CURE.

The favorite prescription of one of the wisest of doctors is a garden.

He offers it as a cure for a wide variety of mental and physical ailments, and rarely does it fail to heal those who take it as directed.

Even well people need a hobby, something to distract their minds from the everyday problems of life, something to diversify their interests. There is no better hobby than a garden.

Are you too—well, too plump? A daily course of exercise in the garden is the best reducer imaginable, coupled with a little sense about diet.

Are you too thin? A daily course of exercise in the garden will tone up your system, increase your appetite and better your sleeping habits so that you will "put on flesh." A garden is the best anti-fat medicine there is, and it is also the best anti-lean medicine.

Are you one of those who are constantly writing to Dr. Brady about "stomach trouble?" Chances are you need exercise; and the garden will furnish it. A healthy appetite is the best digestive in the world, and you can quickly dig such an appetite out of your garden.

Are you "run down," nervous, irritable? Do you get out of the wrong side of the bed in the morning and stay out of sorts all day? Try the garden cure. It's a sovereign specific.

Do you need training in patience and persistence and self-restraint? A season's battle with the cutworm and aphis and currant worm, if you stick it out, will work marvels in the development of your character.

For man, woman or child, as a source of health, pleasure and satisfaction, and as a new interest in life, there is nothing to beat a garden.

It's well that people have been given so much time to practice up on the Star Spangled Banner before the Fourth.

WHAT TO SAY IS FIRST, HOW TO SAY IT SECOND.

The New York World recently offered prizes for essays by high school pupils, and published the six prize-winners—three by boys and three by girls. The World notes that the one that won the third prize for girls might, if it had been submitted as a school task, have been adjudged the best. Technically, it was more correct than those winning the first and second prizes, but the judges sought for thought rather than form.

And there's a point that pupils, as well as teachers, may well take a valuable lesson from. Form is important, but substance is still more important. Without substance, the form is nothing. The most perfect writing in the world, correct in every technical detail, is utterly valueless unless it says something worth while about something worth talking about.

"Many successful newspaper men," says the World in commenting on the case, "many business men who can write checks acceptably, many popular novelists, are shaky in spelling and sketchy in grammar. This enables copy-readers and skilled stenographers to earn a living. Form is important; it is too much neglected; the very great artist in expression commonly has it. But what counts is thought, power, will, concentration, energy, purpose, devotion. Young people, who have these will serve well their time."

The fact that successful men are sometimes "shaky in spelling and sketchy in grammar" is no argument against the acquirement of correct form. These people are successful despite this lack and not because of it. It is a handicap, but they are strong enough to overcome it.

But this fact IS an argument for the contention—if there is doubt enough about it to make it a contention—that substance is more important than form.

If a man has real thoughts on real things, he can hire—and cheaply, too,—people to put them in correct form. The only danger is that in handling real thoughts with a view only to correctness of form, these champions of correctness may grind the vigor of life out of them, substituting a dead and cold perfection of phrase for the living, glowing thought.

"Standardize strawberry shortcake," says one fiend. Isn't science and scientific management going to leave us anything natural?

PREPARDNESS--FOR WAR OR PEACE.

There is a new eruption of the demand for bigger military expenditures in this country—for a larger and better rounded navy, for more forts and guns, for a larger army.

Some of this comes from those interested in selling the materials needed. Some of it comes from partisans seeking party campaign material. Some of it comes from people who are thoroughly sincere and have no private axes to grind.

And something may be done about it. So long as we are to maintain an army and a navy, they ought to be kept up decently. We shall not try to have the largest navy and the largest army on earth. We are not yet ready to have the smallest, or none at all.

But a good deal of nonsense is being talked about this thing. For instance, the other day a university president preached "preparedness—not for war but for peace;" and he meant more ships and guns and men.

It is a question whether there is such a thing as preparedness for peace by armament. Armament is preparedness for war; and it brings war.

President Wilson is preaching preparedness for peace, too; but he means a standard of national conduct, of national fair dealing and national honor, that will avert war. He does not mean a policy of trimming or cowardice; he does not mean that a nation should be afraid to say that its soul is its own. He does mean that as an individual who deals fairly with his fellows, seeks only his own and treats others as he wishes others to treat him, does not have to go about armed to the teeth, so may it be with nations—with this nation.

Preparedness for war is one thing, and it is respectable to advocate it. It is hypocrisy to advocate it under the guise of "preparedness for peace." Europe has taught that lesson, and a nation that refuses to heed it is a fool.

It must not be forgotten that the people of every war-plagued state in Europe were for years beguiled by these same cries about the necessity for armament. They were told that the only guaranty of peace was a large armament, so they all got themselves large armaments. Now they are using them. That they would use them was inevitable. That's what they were for.

Europe was beguiled by these arguments for preparedness—preparedness for peace by putting on the trappings of war.

The result now lies before the world, reeking with blood and horror; and from it rises the heart-breaking wails of widows and the piercing cries of orphaned children.

Those industrious people who learned to pronounce Przemysl before are now reaping the reward of their labors.

LET WOMEN PLAN THE HOME.

Homes, mainly, are planned by architects.

Most of the architects—nearly all of them, in fact—are men.

Consequently homes are full of inconveniences and of an amazing lack of conveniences.

The trouble is that while the planning is done by men, it is the women who live in the homes and who must combat these inconveniences and lack of conveniences.

The remedy: More women architects to plan the arrangements of homes.

Madge D. Headley of the New York tenement house commission, speaking before the National Housing association in Boston, said that housing is a woman's problem, and that the expert help of women should be used more in home-planning.

Men architects, she said, insist on putting the sink on the opposite side of the kitchen from the stove.

Moreover, for many years they have been building kitchen sinks at a backbreaking height from the floor, when any woman could have told them what a comfortable and convenient altitude would be.

"The house," said Miss Headley, "is woman's workship." Yet for generations men have been planning the house and ignoring the comfort and convenience of those who have to work in it.

Surely there is a wide field for women in architecture, if only to advise in the planning of homes.

Let's try to have the aerial bridge in working order when those Chinese visitors come.

THE NEW DOCTRINE.

"Live and let live," the old idea, was kindly withal, though selfish, too.

"Let us live our lives and let others live theirs as they please," is what it comes to; and that's rather generous—and rather selfish, too, because in effect it is a bargain by which we do what we please so long as we let others do what they please.

But the old saying has a new form, given expression by A. W. Small in his book "Between Eras":

"Live and HELP live."

That's the new form, and it embodies the creed of every man and every woman who has felt the warmth of the new social conscience.

The city being the scene of renewed fighting, there seems ample reason for the suggestion that Przemysl should be pronounced "Pretty miserable."

WEST END ENTERPRISE.

The business men of the West end; who have heretofore won for themselves a conspicuous place in the sun, added to their laurels last night by the abundantly successful May festival for which preparations have been in progress for several weeks.

It was a little bit the best show of the kind Duluth ever has witnessed. It was a winner from start to finish, and it shows that when the people of the West end start out to do a thing, they do it right—and finish it. It was a credit to the West end and to Duluth, and Duluth is proud of the enterprise and public spirit it illustrated.

The Minneapolis Tribune referred to that Hague meeting as "the woman's peach conference," and is therefore entitled to special favors from the delegates.

The Difficult Peace

New Republic: We do not know how the war will end, what powers and forces it will leave in existence. For example, it is obvious that the settlement will be different if the Turks hold the Dardanelles, different if the English hold them, still different if Russia holds them. Upon this welter of bargains, negotiations, jealousies and hatreds which the war has precipitated, the idealists are planning to impose a more permanent settlement. They will have to make something more hopeful out of this brute balance of forces, memories, and ambitions. They must agree not only on what they desire but upon some common program which the people of Europe will accept and work for.

The principle of nationality is very much lauded, but it is a principle which is supremely difficult to translate into the reality of Southeastern Europe. Nationality is a term which has at least as much capacity for making trouble as for allaying it. It will not be easy to house in Europe at the same time pan-Serbism, pan-Bulgarianism, pan-Hellenism, pan-Roumanianism, pan-Islamism, pan-Germanism, pan-Slavism. It is possible to rectify frontiers, but a new frontier is no guarantee that it will not become a tariff wall across which ambitious little nations shall snarl at one another. There is a good deal of legitimate doubt whether a number of sovereign peoples, each fighting for its own advancement, is preferable to, let us say, a development of some kind of Federal democracy out of the structure of Austria-Hungary.

These difficulties are real ones, and they are only hints of what is meant by the settlement of Europe. When there is added to them the settlement of trade questions throughout the world it becomes clear that the best program of peace yet submitted is nothing but the vaguest and crudest of suggestions. The human mind has before it a problem such as it has never yet attempted to solve. The factors are more complicated and more restless and more elusive than any the intellect has ever played with. The peaceful settlement of Europe means a plan for the future development of the world, and finite man may well gasp at the task before him. Humility in the face of it is neither indifference nor cowardice. It is the rather feeble beginning of wisdom.

An Indian of Business.

Kansas City Star: Some time ago an old Indian in the West broke his axe handle and a farmer, taking pity on him, fitted the tool with a new supply. Then, noticing that the axe was dull, Uncle Josh decided to add to his kindness by sharpening it, and asked the Indian to turn the grindstone.

"Well, what is it?" wonderingly asked the farmer, noticing that the Indian persisted in waiting there after the job was done. "Is there anything else you want?"

"Yes, sir," was the prompt rejoinder of the Indian. "You no pay me."

"Not pay you!" exclaimed the farmer with a perplexed expression. "Not pay you for what?"

Unappreciated Genius.

Atchison Globe: There are different opinions as to what constitutes real accomplishment. As illustration, some towns don't seem to appreciate the man who knows his lodge ritual book by heart from cover to cover.

Many Girls Were Spies During the Civil War

From the New York Times.

Stonewall Jackson's valley campaign was one of the great deeds of history. Not since Napoleon's time have men been so dazzled as they were by that great exploit of his. Yet Stonewall might have gone down the valley in defeat had it not been for a little college girl named Belle Boyd.

The Union general, Shields, was quartered at Miss Boyd's house. He held a council of war there. Miss Boyd bored a hole in the floor of her chamber, which was over Shields' room, and lay there with her ear to it throughout the night. The next morning Stonewell Jackson was in full possession of the plans for a great battle and was able to defeat the Union army.

She kept up her valiant work for the Confederacy until the Union officers began to suspect her and Jackson ordered her to move from her Shenandoah home to Winchester. She had been arrested by the Federals and had flirted her way to liberty—for she was a pretty girl, despite the libelous photographs of her. In Winchester, Jackson conferred upon her a commission as captain in the Confederate army. By this time the whole North had become aware of the services she was rendering the Confederacy, and every officer and private was on the alert to get her. Yet she escaped until 1864, when she was caught on a blockade runner. Her captor lost his heart to her, deserted the navy and married her, and the Prince of Wales, afterward Edward VII, attended the wedding.

Belle Boyd is the most famous of spies, but there are many others who deserve at least as much fame as she won. One of them was Elizabeth B. Van Lew, who had the incredible courage to act as a Union spy in Richmond throughout the war.

She did not confine her activities to spying and reporting what she had discovered to the Union generals. She hid escaped prisoners in her house. She dealt out messages to soldiers in Libby from their homes.

There was one girl who won the rank of major in the Union army. She was Pauline Cushman, an actress, who became one of the best and most famous spies of the Union army. Often and often Maj. Pauline acted as a sort of advance guard to the Federal army. Twice the Confederates captured her, but on both occasions she escaped. The first time she came near being released after a first search, but a second revealed the fact that in a hidden recess in her garters there were orders from Thomas. She was about to be hanged when Thomas captured Nashville and saved her. Secretary Stanton commissioned her as major in the Union army, and she was the only woman who held that rank except Maj. Belle Reynolds, the wife of a captain in the Seventieth Illinois, who went to the war with her husband and performed such prodigies of valor that Stanton honored her with a commission.

Just a Moment

Daily Strength and Cheer.

Compiled by John G. Quintius, the Sunshine Man.

Most gracious God, I thank Thee for the gift of the Holy Spirit, the Comforter, pure as dew, cleansing as fire, tender and refreshing as the breath of spring. O blessed Trinity, ever engaged in giving Thy choice things to us, Thine unworthy children, accept my gratitude for which I have no words."—B. F. M.

Watchword: "A Lamb as it had been slain."—Rev. v, 6.

Reveal thy Christ, O God! Reveal the Divinity of sacrifice. Reveal that the Lamb was slain from the foundation. Reveal that Eden, not Gethsemane, was the world's garden. Reveal that the red and not the white blossom was the goal in Thy heart which made the dawn in my life. The veil of my temple is not sorrow, but its seeming accidentalness; rend thou my temple vail. I shall have a front view of the universe when I see the Lamb on the Throne.

—From "Day Unto Day."

If ye will not drive out the inhabitants of the land from before you • • • those which ye let remain of them even from the time of Abraham. It was to be possessed, cultivated, and enjoyed by them. Canaan is not a type of heaven, but of that inheritance of fullness of blessing which it is the privilege of God's people to possess even now. There are many hindrances to their taking possession of their lawful privileges. And there are sins and evil habits that have to be cast out, even after they have entered into these. Many of the enemies to their peace and progress come to the people of God under ensnaring colors. But here is a warning against all compromise with sin. The act of inheriting involves the act of casting out; the temptation to rest satisfied with attainment and to let the foes subsequently discovered remain, is often yielded to. Here, then, is the warning.—From "Broken Bread."

Dayton, Ohio.

Genius and an American Village.

New York World: Rochester, Minn., has about 8,000 inhabitants. It is a county seat and railway junction, with flour mills, a brewery and the usual schools, shops and churches. It has also two country doctors who have made its name known over the world.

These remarkable men, the Mayo brothers, are famous wherever modern surgery is known. Hereafter theirs is to be a name of note also in education, for they have determined to give the profits of the great surgical institution which they have built up in the remote Northwest to found a medical department in the university of their state. The sum named is $2,000,000. Only the most noted medical institutions of the world can command such resources as it will provide.

There is something peculiarly American in the way the Mayos have disregarded the supposed handicap of a village environment. Science knows no geography, and they grasped the fact. American also is the manner in which they have turned to the service of their prairie state the rich fruitage of their lifetime of toil.

A Horrid Plot.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Garlands for the Living.

Strew the fair garlands where slumber the dead,
Ring out the strains like the swell of the sea
Heartfelt the tribute we lay on each bed;
Sound the refrain of the loyal and free;

Sound the refrain of the loyal and free,
Visit each sleeper and hallow each bed;
Waves the starred banner from sea-coast to sea,
Grateful the living and honored the dead.

It is a right and beautiful custom to honor the blessed dead. No flowers that bloom are too lovely to heap on the grassy mounds beneath which rest the mortal dust of "the kind, the brave, the true, the sweet, who walk with us no more." Memorial day, dedicated in the beginning to the fallen comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic, has become a country-wide observance. With one impulse young and old seek out the cemeteries of the land bearing their tributes to the departed.

How often we wish that some of these bright garlands had been woven earlier! How often we wish we had placed them on heads of the living rather than now on the graves of the dead! At the funeral of a man prominent in his home town and active in every good work, some of his associates spoke in glowing terms of his genial personality and of his splendid career. Hearing the tributes the widow exclaimed: "Oh, if these men loved Charlie so, why couldn't they have told him before!" Pathetic mistake indeed to wait until the flowers of appreciation could be laid only on the dead man's casket!

That we withhold praise from the living is due more to thoughtlessness than to anything else. We forget how like bread to the hungry is the word of appreciation. Everybody likes to be praised. The desire is inborn. God put it in us. Thousands of people all around would do better work if we could break our glum silence once in a while in a few sincere expressions of approbation.

Walter Christie, athletic director of the University of California, out of his twenty-five years of experience, testifies that one-fourth of the efficiency of runners and hurdlers comes directly from the cheering of their comrades. Further, he says that the athletes slow down going past the rival "rooters" and speed up to the top notch when going by friendly grandstands. The boy breaks into his reserve strength when a thousand throats help him to do his best. And what is good for lads in running trunks is good for the rest of us.

Look about you for the faithful people who merit garlands of praise before the clods fall on their caskets. There is the teacher who patiently instructs your child, and often for a beggarly wage. Have you ever shown enough interest in her work to encourage her by word or note? There is the organist in your church. Have you ever commented on the fact that for ten years he has been as regular as the sun at his post and all the time, if may be, without a cent of pay? There, indeed, is the wife or husband of your bosom. How often have you whispered the words that make sunshine out of the darkest day? Let us quit being misers with praise. It is better to give some of it now than to wait till too late and try to crowd it all into the obituary. THE PARSON.

A WORD ABOUT JOURNALISM

By SAVOYARD

Washington, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Brisben Walker has offered forty acres—without the mule—for a site on which to erect a home for newspaper men. The tract is in the state of Colorado, far, very far, from the center of journalism in this country. There should be such a home, but it should be provided by the prosperous newspapers and periodicals of America. The inmates should feel that they owe their retreat, and any comforts therein provided, to the profession—not to an individual. The home should be located east of the Mississippi river, say the Piedmont of Virginia, or in the Cumberland valley of Pennsylvania or Maryland.

"The lust for ink has spoiled most worthy men," but it has made more than it ever marred. There is a fascination about the daily press that is brilliantly expressed by Balzac:

"Whoever has had a taste of that feverously busy, yet relatively idle and independent life; whoever has wielded that sovereignty over intellect, art, talent, glory, virtue, ridicule, aye, even over truth itself; whoever has occupied that rostrum which he erects with his own hands and discharges the duties of that magistracy to which he appoints himself of his own authority; whoever, in short, has been, though but for an instant, the mouthpiece of public opinion, which pours its approbation on him alone by its unanimous vote—such a one, when he is relegated to private life, looks upon himself as in exile, as a royal personage on the way to Cherbourg, and with what ardor does he put forth his hand to seize the crown once more when opportunity affords!"

The great French writer was speaking of a press infinitely inferior to that we now have in America; but he expresses the thoughts and sentiments of every man it for the profession.

It is the highest office there is—newspaper man—and as he that worthily discharges its duties is the noblest of citizens, so he who is false to his obligation is the vilest of mankind. A great newspaper, no odds what its opinions, conducted on high principles by capable and high-minded writers, is the right arm of civilization, whereas a paper, no odds how ably and brilliantly edited, that hawks its opinions about the market place, is an ally of the devil, and, thank God, as impotent for evil as it is false to good, for there is an instinct, a psychology, that guides the honest reader, and unerringly he discovers and marks the editorial that should end with the abbreviation "advt." The good newspaper exercises an influence that cannot be calculated; the base newspaper exercises no influence whatever, not even for evil, for it is as nerveless as it is despicable. Whoever bribes a newspaper fulfills that adage, "The fool and his money are soon parted," for a corrupt newspaper ranks with a perjured witness that is already discredited.

Jonathan Swift was the greatest journalist of his or any other day. He returned the victorious sword of Marlborough to the scabbard. He drove Godolphin from the treasury. He changed the political complexion of parliament. He brought Harley and Bolingbroke into power. He saved Paris from the clutch of the victor of Blenheim. He secured France from the armies of the triumphant coalition. He secured the crown on the head of the king of Spain. He made the treaty of Utrecht. And these he accomplished though Addison, Steele and Mainwaring were his journalistic adversaries.

What a giant Dean Swift was! Suppose his origin had been the great newspaper of our day, instead of the small pamphlet of the first quarter of the eighteenth century!

The New York Tribune abolished African slavery in the United States. But for the daily preachments of Horace Greeley in his great journal, Abraham Lincoln would have died as he had theretofore lived—an obscure lawyer in rural Illinois.

And it was a New York newspaper, fashioned as it was by the genius of a man in his youth a poor immigrant from the interior of continental Europe—it was the New York World that made Woodrow Wilson president of the United States. I shall never forget the thrill that came to me as I read that clarion editorial, and from that moment I never doubted the nomination of the man of my choice, for I knew that that lofty appeal affected tens of thousands others precisely as it did me.

But to get back. There ought to be a home for broken down newspaper men and women and it should be purveyed by the men who have made millions out of the newspaper business. It would do much to dispel any harsh thoughts one might have when reading the scorching phillipics Balzac fulminated against the publisher. If the great and prosperous newspapers would declare a "Writers' Day"—one of the 365 of the year—and devote the net proceeds of their publications of that day to a fund with which to build a home for indigent writers for the press, it would soon grow to ample proportions, for the readers and advertisers would surely respond with alacrity. It would not only be a noble charity, but a work of sublime justice.

The magazines and periodicals should deem it a privilege to participate in the movement on some equitable terms. The home should be located on a landed estate at least a square mile in area within half a day's journey of the national capital. Of course, there should be books to compose a large library—but this is no place for details.

I write unselfishly, for ere the thing is accomplished I will be in heaven, and I live in the devout and delicious hope that there in bliss I may be privileged to touch the hem of the robes of Horace Greeley, Charles A. Dana, George D. Prentice, Joseph B. McCullough, H. V. Redfield and that grand old fellow of Kansas City who died the other day full of years and of honors.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

What to Do for An Unconscious Person

FAINTING spells (also called syncope), shock from an injury, cerebral hemorrhage (also called "a stroke of paralysis"), narcotic poisoning from drugs or alcohol, loss of consciousness from epilepsy, uremia (due to kidney disease), diabetes, or sudden internal hemorrhage from the rupture of blood vessels or organs—these are a few of the more common causes of loss of senses, and every one should know what not to do for the victim as well as what to do. The unconsciousness is as likely to come on in the street or in a public place as in the victim's own home. Bystanders can do good or harm by their efforts to assist the unfortunate sufferer.

Don't Get Excited.

Don't rub the victim's wrists. Don't wring your hands and shriek at other bystanders. Don't raise the unconscious person up. Don't try to pour whisky down his throat and perhaps choke him to death—or, if he survives and happens to have shock or hemorrhage, add to the circulatory depression already present the further depression of alcohol. Don't throw water in his face. Don't be sure he is just drunk because you can smell alcohol on his breath—a drunken man is liable to all the accidents a sober man might have.

Don't let the police tote him off to the lock-up. Insist that the victim have medical attention. Policemen are as a rule phenomenally ignorant of proper first aid—and the less they know the more officious they are.

First Aid That Always Helps.

Give him air. Instead of carrying him into a warm room, cover him well with blankets or other clothing and apply heat to the feet in whatever form it is obtainable. Loosen the collar and neck-band. If it be a woman, see that her corsets and waist-bands are also loosened. Keep the head as low as the feet. If you telephone for a doctor try to have name and address ready—and don't just beg him to come right away and leave him to divine where he is needed.

If the unconscious person snores or seems to breathe with difficulty owing to apparent obstruction of the throat, turn him well upon one side, almost facing downward, and hold him in that position and the breathing will at once be easier. If he doesn't breathe at all, turn him over flat upon his abdomen with face turned to right or left and hands palm down on ground beside his face; then simply allow your weight to rest forward on your arms, with your palms upon the small of his back just over the lower ribs. This drives air out of the chest. Then release the pressure and rest a second or two. This allows the chest to expand again of its own elasticity and draw in air. Keeping this manipulation up sixteen times a minute constitutes Schafer's method of artificial respiration, and it is the most efficacious method known.

IN THE LITERARY WORLD

THE WELL CONSIDERED GARDEN. By Mrs. Francis King. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $2 net.

A flower garden isn't a mere target for seeds and plants. Anybody can insert seeds in the ground and produce bloom, but a mere collection of blooming plants is not a garden, any more than a dictionary is a story.

The well considered garden will be arranged with an eye to order, to color harmony and to continuity of bloom. Tulips are beautiful, for instance, but it would be folly to have a garden of tulips that would be bare after May. The well considered garden will be arranged so that the bloom will be continuous through the summer.

It would be folly, too, to put blooming plants together with no regard to color harmony. It is possible to create a color clash in the garden as violent as though a cat had jumped on the keyboard of the piano while an exquisite composition was being played. The well considered garden will have its colors grouped where they can abide in peace and harmony.

Another folly would be to hide short plants by tall ones—not only concealing their bloom but denying them the sunlight they need. The well considered garden will be an orderly garden.

There are few better qualified to talk of the "well considered garden" than Mrs. King, who, besides being president of the Women's National Agricultural and Horticultural association, is a flower-grower of long experience. One of the finest of gladioli, democratically cheap despite the beauty of its flame-pink bloom and perhaps more widely grown than any other except America, is named for her; and the naming was a tribute that was her due.

Mrs. King has written a book for which there was a need, and she has done her work with sympathy, understanding and wisdom. Gertrude Jekyll, herself a recognized writer on flowers, truly says of her in the preface she contributes to the book: "The author's practical knowledge, her keen insight and splendid enthusiasm, her years of labor on her own land and her constant example and encouragement of others, combine to make her one of those most fitted to direct energy, to suggest and inform, to communicate her own thought and practice to the willing learner."

Anybody who aspires to the possession of a flower garden worthy of the name will find interest and help in this book.

The Mystery and Glory of Life.

THE BREATH OF LIFE. By John Burroughs. Boston and New York: Houghton Mifflin & Co. $1.15 net; uniform with the Riverside edition. $1.50 net.

From "the summit of the years" John Burroughs, our gentlest and finest interpreter of nature, still continues to send out his charming studies in which science, humanity and the appreciation of the best in life and nature are exquisitely mingled. No better proof than his works is need of the truth of this reflection in the preface to this volume: "I am forced to conclude that my passion for nature and for all openair life, though tinged and stimulated by science, is not a passion for pure science, but for literature and philosophy." And it is this that gives the essays of this beloved old philosopher a charm which pure science, for all its value, cannot give.

"As life nears its end with me," so he begins his preface, "I find myself meditating more and more upon the mystery of its nature and origin, yet without the least hope that I can find out the ways of the Eternal in this or in any other world. In these studies I fancy I am about as far from mastering the mystery as the ant which I saw this morning industriously exploring a small section of the garden is from getting a clear idea of the geography of the North American continent. Yet the ant was occupied and was apparently happy, and she must have learned something about a small fraction of that part of the earth's surface."

Impenetrable as these mysteries are and shall ever be, it gives pleasure to probe them—greater pleasure still for those less likely to solve them than the ant is to embrace the geography of a world, to probe them in the gentle company of John Burroughs.

It is science, literature, philosophy, combined in one utterly charming whole.

It's All Here.

STANDARD CYCLOPEDIA OF HORTICULTURE. By Liberty H. Bailey. Illustrated. Vol. 3. F.-K. New York: The Macmillan company. $6.

This truly monumental work is now half completed. The other volumes are promised at intervals of two or three months, at which rate the set of six volumes should be completed by the end of the year.

The high standard set in the first volume is fully maintained. The work is authoritative, up-to-date, complete. It covers the ground thoroughly and effectively. It touches, with due regard to relative values, every conceivable subject bearing directly or indirectly on horticulture. While Dr. Bailey himself, besides the responsible task of editorship, has prepared a great many of the articles, wherever possible they have been contributed by specialists. Often several specialists combine in the preparation of a single article.

The work treats every plant that grows or can be grown in North America, including wild as well as cultivated types. It gives full descriptions and adequate cultural instructions. Moreover, the special articles are numerous, varied and full. Among those in this volume are the following: Ferns, including cultivation, propagation and the transplanting of hardy native ferns; Fertilization and Fertilizers; Forcing; Frost; Fruit-Growing; Garden Cities; The Gladiolus; Grafting; Greenhouses; Hedges; Herbs; Horticulture; Horticultural Literature, with an elaborate bibliography; Hotbeds; House Plants; Kitchen Garden; the Home Flower Garden, etc.

How to Be an Orator.

THE ART OF PUBLIC SPEAKING. By J. Berg Esenwein and Dale Carnagey. Springfield, Mass.: The Home Correspondence School. $1.75.

Besides a good deal of very practical advice to those who would train themselves for public expression, this book has the unusual merit of beginning at the foundation. Its authors realize that there is more to public speaking that counts for anything at all than mere rules for gesture, voice culture, phrasing, etc.; that there must be character, too. It's odd how many books there have been on this subject that ignored entirely the most important advice of all to would-be public speakers; to have something to say. Maybe that's why there are so many people engaged in the nefarious business of making speeches without having anything to say.

"Training in public speaking," say the authors, "is not a matter of externals—primarily; it is not a matter of imitation—fundamentally; it is not a matter of conformity to standards—at all. Public speaking is public utterance, public issuance, of the man himself. Therefore the first thing both in time and in importance is that the man should be and think and feel things that are worthy of being given forth." Better advice on public speaking never was uttered.

The book—which is a fat one—contains not only such discouraging matter as this—discouraging, that is, to most of those who do speak and shouldn't—but complete practical details such as the use of gestures, emphasis, pitch, inflection, delivery, vocabulary, etc.

The authors are well equipped for their work. Dr. Esenwein, after years of authorship and editorship, is now teaching, and Mr. Carnagey has had long experience as a teacher of public speaking. The volume will prove helpful to ambitious orators.

To What End?

WHITHER? Anonymous. Boston: Houghton-Mifflin company. 50 cents net.

The world is making progress in the sense of change and of passing from one thing to another—from something new to something newer, from one form of oppression to another, from one state of society to another, or to the same state in a new guise. Whither is it all tending." Is it upward as well as onward? If it were not, the creation would be a joke and life a farce.

The anonymous—and able and interesting—author of this little book examines the question asked by its title. He finds little progress in much so-called progress. In the haste and fury of modern life he finds much emphasis laid on externals, and little laid on the things of the soul. He is inclined to answer his question by saying that insofar as we have failed to measure up to the opportunities of Christianity, our progress is retrogression; that insofar as we have developed materially and failed to develop spiritually, our activities have been in circles rather than progressive.

"The old teaching—whether or not we share the exact shade of intellectual interpretation of ultimate mystery—brought a better sense of relative values than we have now, and a far greater chance of progress. Faith in soul is a better working program than faith in body. Working forward, however eugenically, toward the Perfect Brute is a poor hope at best. There can be no growth without the boundless, the illimitable, ahead, and the great hopes, undisproved, still shine before us. Life must be made great in its scope, its demand, if it is to achieve greatly."

The spirit of gentle pessimism that marks the essay is wholesome, constructive. We have no quarrel with it, and the study as a whole is challenging, penetrating. Yet in places the pessimism is carried, perhaps, too far. "There is much about reform, suffrage, the fighting of Tammany, measures for the physical betterment of factory boys and girls. There are many wrongs to right, for the most part centering in the body; but in spite of my sympathy with each distinct measure and my strenuous efforts to help forward some of them, I feel a great sense of lack."

The essential feature of the progressive wave that lately swept this country was its recognition of society's responsibility for the individual, of the individual's responsibility to and for society. It was human brotherhood recognized and concretely interpreted. It is true that it concerned itself directly with the things of the body—yet is there no measure of relief for cramped souls in efforts designed to give fair play to the individual and to make the world a fairer tribunal and a better place to live in? Are efforts for the betterment of factory boys and girls utterly unrelated to the deideratum of room for the souls of these boys and girls to expand and ascend? Is there room for soul-growth and the birth of higher aspirations in children robbed of their birthright of childhood by greed? Is there inconsistency between tangible efforts for the benefit of children so afflicted and the highest type of Christianity interpreted into action? We think not; and that is why the gentle pessimism of this essay seems at times too deeply hued. Yet it is suggestive, wholesome, helpful.

The German Spy System.

THE DOUBLE TRAITOR. By E. Phillips Oppenheim. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.55 net.

In this timely and strong and interesting novel Mr. Oppenheim undertakes to illustrate the thoroughness of the German spy system, and of the subtle world politics that led to the war in Europe. The hero, Francis Norgate, is a young Englishman who has been detached from the British embassy at Berlin because he has incurred the enmity of the kaiser. Returning to England he falls in with a jolly, wholesouled German, a dealer in crockery with a large establishment in England, but actually an astute German spy. By accident Norgate gets hold of Selingman's list of German spies in England, but every attempt to interest the English leaders in his discovery fails. So he turns double traitor, accepting pay from Selingman to become a German spy, and using his position to deceive the Germans and to find the proof he needs to convince the irritatingly supine British ministry of what he knows to be Germany's far-reaching purpose.

Incidentally, there is an entertaining romance between Norgate and the Baroness von Haase, who has been the confidential messenger between William of Germany and Francis Joseph of Austria.

The development of the plot and of German subtlety and remorselessness of purpose is skillful, and the story is certain to interest.

The Triangle Again.

MARY MORELAND. By Marie Van Vorst, author of "Big Tremaine," etc. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.35 net.

Thomas Maughm and his wife didn't get along at all. Thomas Maughm had a beautiful, capable and dependable stenographer, Mary Moreland. Thomas Maugham turned, in this juncture, to the beautiful stenographer for comfort, and induced her to run away with him. Circumstances interrupted the illicit arrangement in time to prevent guilt, but not in time to prevent arousing the jealousy of Mrs. Maughm. Circumstances again intervened at an even more dangerous point in the relations between Maughm and his stenographer, and again guilt was prevented—but no credit to either of them. Later, Mrs. Maughm kindly died. There is much intimate revelation of family bickerings. Both Mr. and Mrs. Maughm seem to have been unpleasantly loquacious about their family difficulties. Also, there is an incidental story about Amber Doane, a girl who "got into trouble," showing that pretty girls have much to contend with to keep honest. It is a poorly knit story, sometimes poorly written. Its morals are rather distressing. It will interest some, but it is hardly worth while if you have anything better at hand to read.

The Mystery of Sleep.

SLEEP AND SLEEPLESSNESS. By H. Addington Bruce, A. M., author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Scientific Mental Healing," etc. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1 net.

Besides an interesting psychological discussion, there is much of practical benefit in this book for those whose lack of mental poise sometimes makes sleep difficult—which includes the vast majority of insomniacs. Contrasting theories of sleep are presented, with emphasis on some recent experimental studies of practical as well as theoretical importance. Such questions as "What makes us sleep?" and "How much sleep do we need?" are answered. Insomnia is taken up, its causes reviewed, and a number of modern and sensible methods of treating are plainly stated.

A Realistic Novel.

THE INVISIBLE EVENT. By J. D. Beresford, author of "The House in Demetrius Road," "The Early History of Jacob Stahl," etc. New York: George H. Doran & Co. $1.35 net.

This is the story of a book and of a rather passionless liaison. Betty Gale, daughter of an English country rector, and Jacob Stahl, a very impractical and weak young author, decided to go away and live together, though Jacob had a wife somewhere and Betty was of a conventional type little prone to such doings. She did it, apparently, more out of sympathy for Jacob and out of a realization that she could help him brace up to his work and get somewhere. Moreover, she hesitated a creditably long time, and didn't seem to know her own mind.

When finally, Jacob played—unconsciously, perhaps—on her feelings to such an extent that she took the plunge, she was lacerated by her conscience. Anyway, though they didn't get married right away, they lived together happily—in the main—ever afterward. Under the stimulus of her presence, vacillating Jacob buckled down to work and managed to make a living by reviewing books while he wrote books of his own which finally got to be recognized, so that when Jacob's wife accommodatingly died they could get married comfortably and have children.

This volume is the third and last of a trilogy about Jacob Stahl, though it stands sufficiently by itself. But we don't think Jacob was worth a book, not to speak of a trilogy, though the book is well done, contains much vivid realism, and will interest many. We didn't like it nearly so well as "The House in Demetrius Road," a very vigorous picture of a dipsomaniac.

Among the Magazines.

Though anything new in magazines for children may seem impossible, the publishers of Something to Do, 120 Boylston street, Boston, not only have accomplished that, but something that seems likely to fill a "long-felt want." Its twenty-five departments all come under the head indicated by the title of the magazine: "Something to Look At," "Something to Color," "Something to Copy," "Something to Write About," "Something to Illustrate," "Something to Laugh At," "Something to Weave," "Something to Plant," etc., reaching to every imaginable wholesome and constructive and interesting youthful activity.

It is very likely that no other woman outside of those identified with the Red Cross and the hospital service has been so witness of such scenes as Mrs. Wharton describes in her article in Scribner's for June, giving the account of her experiences "In Argonne." At Chalons she saw an entire army, and beyond, as far as Verdun, she visited a number of ambulances where the wounded and sick were quartered. But the great scene of her journey was the charge of French infantry up the slopes in the battle of Vauquois. "Rap, rap, rap, went the answering guns, as the troops swept up and disappeared into the fire-tongued wood." Millions of "fans" are watching the scoreboards of professional baseball—no other sport is followed so closely by the man in the street. It is the game, beyond all cavil. "Fair Play," Lawrence Perry, writes of "Baseball—The Ideal College Game." Nearly every college in the country is adding to the playing fields, and students are being encouraged to get out and "play ball." He gives a stirring picture of what often happens at one of the big commencement games, one of the games when the pace-made is on and the old grads come back to be boys again. Gen. Goethals tells of how "The Human Element in Administration" became a greater problem than the one of engineering. Thousands have seen Dwight L. Elmendorf's beautifully colored lantern views of scenes in the national parks, but his photographs are rarely published. In this number there are sixteen full-page reproductions of views in the Grand Canyon, Yosemite valley, Mount Rainier park and the Yellowstone. They will prepare the way for the thousands who will journey westward this summer.

The leading article in the May number of The Writer, the Boston magazine for literary workers, is "Editorial Revision Needed," by Arthur Fosdick, which gives some amusing and instructive examples of misfit English in current books and magazines. William S. Johnson presents "Some Maxims of Art," and there are articles on "The Inverted Passive Condemned," "Seventy Collaborating on a Play," "Spring Styles in Fiction," and other literary subjects.

The June Woman's Home Companion is called "The Bride's Number" because it contains so many articles and stories relating to weddings. Families, in which weddings are soon to take place, will find in these articles many and varied practical suggestions of great value and interest—always with a view to obtaining the most beautiful effects at the least expense. Some of these articles are: "In Their New Home," by Charles E. Jefferson; "My Wedding Morn," by a bridegroom; "The Bride's Own Page," "The Bride's Cottage," "Handicraft Gifts for the Bride," "The June Bride and Her Attendants," "Her Wedding Veil" and "The Bridal Shower." In the same issue the campaign for better moving pictures is continued—over 100 films being recommended. Other articles deserving special mention are: "Mrs. Larry's Adventures in Thrift," "The Man Who Wanted to Die" and "'Made-in-America' Vacations."

The complete novelette in the June issue of the Smart Set entitled "The Wax Model," the work of G. Vere Tyler, is an unusual story in the manner of Max Beerbohm. It tells the tale of a fashionable young man who, passing one day one of the huge shop windows of Fashion, glimpses therein the wax model of a rare and beauteous girl and who in a spirit of wild adventure sets out, whatever the difficulties, to find the original. The story is one of the most unconventional love romances that has appeared in an American magazine in a long time. It holds the interest from start to finish.

Pap Jubb, the old veteran, had been dosed everlastingly with beef tea, milk, limewater and pepsin, until, as he said, "My stomach's a perfect swimmin' hole; there ain't a solid thing in it but pills." The June number of the Wide World Magazine contains a wide variety of exciting stories of actual adventures, covering a wide range of incidents. Among the true and thrilling stories is one relating a fall from a balloon that is only equaled by another, entitled "Imprisoned Beneath the Sea," which brings to mind exploits in a submarine. Mary Gaunt contributes the first installment to her first-hand work, "A Woman Alone in China," which abounds in interest and has its share of excitement. Among the many other striking features are "Blackmailing a Railway," "Interviewing Mount Robson," "Byways in Sind and Baluchistan," "Catching a Tartar" and many other splendid features, all superbly illustrated, principally by photographs.

In the Strand magazine for June will be found a strong article on the war, "A Prisoner of the Huns," by Dr. Hugh Cimino, who gives first-hand experiences during six months in German prisons. Another interesting war article is one by Maj. C. H. Bull, entitled "'French' Games," as played by the Indian soldiers at the front with the allies. Two interesting symposiums include "What Doctors Say About It," in which leading medical experts answer the questions, "Do We Eat Too Much?" "Do We Sleep Too Much?" "Do We Take Too Much Exercise?" "Can We Have Too Much Fresh Air?" and "Is Smoking Injurious?" and another on "Who Are the Most Untruthful—Men or Women?"

One of the most striking features of the June Century is an article called "Planmaessig and Ausgeschlossen," by the Dutch historian Hendrik Van Loon. By means of these two words, signifying the German method and the German belief in their incapacity to fail, he presents a novel interpretation of the German march on Paris, London, and Warsaw. Many dark matters are made plain by these words, familiar in Europe, which mean, respectively, "according to plan" and "absolutely impossible." Two other important articles bearing on the war are "Exit the Turk," by H. G. Dwight, and "Bulgaria's Dream of Empire," by T. Lothrop Stoddard. "With the war," says Mr. Dwight, "the Turk definitely makes his exit from the central arena of European politics;" and he shows further that though Turkey has gone wrong through attempting to manage affairs it was not capable of, yet as a small nation the real virtues of the Turks will have a chance to manifest themselves. Bulgaria, as Mr. Stoddard points out, is prevented by her dream of reviving an imperial past from permitting any equilibrium in the Balkans. Most readers will be amazed to learn of the immense forward strides this country has taken within the last forty years and of the strength, intelligence, frugality and industry of her people. Both articles are illustrated with many unusual photographs.

If you are interested in the productivity of the soil, or failing in that, if you have any national pride you will enjoy reading C. J. Blanchard's article on "The Desert's Awakening," which appears in the June number of Woman's World. This is a vivid setting forth of the great work of reclamation which our government has been carrying on in the west. The foreword, by Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior, will attract the attention even of those accustomed to consider the cultivation of western lands as entirely outside their interests. "My Salary and Temptations," the fourth of the country parson's interesting revelations of the ministerial viewpoint, will incite comment and some degree of humor. Mandy Higgins greets us again with her cheery philosophy and ingenious plans in "Hearts and Housekeeping," by Nina Sutherland Purdy.

In the June American Magazine, Ellis Parker Butler tells an exceedingly funny boy's story. It is entitled "The Son and Father Movement," and it narrates the amusing adventures which a father had with mosquitoes, and other physical discomforts, when he decided to spend the night with his small son in order to keep on intimate friendly terms with the lad. The climax of the story produces a big laugh. Other fiction is contributed by Walter Prichard Eaton, who tells the first of a new series of love stories; Rebecca Hooper Eastman, whose story is entitled, "Their Second Meeting"; David Grayson, who goes on with his serial, "Hempfield," and George Fitch, who writes a love story of 1921 entitled, "Cupid vs. Geography." Ida M. Tarbell contributes another article in her business series entitled, "The Golden Rule in Business." Margaret Anglin writes a narrative of personal stage adventures including experiences with many celebrities, the title of her article being, "The Ambitions of an Actress."

Cartoons and press comment on the Lusitania disaster are presented in a sixteen-page supplement in the current Cartoons magazine. Taken together, the cartoons make a vivid chronicle of an event which may yet be the most serious in the history of the nation. As a relief from war, a number of illustrated articles are offered, the most interesting of which is one on "Cartooning a Japanese Election." The text is supplemented by Japanese cartoons taken from Osaka Puck, Tokyo Puck, and several of the vernacular newspapers. Fred C. Kelly's diary, "Seeing America First," is coupled with Donahey's cartoons on the same subject, showing the "new west" as it appeared to these adventurers. In honor of the Bismarck centenary a section is devoted to Bismarck in German caricature, the cartoons being taken from the German comic journals of a generation ago.

STATE SHOULD BUILD ROAD

Twin City-Twin Ports Highway Urged By J. D. Park.

State Alone Can Build Highway That Is Satisfactory, He Says.

In an article on "The Benefit of a Twin City-Twin Ports Highway," which appears in the June number of Minnesota Motor Moves, Dr. J. D. Park, president of the Duluth Automobile club, shows just what is to be gained by such a highway and an account of the work already done toward that end. State help alone will bring this road to a reality, the writer declares.

Dr. Park's article follows in part:

Function of the State.

"We of Duluth have been striving for the last four or five years to improve the road between Duluth and the Twin Cities, and find it very difficult to overcome conditions as they now exist. We have centered our efforts on the bad spots on this road and now it is fairly passable, yet, with the results obtained, we have reached the conclusion that it is utterly impossible for Duluth to be connected with the Twin Cities by a good, adequate highway without state help, and by 'state help' I do not mean that the state should help us to build this road, but that the state should come in and build this road itself.

"When I speak of roads being constructed for the use of the automobile, I also have in mind that what is good for the automobile is good for the farmer, for the land in amongst the stumps and rocks in that district is the most fertile in the United States. But we must have the roads connect the different counties and centers of population and it behooves us not individually, but as a state proposition to build these roads as state roads and maintain them as state roads. The money you will see will come back many fold.

"In connection with improving this road, Duluth has contracted to spend $35,000 in building a bridge and approaches across the St. Louis river out of Duluth. Minneapolis and St. Paul have done a lot on their end, but what is wanted is help for the intervening counties. Pine county, with an assessed valuation of only $6,000,000, cannot maintain a trunk line of forty-seven miles. Their money is needed on their rural roads, so you will see that it is utterly impossible for us to have a good road between Duluth and the Twin Cities unless the state brings its influence to bear and practically builds this road and maintains it.

Drive on North Shore.

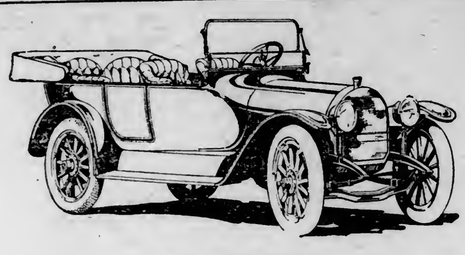
"I can conceive of nothing more beautiful than the drive up the north shore of Lake Superior that one of our wealthy men is building, at a cost of $1,000,000, which will connect the road to Port Arthur. From Duluth to the north we are connected by a good road with the Iron Range with its mines, the only ones of their kind in the country. Turning west we have the great water power plant, the lumber mills, the United States steel plant costing $25,000,000, and the St. Louis river and dells, and Fond du Lac, the old Astor trading post. When one reaches Duluth he has something to see and to enjoy. The nights are always cool and there is no discomfort from the heat in summer time. The question is how to get there by automobile and it does not seem right that the people of Minnesota, with the wealth which they possess, should be deprived of highways that should be theirs.

Other Highways.

"I might say that there is a road being built from Grand Forks and Crookston through the northern part of the state to Duluth, another one following the Northern Pacific from Brainerd to Duluth. Yet the road connecting the Twin Cities is far from what it ought to be.

"I am not biased enough to think that the Duluth road is the only road in the state, but I have been over the state and all their roads are better than ours, so that I do not feel I am pushing our cause too much when I say that I think the first link of a good highway system in the state of Minnesota should be the connecting of Duluth and the Twin Cities."

KING EIGHT IS POPULAR



THE KING EIGHT.

Joseph T. Peacha, Jr., manager of the Interstate Auto company, agent for the King car, reports that the new eight-cylinder machine is making a hit with local motorists. The demand for this car is big, he says.

PACKARD MAKES 12-CYLINDER CAR

Announcement of New Model Sensation of Auto World.

A tumult of rumors relating to a 12-cylinder Packard has been crystallized by the announcement of the twin-six. A model is expected within the next few weeks.

In external appearance the new car retains all of the well-known Packard characteristics. It looks much like previous models, except that the hood is shorter, the radiator tapered to conform with it, and the running boards set two inches nearer to the ground. The reduced length of hood permits of a shorter wheelbase.

When the hood is lifted startling changes are revealed. The twelve cylinders are there all right, but it is hard to realize that such a power plant can be so compactly stored away.

The twin-six motor is exactly what its name implies, two six-cylinder blocks arranged in V form with an angle of 60 deg. between them. This small included angle allows such accessories as starting motor, generator and water pump to be placed in the standard Packard position just inside the frame, so that the space between the cylinders is left clear and the valves are conveniently accessible without the removal of a single accessory. The acute angle between the cylinders also permits of a narrow frame at this point, with the result that the turning radius is even shorter than before.

Those who have seen the new Packard twin-six motor and driven behind it, say that it marks the greatest advance in motor car design since the passing of the primitive one-lunger. It is claimed that the man at the wheel is given an absolutely new sensation in motoring. The Packard company says that advance demonstrators will be shown in the principal cities within a few days.

BIG OUTPUT OF FORDS.

Company Turns Out 90,359 Cars in Two Months.

In the last two months the Ford Motor company has produced the enormous total of 90,359 cars, this including 43,849 cars in March and 46,510 cars in April. This not only insures the completion of the production of 300,000 Ford cars between August, 1914, and August, 1915, barring the totally unforeseen, and rebating of all Ford purchasers within that period, but it means that the goal will undoubtedly be reached before the promised time, Aug. 1. In fact, the three hundred thousandth car will probably leave the Ford assembly early in July, and the production pace will continue almost unabated, so tremendous is the demand this year the world over for Ford cars.

Then on Aug. 1 will begin the task of rebating about $15,000,000 to Ford purchasers in accordance with the terms of the Ford profit sharing announcement. Each of the 300,000 or more Ford purchasers will be mailed, of course, an individual check, probably of $50. The postage alone on this huge mail means at least $6,000.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT THE FORD FACTORY

The plant itself occupies an area of fifty-six acres. There are 47.5 acres of floor space under cover in the factory and administration buildings. The annual business of the Ford Motor company approximating $150,000,000, means a production of $3,157,894.74 per acre. The machine shop covers ten acres. There are 5,500 machines of various kinds, including 1,000 drill presses of both the multiple and single spindle types, 700 turning lathes, 300 punch presses, several of which weigh 50 tons each, and have a pressure power of 900 tons to the square inch.

A total of 12,124 tons of structural steel, approximately 10,000,000 bricks, and 172,000 barrels of Portland cement were used in the construction of the plant.

A total of 471,485 square feet of glass were required. (In the world-famous Woolworth building in New York city, there are 3,250 windows, calling for 86,000 square feet of glass. So it will be seen that there is enough glass in the Ford factory and administration building to supply the demand for windows of five and one-half Woolworth buildings).

There are 15,000 Ford employes in the factory proper, representing forty-nine distinct nationalities, among which are spoken more than 100 different dialects.

In the administration building the average number of employes is 600.

In the thirty-five branches located in thirty-five of the principal cities of the United States, and the twenty-four assembling plants situated in twenty-four different cities of the United States, the average number of employes approximates 6,000. A grand total on the Ford pay roll in excess of 21,000 individuals. If these represent the average family of five members, the Ford Motor company will sustain directly a city of 105,000 population.

The power plant, with its seven great engines of the gas-steam type develops 45,000-horse power and is without doubt the largest individual unit of any power plant in the world.

A total of forty tons of coal per hour are required for the steam used in connection with gas. In the gas-steam engines and fuel consumption an average 2,200,000 cubic feet of gas are consumed daily—equivalent to care for the home needs of a city of 100,000 population.

About fifty miles of belting are required in the machine shop.

About one and one-half miles of traveling conveyor track is used in the factory. This includes the final assembly conveyors, and those which deliver units to them.

Exactly one and one-half miles of mono-rail in the factory, from which electrically operated trolley cars are suspended.

In addition to this there are two main crane ways, one 860 feet in length and 56½ feet in width and the other 900 feet long and 40 feet in width, carrying huge traveling cranes with a capacity of five tons each, all of which facilitates the handling and transporting of stock within the factory.

There are 150 gallons of machine oil per hour used in the machine shop for lubricating the vast array of machinery.

A total of more than thirty barrels of machine oil per hour are consumed by the furnaces in the heat treating department.

AUTO MAGAZINE TO FEATURE DULUTH

Editor Will Spend Ten Days Here Gathering Data.

The July number of Minnesota Motor Moves, the newest automobile publication of the state, will feature Duluth and local institutions.

Herbert Dore, editor of Motor Moves, arrived in Duluth yesterday for the purpose of becoming acquainted with the city preparatory to writing the articles. He will remain here about ten days.

Minnesota Motor Moves came into existence last month. It will devote a great share of its space to good roads and better highways for Minnesota.

UPHOLSTERY FOR AUTOS CHANGES

Waterproof Cloth Substituted for Makeshift Leather in Many Cases.

The scarcity of good leather, compared to the proportion of demand, has brought about an important change in automobile upholstery which, according to many manufacturers, will soon become universal. Instead of using makeshifts in the form of imitation leather, many motor car builders already have adopted a high grade of waterproof cloth, declaring that it is even better from the standpoints of wear and comfort than the best leather they could secure.

While it was not difficult to secure enough leather for upholstering the 50,000 cars built a few years ago, the difficulty in securing an ample supply has steadily increased until this year, when it is expected that fully half a million cars will be produced in this country. Today it is practically impossible to obtain enough good leather to go around.

Realizing that the shortage in the leather market would become more acute as the number of cars increased, automobile men have encouraged experimentation on the part of cloth manufacturers during the past year or two. The result is a non-cracking, non-heating, weatherproof fabric of such attractive appearance that many of the leading manufacturers are planning to use it on their entire output this coming season.

An added advantage of the cloth upholstery is that it contains no oil or "surface finish" which may come off in warm weather and mar the clothing of passengers. Nor does the smooth surface hold dust. A light brushing will remove any dust that may collect. Grease and oil spots can be removed with soap and water.

The best of the closed cars have always been equipped with cloth upholstery, as it was handsomer, more comfortable and cleanlier than the leather. But until a few years ago this was not extended to open cars because of the difficulty of waterproofing and cleaning the cloth.

AIM AT EFFICIENCY.

More Attention Now Being Directed Toward Scientific Management.

Scientific management, or efficiency in factory working methods, is receiving greater attention today than at any time in the industrial history of this country. Better pay for workmen and better working conditions are among the results gained.

As showing the widespread interest in the subject, it is interesting to note that the management of the Franklin Automobile works at Syracuse, N. Y., has been obliged to arrange a regular schedule of appointment for the visits of men of science, manufacturers and publishers who desire to study scientific management in its practical application. Franklin officials, as well as all advocates of efficiency, see in the system a great forward movement in the relation of capital and labor, for without satisfaction and unity of interest there can be no real efficiency.

COLE EIGHT BEATS N. Y. EXPRESS TRAIN

Film Camera Takes 'Movies' as Driver Outstrips Fast Flyer.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 29.—Traveling at better than sixty miles an hour in a Cole eight, E. H. Baker of Buffalo beat the Empire State express just outside of Buffalo last Wednesday over six miles of paved highway. Mr Baker went out with the express intention of defeating the fast train, and he accomplished his purpose. So firmly was he convinced that the Cole could outrun the train that he went to the expense of having a motion picture operator in another Cole eight ahead take moving pictures of the Cole eight as it passed the train. Mr. Baker was accompanied on the test by newspaper representatives of Buffalo.

The run was in every sense a sensational one, and Mr. Baker used every precaution in making preparations for the race. Two cars were sent in advance to clear the road for the fast-flying car and the car carrying the motion picture machine. As the train came through the tunnel at the edge of the city, the two cars started forward, caught it, then passed it. After passing the train the first time they slowed down and allowed the locomotive to take the lead. Then the foot throttle was pushed down and

Only 5% PLUS for the Best "Non-Skid"

PRACTICALLY all Non-Skid Tires that make serious claims to non-skid efficiency cost you 10% to 30% more than Plain Tread Tires of same brand and material.

Goodrich Safety Tread Tires cost you only 5% more than our plain tread tires.

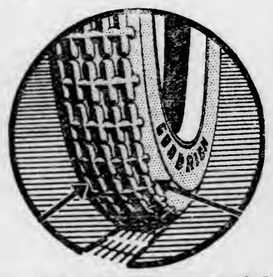
Here's how and Why!

o o o

FORTY-FIVE years of Rubber working (in what is now the World's largest Rubber Factory) has taught us a few Kinks and Short-cuts that are not common to the Trade.

One of these now comes to the help of your Pocket-book.

Through the simple process of Thinking Hard (and being Candid with ourselves) we have found a Short-Cut to make the best Safety Tread ever put on a Tire cost us only about 5% more than it costs to make the Plain-Tread of similar quality.



Goodrich Safety Tread Tires cost you only 5% more than our own or any other plain tread tires.

Size	Goodrich Safety Tread	OTHER MAKES "A"	"B"	"C"	"D"
30 x 3	$9.45	$10.55	$10.95	$16.35	$18.10
30 x 3½	12.20	13.35	14.20	21.70	23.60
32 x 3½	14.00	15.40	16.30	22.85	25.30
34 x 4	20.35	22.30	23.80	31.15	33.55
37 x 5	33.90	39.80	41.80	49.85	52.05

By testing out these Goodrich Safety-Tread Tires on a large number of Taxicabs (where they could be competitively observed and carefully checked up at the end of each day's use) and by comparing their actual performance with that of our own, and other Plain-Treads, of much higher price, we have had this fact forced upon us—

Viz:

—That there is SURPRISINGLY more Mileage, in Goodrich Safety Tread Tires, than in our own, or any other, make of Plain-Tread Tires.

So MUCH more Mileage, for only 5% more Cost looked so good to us that we decided to give Car Owners the benefit.

Here's what we now offer you!

The best Non-Skid Safety Tread ever put on the market, and it costs you only 5% more than our best plain tread tire.

CHANGEABLE DESTINATION SIGNS FOR JITNEYS IS THE LATEST

A. W. Youngquist of Duluth Invents Appliance for Buses and Will Manufacture Them Here.

THE NEW JITNEY SIGN.

Duluth will shortly house a new factory.

A. W. Youngquist of 1824 West Second street has announced the invention of a jitney sign and he is now organizing a company to manufacture these for jitney owners and drivers. Mr. Youngquist has applied to the federal government for a patent on the sign.

The jitney sign operates similarly to those used in street cars, there being a double-roller inside of a small box. In addition, there are two electric lights, which make the sign visible at night. The roll, on the inside, contains a series of possible destinations, the various parks, the ball grounds and the circus grounds.

Recently Commissioner Silberstein gave his approval to a sample of signs.

Mr. Youngquist announced this week that he is desirous of obtaining a partner for his enterprise and in the forming of a company, so the manufacture of the signs may be begun at once.

FINDS CONDITIONS FOR SAFETY IDEAL

Labor Writer Inspects the Plant of Chalmers Company.

Ida M. Tarbell, well known authority on American conditions, and special writer for the American Magazine, visited the Chalmers Motor company the other day. She took an inspection tour of the factory, under the direction of a Chalmers official.

The primary reason for Miss Tarbell's visit was the accumulation of data preparatory to a series of articles on safety precautions in automobile plants. She pronounced the conditions existing throughout the Chalmers factory to be ideal. Commenting upon the findings of her tour she said: "I was especially impressed by the exquisite landscape gardening which sets off the Chalmers plant. It is one of the most beautiful factory sites in the whole country.

"Quite frequently in my travels I find that a classic facade often conceals a gloomy and unhealthful interior. But I find that the Chalmers plant is light and airy throughout. Sunshine and ozone, you know, are two very necessary and at the same time two very rare complements of the modern factory.

At the termination of her visit at the factory, Miss Tarbell was taken for a spin about Detroit in a Chalmers master six.

NOW OFFICER IN OVERLAND COMPANY

H. T. Dunn Becomes Director and Vice President of Corporation.

Harry T. Dunn, president of the Fisk Rubber company since its inception, has acquired an interest and has become vice president and a director of the Willys-Overland company of Toledo, Ohio, and in the future will devote the major portion of his time to that organization.

It was under Mr. Dunn's leadership that the Fisk Rubber company attained its present prominence and prestige in the tire industry.

This connection culminates a long-time personal friendship that has existed between Mr. Willys and Mr. Dunn. The rapid growth of the Willys-Overland company, and the plans which Mr. Willys has formulated for its future development, brought about the present arrangement.

The personnel of the Fisk Rubber company and the Willys-Overland company will remain unchanged.

NEW COLES WORK WELL.

Cars Taken Without Preliminary Test Behave Like Veterans.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 27.—Cole eight-cylinder cars, taken direct from the factory with no preliminary work, have behaved like veterans in speed trials, and are destined to improve with driving. From Indianapolis to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a distance of 481 miles, the Cole averaged 29.15 miles an hour. From Fresno, Cal., to San Francisco, 200 miles, an average of 28.7 miles an hour was made. On a trip from the factory in this city to Cincinnati, 130 miles, the Cole traveled 29.4 miles an hour. The real speed record was made on a trip from Athens, Ohio, to Indianapolis, 281 miles. On this run the car averaged better than thirty-three miles an hour, showing at times a speed of more than sixty-five miles an hour.

KISSEL MAKES FAST RUN.

Boston Man Says KisselKar "36" Has No Equal.

H. M. Pickering of Boston is one of many prominent owners who is willing to swear that there is no "four" on the market comparable to the KisselKar "36." Mr. Pickering bases his judgment partially on a recent tour of approximately 550 miles which he declares was accomplished without once shifting gears. He says:

"We finished with a perfect score, nothing at all being done except to feed gas, oil and water to the car.

"We went by the way of New York city on high and took big hills without half trying. We reached New York in twelve hours, stopping in New Haven for lunch and making other short stops at various towns, with a forty-minute stop at the Bronx for a call.

"The car, without anything being done to her, was out for a fifty-mile spin the next day and was running as sweetly as ever. Our gasoline record on the trip was eighteen and one-half miles to the gallon."

TRADE IN SOUTH AMERICA

Studebaker Man Goes to Buenos Aires to Develop Business.

To assist in developing the rapidly growing business of the Studebaker corporation in South America, D. B. Richardson has sailed from New York for Buenos Aires. He will be located for some time in the capital of the Argentine republic while giving attention to the work of the Studebaker organization in that territory. Mr. Richardson speaks Spanish fluently, and is in entire accord with the civilization of Spanish-America.

This is not the first time that Mr. Richardson has engaged in the foreign service of the Studebaker corporation, as he represented it in Mexico City for several years. He is well known throughout Central America, and brings to his work south of the equator a knowledge of conditions that will aid in cementing the bonds of commercial interest between the United States and the republics of the southern hemisphere.

Mr. Richardson was one of the last of the American nationals to leave Mexico City while our troops were at Vera Cruz. He passed through all the revolutionary turmoil previous to that time, and during the street fighting between the forces of Madero and those of Felix Diaz and Mondragon he was constantly under fire as he drove a Studebaker automobile while removing Americans from the danger zone.

THREE AUTOS RUN INTO THE OCEAN

Lincoln Highway Film Party Given Send Off in New York.

After running the three machines, one being a Studebaker, into the Atlantic ocean at Coney Island to make it a true ocean-to-ocean tour, the Lincoln highway moving picture party was given a send-off from the city hall in New York by Borough President Marks. Mr. Marks represented Mayor Mitchel, who was out of the city, and gave letters to the mayor of San Francisco and the president of the exposition. The start of the tour was Saturday, May 15, and it is estimated that the machines will be on the way about three months, as it is not planned to travel more than seventy-five miles a day. A long parade of automobiles followed the transcontinental tourists across the river and over the first stretch of highway in New Jersey.

The night preceding the start there was a banquet at the McAlpine hotel attended by many men prominent in the New York automobile world and newspaper men who are in touch with them. For the Studebaker corporation speeches were made by F. R. Bump, branch manager at New York, and R. C. Sackett, the representative who is making the tour. Both pledged the hearty support of their company to the cause of good roads and the work of the Lincoln Highway association.

On this tour Mr. Sackett will be the connecting link between the Lincoln highway representatives and the hundreds of Studebaker service stations which dot the road from New York to San Francisco.

MUDDY ROADS NO CHECK FOR DODGE

Prisoners Foiled When Fleeing Over Rough Highway.

When six prisoners from the Bismarck, N. D., penitentiary selected the worst roads leading from that city as an avenue of escape recently, they acted without due consideration for the resourcefulness of the United States marshal in that district.

Noting that the roads were in such wretched condition that even the farmers were riding into town on horseback, the prisoners selected the worst road and succeeded in getting some seventy miles southwest of Bismarck before their getaway was noted.

Casting about for a method of transportation, the marshal and his deputy selected the new Dodge Bros.' car, owned by the Lambert & Smith livery service, as the best available machine. The party, well heeled with firearms, started over one of the worst roads in the state, and made the trip successfully, although running hub-deep most of the distance. Four of the prisoners were captured and loaded into the car, which then made the return trip with seven passengers over the same road.

In spite of its heavy passenger list and the terrible road conditions, the Dodge Bros.' car made the last thirty-six miles of the return trip in one hours and twenty-five minutes.

LATEST FORD JOKES

What are the latest Ford jokes you've heard?

Send them in to the Automobile Editor of The Herald by Wednesday of each week.

Judge—What's the charge?

Sergeant—Stealing a Ford, yer honor.

Judge—Search the prisoner.

Children in one of the lower grades were reading about the early pioneer days in the West. One of the pupils came to the sentence, "The hunter looked about for a ford."

"Does anyone in the class know what a ford is?" asked the teacher.

"I know," said a little girl in the rear. "It is something like an automobile."

A man, tired of his Ford car, attempted to sell it, but could find no buyer. Finally, after trying every method to get rid of the machine, he inserted an advertisement in a newspaper to the effect that anyone wanting the Ford car could have it by calling at his house. He left the machine out in front of the house just before he went to bed, and when he awoke in the morning eight other Fords were standing alongside his car. (This is an old one.)

An owner of a Ford car took a party of friends out in the country one bright Sunday afternoon.

After he had traveled about eight miles, the machine suddenly stopped. The owner got out, looked around, crawled under it several times and finally gave it up. There was nothing wrong with the engine, the wheels or any part of the machinery. By accident he happened to look into the tank and he discovered that he had forgotten to put any gasoline in before leaving.

Big Chalmers Month.

The month of April was the second largest month in point of business in the history of the Chalmers Motor company. Present indications are that May will show the largest business the Chalmers company has ever enjoyed.

STARTS TRIP AT MIDNIGHT.

R. B. Knox of this city started out at midnight Thursday on an automobile trip to the Twin Cities.

In his Franklin car with Mr. Knox were Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Wall and E. M. Gaylord. They left at midnight for the Twin Cities, their plan being to run all night, reaching St. Paul early in the morning.

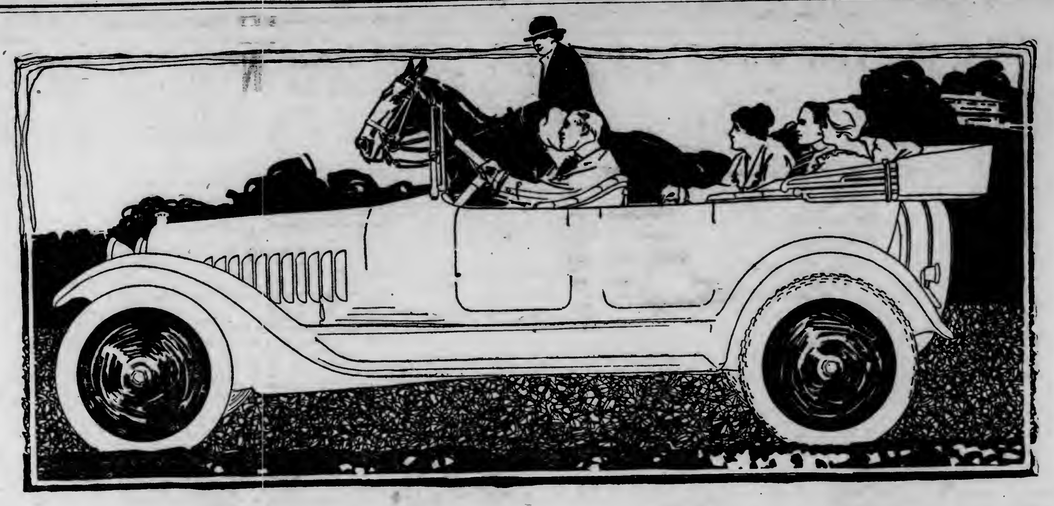
The motorists expect to return to Duluth early next week. They will attend the annual opening of the St. Paul Auto club on Memorial day.

CHALMERS FOR HUERTA.

Ex-Mexican Chief Buys Two Cars for His American Home.

Victoriano Huerta, ex-provisional president of Mexico, who has come to America to live, leasing a great country house at Forest Hills, L. I., where he has located his family and menage, has purchased two Chalmers cars, both of which have been equipped with Ajax tires. He has a very large family and many dependents to tote around, and the cars and tires will both be tested to their limit, no doubt.

Of the thirty-seven riders who entered the recent endurance run of the Englewood Motorcycle club of Chicago, twenty-three finished with perfect scores. The run was from the Windy City to Michigan City, Ind., by way of Gary. The return trip was made through Valparaiso, making a total distance of 183 miles. A twenty-mile an hour schedule was maintained.



New Chalmers Six $1400

The Best Car made under $1650

You are about to select your motor car.

You may be undecided among a number of makes.

In your mind Chalmers quality is doubtlessly associated only with cars costing from $1650 to $3200, at which price Chalmers models have previously been sold.

Here is an item of great interest to you—the Chalmers "New Six" with all the Chalmers quality selling for $1400.

If you are figuring on a car to cost from $1000 to $1200, the Chalmers "New Six" at a couple of hundred dollars more will give you everything additional that you can desire in a motor car.

If you are figuring on a car a little more than $1400 in price, look at this one and see if it does not give you all that you expect to get at the price you have in mind.

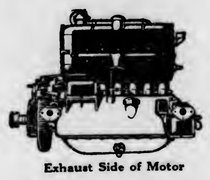
The "New Six" at the lowest price at which a Chalmers car has ever been built is now ready. Demonstrations are being given and deliveries made.

Side View

Built to An Ideal

Built to an ideal—tested for 20 months before releasing to the public—this new car at $1400 is the best car made under $1650.

It is a 5-passenger touring car—120-inch wheel base. It has a six-cylinder high-speed motor with small bore and long stroke (3⅛ by 5 inch.)



Exhaust Side of Motor

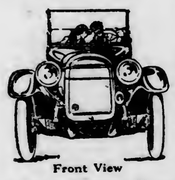
"Different" Front Appearance

Owing to the valve-in-head type and very compact construction the radiator is somewhat narrower and higher than the common practice.



Front View

It gives the front of the car a very attractive and entirely distinctive appearance.

You can recognize your car and be recognized immediately by this "difference."

The entire valve mechanism is instantly accessible by removing the dust-proof and oil-proof aluminum cover. It has unusually large size nickel and Tungsten steel valves in the heads of the cylinders. A brake on the cam shaft insures even torque.

Overhead Valve Mechanism

Perfect Lubrication

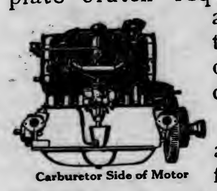
Lubrication System

Large streams of oil pour over the naked shaft on the main bearings and the valve mechanism is more thoroughly lubricated than in any other motor ever built.

Fool Proof Clutch

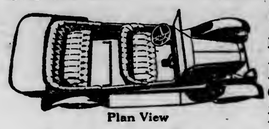
The oil pipe is fitted with fins for cooling the lubricating oil. The dry-plate clutch requires no attention and is the nearest to being "fool-proof" of any clutch yet devised.



Carburetor Side of Motor

The motor's trim appearance and freedom from "patched on" equipment indicates the improvements and refinements made possible by nearly two years' study and experimental work on this one car.

But even with the mechanical principle exactly right, what values it, if the car isn't comfortable to ride in?



Plan View

It is big and roomy; five people can ride comfortably in it.

A look into it shows ample width of both front and rear seats. The control lever arrangement allows easy entrance from either side. You will appreciate the real leather upholstery.

New Cantilever Principle

Then it applies a new principle in spring suspension.

It is fitted with a cantilever spring far and away the best even of cantilevers.

Cantilever Spring

Freedom From Repair Bills

Beautiful body lines and absence of projecting springs give the most attractive rear appearance we have ever seen in a motor car.

Rear View

And the sturdy rear axle, the substantial frame, the torque tube (which you will not often find in cars at this price) all give security and freedom from repair bills.

As a matter of good judgment on your part in buying a motor car, you should call and examine the Chalmers New Six-40. Ride in it and see if it isn't the car you want.

COMMENT ON PLAYS AND PLAYERS — WHAT THE PRESS AGENTS PROMISE

WHY does a stock company manager produce a play like "Lena Rivers" following one like "Seven Keys to Baldpate"? Walter S. Baldwin's answer is that there are as many people who still enjoy authors of the class of Mary Jane Holmes as there are who enjoy George M. Cohan, and that there are ten or twenty productions of modern plays, where there is one of an old-fashioned play.

The ideal play from a stock company standpoint, would be one that would appeal equally well to the rich and poor, old and young, regular theater-goers and occasional ones, old-fashioned people and ultra modern ones. But until such plays are written Mr. Baldwin evidently plans to break about "fifty-fifty" and try to please all of the people some of the time rather than some of the people all of the time.

What was the best play of the season in New York?

The Drama society, which is similar in its aims to the Drama league, has attempted to answer the question.

To sound the opinion of its membership, the directors of the Drama society recently sent forth a questionnaire on the merits of the list of twelve good plays to which the more than a thousand members had been sent during the season now drawing to its close. The members were asked what were the three best plays listed, what plays were listed that should not have been, and what plays were not listed that should have been.

Of the host of answers received, John Corbin, the secretary of this organization of playgoers, has made this analysis:

"The most striking feature of the answers is the wide variety of judgments represented. Of the plays on the society's list every one, with a single exception, was chosen by one or more members for first place. The exception is 'Alice in Wonderland,' which, obviously, cannot deserve the distinction. It was, however, freely chosen for second and third place, and as freely stigmatized as unworthy of being listed at all.

"Yet, in spite of the variety of opinion, the consensus was distinct. 'Androcles and the Lion' received almost as many votes for first place as the next two plays together. But in the competition for second place the divergence of opinion again became manifest. Two such different plays as 'Pygmalion' and 'Daddy Long-Legs' ran an almost dead heat, 'Pygmalion' winning out by only three votes. Both 'Androcles' and 'Pygmalion,' it will be noted, had comparatively little favor with the general public, whereas 'Daddy Long-Legs' was far and away the most popular comedy of the season, being distanced only by two melodramas. 'On Trial' and 'Under Cover,' and two farces, 'Twin Beds' and 'It Pays to Advertise.' 'The Phantom Rival' and 'Marie-Odile' were close competitors for second place, falling behind 'Pygmalion' by only eight and nine votes, respectively. 'Outcast' was sixth, 'Polygamy' seventh, and 'Inside the Lines' eighth. Other plays received at most three votes.

"For second place the leading choice was 'Outcast,' 'Androcles' came next, 'Polygamy' third, 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' fourth, 'Pygmalion' fifth, 'Marie-Odile' sixth, 'The Phantom Rival' seventh, and 'Daddy Long-Legs' eighth.

For third place 'Marie-Odile' was an easy first; 'Androcles' was again second, and 'Polygamy' again third. Then followed 'The Phantom Rival,' 'Outcast,' 'Daddy Long-Legs,' 'Inside the Lines,' 'Pygmalion' and 'Alice in Wonderland.'

Many members made the obviously just comment that among plays of such widely different characters it was virtually impossible to make a satisfactory grading. More important perhaps than the number of times a play was named as 'The' best, is the number of times each play was named for one of three places. Following are the two lists:

"Ranked as to number of times chosen as 'The' best:

1. 'Androcles and the Lion.'
2. 'Pygmalion.'
3. 'Daddy Long-Legs.'
4. 'The Phantom Rival.'
5. 'Marie-Odile.'
6. 'Outcast.'
7. 'Polygamy.'
8. 'Inside the Lines.'
9. 'A Midsummer Night's Dream.'
10. 'Twelfth Night.'
11. 'Children of Earth.'
12. 'He Comes Up Smiling.'

"Ranked as to number of times chosen for first, second or third place:

1. 'Androcles and the Lion.'
2. 'Outcast.'
3. 'Marie-Odile.'
4. 'Pygmalion.'
5. 'Polygamy.'
6. 'The Phantom Rival.'
7. 'Daddy Long-Legs.'
8. 'A Midsummer Night's Dream.'
9. 'Inside the Lines.'
10. 'Mary Goes First.'
11. 'Alice in Wonderland.'
12. 'He Comes Up Smiling.'

The Imperial quintet of Chicago, which opened an indefinite engagement at the New St. Louis hotel last Monday, is scoring a hit with the patrons of the Rose garden.

The members of the small musical organization are all well known, several having appeared here with traveling musical productions in recent years. Robert Roberts, who plays the piano, was here with "The Soul Kiss." "The Isle of Spice" and the "Kiss Waltz" companies.

The quintet consists of Miss Leeta Corder, soprano; Thomas Purcell, violin; Robert Howard, cello; Prentice Watkins, drum and xylophone, and Robert Roberts, piano. In addition they are all expert players on the banjo and mandolin.

The Imperial quintet will appear at the Rose garden every evening.

OLD-FASHIONED LOVE STORY AT LYCEUM

Baldwin Players Will Jump From George Cohan to May Jane Holmes.

Twenty or twenty-five years ago the most popular novelist in America was undoubtedly Mary Jane Holmes.

This prolific writer was the author of scores of books, and every one of them seemed to strike a popular chord. Apparently she wrote only "best sellers" and it is doubtful if any modern writer has equalled the vogue she had.

Next week, beginning with the Sunday matinee, the Baldwin Players will offer at the Lyceum, a dramatization of what is probably her most popular novel, "Lena Rivers."

The change from "Seven Keys to Baldpate" to "Lena Rivers" will be a most abrupt one. Tonight the company will be seen for the last time in George Cohan's famous play, an up to the minute, breezy, comedy melodrama, the most modern of modern types. Tomorrow afternoon the company will open in an old fashioned love story of the style of two or three decades ago. "Lena Rivers" makes no pretense at being anything more than an old fashioned love story, but the play contains enough comedy relief to make the more serious part of the story stand out. The most severe criticism made of Mary Jane Holmes' works was that they were overly sentimental, but it is claimed that this fault will not be found with the play of "Lena Rivers," which has been hailed as a very charming love story told in a wholesale way.

The story and the play deal with the life of a young girl, whose birth is clouded in mystery. She grows up dependent on the charity of friends, but by her simple and wholesome character she wins the affections of the man she loves. The part should be well suited to Miss Anne Bronaugh, who will of course be cast in the title role. Mr. Minturn will be seen in the part of the man, and others who will appear in the cast include such favorites as Miss Margaret Lotus, Miss Geraldine Blair, Miss Maud Melville, A. Romaine Callender, Mark Elliston, Walter Baldwin, Jr., William Mortimer and George Fox.

"Lena Rivers" has not been presented in Duluth for ten years or more, and the play will be entirely new to the younger generation of theater goers. The older patrons of the Baldwin Players will probably remember both the play and the book, however.

The abrupt change from a modern play of the type of "Seven Keys to Baldpate" to an old fashioned love story is in line with the established policy of Mr. Baldwin. "I know I can't please all of the people all of the time," he said yesterday, "so I try to please as many of them as I can, at some time. There are many of our patrons who like these old fashioned stories and don't care for modern comedies. Those who do like the old fashioned kind have no opportunity to see them unless we revive one of them occasionally, for there are no companies on the road presenting such plays. They are all looking for farces and melodramas, or crook plays or problem plays. There's enough of the old timer about me to make me like one of these old plays occasionally."

POPULAR FEATURES AT NEW GRAND

A highly artistic and thoroughly enjoyable entertainment is the present bill at the popular New Grand.

Heading the bill is the famous Oriental, Ching Yuen Lee and his clever company of assistants. A strong array of Chinese talent is displayed throughout, and everyone in the troupe performs many remarkable feats. Gorgoods scenic environment adds to the beauty of the offering.

Something new and unique is the ball-bouncing novelty as presented by the Alexander Brothers. These clever boys make the little rubber spheres perform all sorts of gyrations, beat tattoos and otherwise entertain to the delight of their audiences.

The Clipper Trio, three clever young men with excellent voices, offer a diversion in harmony singing and clever nonsense.

The photoplay feature, "The Valley of Humiliation," tells a human interest story in two reels. One of the Helen Holmes railroad stories, "A Fiend at the Throttle," and a comedy, "When Samuel Skidded," are other photoplays on the bill.

The Hearst-Selig News projects many interesting views of events that make world's history.

An event of great interest is the booking of the $800,000 series of adventure stories, "The Diamond From the Sky," by the Grand management. The first one of these pitcures will be shown next Tuesday and Wednesday and features Lottie Pickford and Irving Cummings.

Among the vaudeville offerings for next week are the Emily Smiley players, in a comedy playlet, "One Woman's Way." George Dixon, the musical Jack-In-the-box; Hawley and Hawley, in a novelty up-to-date skeedaddle, and Frish, Howard and Toolan versatile entertainers, are among the other turns.

"Sally Castleton Southerner," features Merrian Nesbit in three reels of Civil war drama. Two comedies round out an enjoyable entertainment.

SCENE FROM "LENA RIVERS" To Be Presented All Next Week By the Baldwin Players at the Lyceum.

STAR PROGRAM ALL WEEK.

Emily Stevens and Elsie Janis Will Appear in Films at Rex.

The world of make-believe will be portrayed at the Rex Monday and Tuesday in the society drama, "Cora," an emotional play that will tug at the heart strings long after the show has gone.

Miss Emily Stevens plays the important role of Cora. Miss Stevens is a niece of Mrs. Fiske and supported Mrs. Fiske for eight years, making her debut with her aunt as the maid in "Becky Sharp."

The latest story of Charles E. Van Loan, Saturday Evening Post author and sporting expert, "Little Sunset," will be a baseball event at the Rex Wednesday and Thursday. "Little Sunset" Jones, son of a professional baseball player, is a fiery redheaded little bantam about 6 years old, about three feet high, and all boy—every inch of him. He scraps, he umpires; he does all the things that the American small boy is wont to do, even to having a big league outfielder as his idol. "Little Sunset" beats a much larger boy in a fight as to which is to be the mascot of the team. In the unfolding of the story, actual views of a crack Pacific coast league team in action, will make the picture of absorbing interest to fans. Close-up pictures of the batters at the plate, thrilling stops, the famous hook-slide of the New York Giants and many other authentic details, making this the most true-to-life picture of the national sport ever shown. In addition to this, imagine the 6-year-old boy actor as the favorite pal of the big outfielder. The big fellow's mothering care of the lone youngster, reveals a depth of affection of the strong for the helpless, wherein one touch of nature makes the whole world kin.

In "Betty in Search of a Thrill," beautiful Elsie Janis will be the star at the Rex Friday and Saturday. Everybody remembers Elsie Janis in the "Caprices of Kitty." She is the same Elsie, as the title suggests. Betty's hair-raising experiences will keep one on the ragged edge of mental precipices.

The travel series of Paramount pictures will be given Friday and Saturday of each week.

At the Sunbeam.

"The Drug Terror," the film that teaches better than worlds the loathsomeness of the great drug evil, will come to the Sunbeam tomorrow.

This film has been produced to answer the ever common question as to whether or not anything can be done to suppress this evil trade. Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt in co-operation with the Sociological Research society arranged with the Lubin Film company to present this picture which teaches the horrible truths about the fast spreading menece of opium, its derivatives, and similar drugs.

Charlie Chaplin, who is on every change at the Sunbeam, will appear tomorrow in the "Cabaret." Monday and Tuesday, Ruth Roland, the Kalem star, will be seen in another installment of the "Girl Detective" series. Pathe News with fresh information of what is taking place in the war zone is also on the program.

"By the Sea," a two-reel Essanay comedy, featuring Mr. Chaplin, will come to delight the Sunbeam patrons. On Wednesday and Thursday Duluth Masons and their families will have the opportunity presented to them of witnessing in pictures the recent ceremonial of the Knights Templars in Minneapolis, commemorating their fiftieth anniversary. Of special importance to Duluthians is the fact that the Duluth commandery won the prize for the best showing in parade in which 5,000 Knights Templars participated.

HOW LONDON VIEWS GABY

"More Than a Clever Dancer With a Talent for Decolletage."

Saturday Review, London: The state of the English theater is for the moment so desperate that it is pure gain to discover anyone even remotely connected with it who really has the courage and conviction to express herself in no halting or ambiguous fashion. Anything is better than the management of Mr. Kipling's "Tomlinson."

Whatever we think of Mlle. Deslys (playing in Barrie's "Rosy Rapture" at the duke of York's theater) as a social or esthetic portent, we must at any rate acknowledge that she exists—exists in an abounding fashion entirely her own. English bishops have had to take note of the fact; responsible representatives of a democratic nation have sat in council upon her; and she has not been ignored by princes.

She can claim with impunity to be more important, certainly more wealthy and more competent, than the most exalted of her friends. The envious may say that these things simply mean that modern civilization is no better than it should be; that the success of Mlle. Deslys is an instance of the triumph of unscrupulous advertisement; that she has come to the front owing to her unfaltering resolution that the public should see a good deal of her. But envy is a shallow counselor.

Mlle. Deslys is more than a lady whose hats are as wonderful as her fees. She is more than a clever dancer with a talent for decolletage; though in the word decolletage we are getting rather near to the secret of her genius. There are hundreds of lovely, hard working and thoroughly conscientious young women who on obscure British stages publicly wear less than Mlle. Deslys, but will never earn more than enough for a cheap lodging.

No; the appeal of Mlle. Deslys is not to the magisterial opera-glasses of the county council. Decolletage is an accident and not the essence of her career. Her ultimate appeal is to the secret sympathy we all of us have for what is insolent, brave, and self-assured. There is a frankness and singleness of purpose in Mlle. Deslys which completely vanquishes in her audience all the heart searching scruples with which they are accustomed to live. It thrills her audiences to share for a crowded hour or so in the abounding pride of life, the freedom from questioning, the utter rout of all that is formal and discreet, which are declared in all that Mlle. Deslys says or does. We are content that she should pull the noses of our vigilance committees and the legs of her admirers.

For a brief holiday time, at any rate, we have done with compromise: we are carried away as by the stark sincerity of a child who candidly glories in its own disgrace. What if the silly world be content to arrange itself for the benefit of Mlle. Deslys as one big sugar plum asking to be devoured?

That is no very modern thing, to be viewed with alarm as a sign of decadence. Essentially it has always been so.

The modern part of the business—the posters, interviews, star-and-garter advertisement—does not obscure the truth that Mlle. Deslys is not a freak of yesterday. She lived before the war, and she will continue to live after the war is finished. She lives unclouded at the duke of York's, with the war for company. The war has changed, and will change, many things. But it will not change Mlle. Deslys. She is too honest and too real.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

The other evening in Springfield, Mass., Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, summoned before the curtain during his farewell performance, did a thing rather unusual among theatrical stars in the same special field. He called attention to the coming of Robert Mantell to the Court Square theater, of that city, the following week in a series of Shakespearean performances, trusting that the people of Springfield would show appreciation of the efforts of Mantell to offer the best in literature and the drama in a worthy way. He especially commended Mr. Mantell's performances to the young people as offering an opportunity to obtain an education in the drama which they could acquire in no other way.

That is, to say the least, somewhat out of the ordinary, but characteristic of the fine personality of the English artist.

The deferred production of "Trial By Jury" and "The Sorcerer," by de Wolf Hopper and the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera company, will be made at the Forty-eighth Street theater. Digby Bell, who originated in this country the role of Dr. Daly in "The Sorcerer," has been especially engaged for the present revival. Mr. Bell was particularly successful with this personation upon the previous occasion. His reunion with Mr. Hopper at this time will take many New York theater patrons back in memory to the days when both were prominent in the famous McCall Opera company at Wallack's and the Bijou theaters and the Casino.

Frank Reicher, well known character actor and at one time general stage director for the late Henry B. Harris, has signed a contract with the Lasky Feature Play company whereby he will have a suitable period of time to devote himself to producing photodramas under the management of this concern. Mr. Reicher is already on his way to the studios of the company, in Hollywood, Cal., where he will confer with Cecil B. de Mille, director general of the company, and make a study of photodramatic work before undertaking charge of his first picture.

Julian Mitchell and Leon Errol, it was announced yesterday will collaborate in staging a new edition of the "Ziegfeld Follies." The book and lyrics are to be supplied by Channing Pollock, Rennold Wolf and Gene Buck. Louis Hirsch and Dave Stamper will contribute the music, while the scenery is to be devised and executed by Joseph Urban.

When "The Show Shop," which has ended its engagement at the Hudson theater, starts on tour next season, Douglas Fairbanks, the featured member of the cast, will not be with the organization. His role of Jerome Belden will be acted by Robert Fraser.

Irwin Cobb, the war correspondent, wrote a play some time back which he called "Back Home." It was submitted to various managers, but missed production. It is now to be given a hearing and will get its first performance at Atlantic City next month. It is not a war play, but the general hint is given that it is a Kentucky story. At any event, one of the principal characters is a negro, which role will be created by Willis P. Sweatnam. Thomas A. Wise is also to have one of the leading parts.

David Belasco was declared the winner in a suit brought against him for plagiarism by Aurelia Bachman, who claimed that "The Case of Becky" infringed on a play which she had written and had submitted to Belasco, called "Estelle." The court held there was not sufficient evidence in one or two slight similarities which were pointed out. "The Case of Becky" was written by Edward Locke and played by Frances Starr.

James K. Hackett, having become a millionaire by inheritance, will produce a play called "The Bannock Mystery." The tryout was in Hartford, Conn. At the Lambs' Gambol for the benefit of the actors' fund next month George V. Hobart's new allegory, entitled "Why?" will be presented for the first time. Although he has clung to the allegorical form of "Experience" in his new work, the subject matter of course, is entirely different. The play tries to present the world-old riddle of why people go to war. It is in five scenes, and at the Gambol will enlist the services of James O'Neil, Robert Mantell, William Farnum and Arthur Byron.

It is stated that Granville Barker may secure a lease on the Little theater in New York for next season. Wenthrop Ames, who started the movement in the United States, has been ill. It is also known that he desired a theater with a little larger seating capacity and may confine his future operations to the Booth theater, which is also under his direction.

The first spring try-out to be made by Selwyn and company will be Rol Cooper Megrue's new play, "Under Fire," a war play in which the war is in the main subsidiary to the love story. "Under Fire" will be played by a large cast, including William Courtenay. Among the others in the company are Violet Heming, Phoebe Foster, Felix Krembs, Arthur Shaw, Edward Mawson and Florence Wollerson. The play begins in London before the commencement of war, when the rumors of it are of the vaguest. Its next act is in Belgium, where it catches the war at its very beginning. From Belgium the scene changes to the trenches, in open country, and to Paris.

Profit by Our Experience

Having sold gas ranges for twenty years, we, naturally, have acquired a great deal of knowledge regarding their construction, and are in a position to know the advantages and disadvantages of the different lines.

We know that Best's Double Action Gas Range is the best constructed gas range on the market, and judging by the number we have sold there are a lot of other people who know it.

Quality in an article is like ability in a person; and the price of an article is like the wage a man is willing to work for. Some work for $1.00 a day—some for $5.00 a day. When you hire a man, you don't base your selection so much on the price of his hire, but on his worth—on what he can do. When you buy a Best Double Action Gas Range you get something more than iron and steel, you get ECONOMY, EFFICIENCY and CONVENIENCE.

ON THE IRON RANGES

ORE SHIPMENTS CONTINUE LARGE

Despite Gloomy Reports of Small Margin of Profit.

Hibbing, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although mining operators especially the independents, claim because of low prices of iron ore down the lakes and high cost of mining and shipping, the margin of profits is small, shipping from the Mesaba range continues large.

From the Great Northern properties more than 50,000 tons of ore leave for Superior docks daily. More than 60,000 tons of ore is being shipped daily over the Duluth Missabe & Northern road, it is reported. This capacity is far in excess of that shipped any day last year.

The Mahoning, Leetonia, Grace, Aura and Commodore, being mined by the Great Northern Iron Mining company are putting out 800 car loads ore daily. These are all open pit.

The Hull Rust, the large producer for the Oliver Mining company, is shipping nine train loads of ore daily. The Shenango has begun shipping on a larger scale than at any time before this season. The Morris has also begun heavier operations. The Clark and Chisholm, underground mines, have begun shipping ore from their stockpiles. Their shafts are also working but all underground work has been stopped. The Myers is shipping from its stockpile, but is not using its shafts or working underground.

New Independent Properties.

Among the independent properties which will begin operations as soon as the new freight rates on ore go into effect, will be the Dean mine at Buhl. Ore from this property is shipped over the Great Northern railroad. It is planned, officials say, to ship 300,000 tons from this property during the season.

This property is leased by the Todd-Stambaugh Mining company from the Arthur Mining company. It is an open pit and is one of the largest jobs of stripping ever done on the range. The Dean mine was electrified throughout May 1, and is one of the first to become electrically equipped on the range.

Electricity, however, promises to become motive power for nearly all the mines in this section. The Great Northern company has asked the village of Hibbing to submit a proposition to furnish electricity for the North Uno mine. Other mines may also be equipped electrically before long.

Independent properties at Nashwauk and Keewatin are said to be awaiting the new rates before beginning shipments. That these mines, even if they do not operate, will remove whatever stockpiles they have, is the belief of officials here.

ALL BASEMENTS TO BE MADE SANITARY

Chisholm Council Orders Merchants to Obey Village Ordinance.

Chisholm, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council, in adjourned regular session yesterday afternoon, received the report of Fire Chief Nitch as to the condition of the basements of the town. Trustee Mahne proposed that fire hose coupling to fit the local hydrants and the hose of the Hibbing fire department be purchased, so that a repetition of the fiasco during the Sapero fire could not occur again.

Wants Claim Settled.

DISTRESSING RASH COVERED FACE

Head and Ears of Child. Kept Getting Worse. Very Irritating. Face Quite Disfigured. Used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. Trouble Entirely Healed.

Clay Center, Neb.—"I want to tell what Cuticura Soap and Ointment has done for my little girl. Her face, head and ears were just completely covered with a sore eruption. It made its appearance in the form of a rash and kept getting worse and spread until her face and ears were almost a solid mass, very irritating and causing great itching and distress. It made her restless at night and her face was quite disfigured.

"I tried different remedies suggested but nothing we did brought any relief. Finally I decided to give Cuticura Soap and Ointment a trial. I washed her face with Cuticura Soap, dried it lightly and applied Cuticura Ointment. I could notice an improvement with the first application and in two weeks' time the trouble was entirely healed." (Signed) Mrs. G. O. Slick, July 31, 1914.

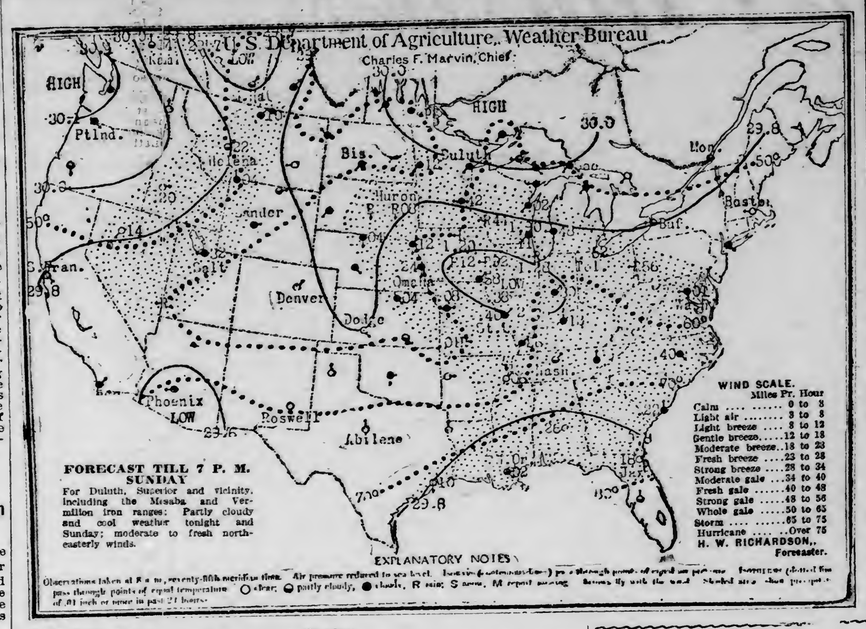
OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER



PARTLY CLOUDY

At this writing the threatened showers have not come and only cloud traces decorate the sky. If popular wishes avail anything the present sunshiny conditions will continue indefinitely, but if wishes were horses all beggars would ride. The air is fine and bracing and, in all, the day, so far, is delightful, a welcome change from yesterday's clouds and gloom.

A year ago today was fair. The sun rose this morning at 4:18 and will set this evening at 7:52, giving fifteen hours and thirty-four minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Further rains fell during Friday or last night over central and southern states and the Far West. Heavy rain fell over Iowa, Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin. Cooler weather prevails in Missouri, Southern Illinois and the Plateau region; elsewhere the twenty-four hour temperature changes were generally unimportant. Hot weather continues in Florida."

PLAN ALREADY CARRIED OUT

Masons of Duluth Have Fund Used for Drugs for Needy.

Does Work of Free Dispensary Suggested at New Duluth Banquet.

The plan launched at the banquet of the New Duluth Commercial club by Bishop James McGolrick to have the city of Duluth provide funds for a free medical dispensary, has been received with much commendatory comment since it was voiced; but the plan has been anticipated, and such a fund is in existence and is being used daily by physicians of the city.

The city government is not behind the fund, but its existence for two or three years has relieved many cases where people are destitute.

Masons Back of Fund.

The Masons of Duluth established such a fund about three years ago. Physicians have instructions in regard to the fund to the effect that where they prescribe for people who are unable to pay for the medicine required, the prescription is to be sent to any drug store, filled and charged to the Masons. These bills are rendered monthly and paid in the due course of business. No limit is placed on the fund, the idea being that no person who is unable to obtain proper medical care shall have to neglect health because of lack of means.

The Masons have not published this broadcast, for the reason that it is the universal rule of the order to "do good by stealth," but the doctors of the city are fully instructed in the matter, and it is felt that in view of the fact that they are the ones who prescribe the medicine to be taken in case of sickness, it was not necessary to give information regarding the fund outside of the medical profession.

Many Have Been Helped.

This benefit is not restricted to Masons and their families, but is for anybody without regard to creed or race or other affiliations who needs the help. Many people in Duluth have been beneficiaries of this fund since its establishment, and some of them have not known whom to thank.

Masons who have discussed Bishop McGolrick's plan, say that, like most of the bishop's ideas, this is a worthy and laudable one. It has been added by some of them, that while there is no objection to the city taking such a step as that advocated, it is believed that the Masons' fund fills the bill and is conducted with less red tape than would be necessary in a civic fund. The Masonic fund is operated on the basis of "no questions asked" after the physician's verdict is made. The fact that the physician sends the prescription to a drug store to be filled is taken as sufficient sanction by the druggist and there the matter ends until the monthly bill is submitted and paid by the Masonic bodies.

Photograph of Mrs. Robert Twaddle and Her Three Children Taken in 1900, Five Years Before She Ran Away From Duluth.

Richard Witte and Mrs. Margaret Twaddle, the former a West end woman, who were arrested at Brockton, N. D., by the latter's husband, Robert Twaddle, after a search of ten years, were both bound over to the district court of Devils Lake, N. D., on a charge of unlawful cohabitation, according to a dispatch received here this afternoon. Why a charge of adultery was not brought is not known. Adultery is a state's prison offense, while the former offense is only a misdemeanor.

In addition, Mrs. Twaddle filed a suit for divorce against her husband on a charge of non-support and the case will probably come up in the North Dakota city at the same time the two are tried.

Mrs. Twaddle, it is alleged, left her husband and three children on a farm in Hermantown in the spring of 1905 and since that time the latter has been following her in an effort to have her arrested. Each time Mrs. Twaddle and Witte would elude him and not until a few weeks ago did he find that they were living at Brockton. He left Duluth last Saturday for Brocton and had them arrested on Wednesday morning.

Mr. Twaddle has been making his home during the last ten years with his father, George Twaddle of 711 North Twenty-first avenue west.

"TICKER" RECOVERED AT LAST.

Police Locate Watch Lost Eleven Years Ago.

Robert B. Quigley, formerly of Duluth but now of 1421 North Twelfth avenue, Superior, had forgotten that he lost a watch eleven years ago, in Duluth, but the police remembered.

Lieut. N. U. G. Terry, in going over the daily report of the Minneapolis police department's pawnshop inspector, found that Mr. Quigley's timepiece was in a Mill City shop.

He telephoned Mr. Quigley:

"Did you lose your watch, Mr. Quigley?" he asked.

"Me?" was the answer. "No, there must be some mistake."

"You're Robert B. Quigley, formerly of Duluth, aren't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, you lost a watch eleven years ago in Duluth and you can get it by writing Minneapolis police."

"I'll be blowed!" said Mr. Quigley.

SHORT TALK EXPENSIVE.

William Welsh "Touched" for $90 By Dusky Strangers.

Accosted by a negro woman, who whoported to Duluth officers, picked his pockets during a "very short conversation," William Welch is out $90, according to the police.

Welch, who is stopping at the Fifth Avenue hotel, came to police headquarters last night and gave Lieut. E. H. Barber the details of the "touching" affair. The robbery took place on Michigan street between First avenue east and Lake avenue, he said.

Police were unable to find any clew as to the identity of the woman.

CHAUFFEUR ON JOY RIDE.

Duluthian's Machine Wrecked While He Is Attending Theater.

While C. J. Peterson, 1124 East Tenth street, was enjoying a performance in a theater at Superior last night, his chauffeur went joyriding in his automobile. Mr. Peterson found his machine in a nearby garage several hours later, badly damaged, and the chauffeur was missing.

Reports of the joyride, given to Duluth police by Superior officers, showed that the chauffeur collided with a water wagon at Fourteenth street and Tower avenue. He managed to reach a garage before the engine balked at its rough treatment.

Garage attendants reported the case to Superior police, who traced the owner through the car number, and reported it to Duluth officers.

WILL MEET WEDNESDAY

City Council Puts Weekly Meeting Over Two Days.

Members of the city commission will attend the annual banquet of the Duluth Real Estate exchange at the Kitchi Gammi club next Tuesday evening, and to avoid conflict the weekly council meeting scheduled for that evening was this morning postponed until Wednesday evening.

The council meets every Monday evening, but because of a holiday next Monday, the meeting was postponed until the following day. Yesterday the commissioners received the invitation to attend the banquet of the real estate men and a second postponement was found necessary, according to an announcement made today by Mayor Prince.

Housing Code Comes Up.

At the meeting next Wednesday night the council will hear the reading of ordinances calling for a total appropriation of about $35,000. In addition, the new housing code will be given its second reading and the ordinance formally accepting the offer of Chester A. Congdon to pay all costs and awards for the Lake Shore boulevard from Lester park to Two Harbors will be before the council for passage.

Official action will be taken by the council on the communication of Manager Reed of the water and light department, recommending the sale of a strip of land north of the Lakewood pumping station to the D. & I. R. road as a site for a new railroad station.

The contract for the laying of gas and water mains in Sixty-second avenue west, from Greene to Bristol streets, will likely be awarded to Ricstreets, will likely be awarded to Ricand Parvinen on their bid of $409.20, and the one for the laying of mains in Piedmont avenue, from Fourth street to Fourth alley, and in Sixth street, from Twenty-third to Twenty-fourth avenues west will probably be awarded to J. R. MacLachlan on his bid of $578.75.

Several Ordinances.

The ordinance appropriating $500 for the purchase of fluxing oil and asphaltic cement will be given its third reading.

Second reading will be given the ordinances appropriating $10,000 for the laying of storm sewers, $13,000 for the laying of sanitary sewers, $6,000 for the purchase of water meters, $4,900 for the purchase of hydrants and gas and water gates and boxes, $400 to pay for the inspection of cast iron specials in the foundry, and $1,200 for the painting of the aerial bridge.

Saloon licenses will probably be granted to Ignac Ptaszek, 2231 West Superior street; Peter Valero, Gary; Sam Smith, 820 East Superior street; L. Dawson, 21 West Michigan street, being a transfer of G. B. Kelley, same address; Charles Bostrom and Oscar Lindquist, 1921 West Superior street; and Frank Peterson, 1817 West Superior street.

HAVE FOLDED THEIR TENTS

Duluth Agents of National Baseball Lottery Have Moved On.

It begins to look as if those connected with the baseball gambling pool in Duluth have taken a hint from police activities in other cities and decided to "lay off" operating a game here, and have folded their tents and moved on.

No action has been taken by the police of Duluth in the matter of prohibiting the operation of the national baseball pool here and it now looks as if it will not be necessary.

Probably frightened by the arrest of operators of the pool in Chicago, Pittsburg and other cities, the representative of the system here, or its representatives, have shown very little activity during the past few days. Those holding pool tickets have, it is said, found it rather difficult to locate the agent.

It is believed that the wide-spread activity of the police of various cities of the country in suppressing the operation of the pool, following closely on the complaint lodged by President John Tener of the National Baseball league, will result in some police action here, possibly some arrests, if the pool continues to be operated.

Baseball men over the country profess to see a real menace to the integrity to the sport in the existence of the pool. Even if players refused to listen to any attempts to bribe them, thinking baseball men declare that the very existence of a national baseball lottery will tend to hurt the standing of the great national pastime.

INJUNCTION IS GRANTED

St. Paul, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Temporary injunctions restraining the Arkansas railway commission from putting into effect its new 2-cent a mile passenger rate on all roads over eighty-five miles long, and 3 cents a mile on railroads under that length, were granted today in United States district court to the St. Louis-Southwestern Railway company, the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern, the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, the Pine Bluff, Arkansas River railway and the Warren & Ouachita Valley Railway companies.

Judges William C. Hook, John E. Carland and Jacob Trieber heard the application for temporary injunction yesterday and granted the petitions at the meeting of court today.

The action of the court today means that as soon as bonds to protect the state of Arkansas are filed and approved by the court, four of the railways will be permitted to put into force a 3-cent passenger rate and the Warren & Ouachita valley railway company, may put into efect a 5-cent a mile passenger rate.

These rates will be in force until the final settlement of the case between the state and the railways which will be heard at St. Louis, Dec. 11, that date having been set by the court today.

WANT ORDER RESCINDED

The Duluth-Superior Traction company this morning asked for a hearing from the Wisconsin railroad and warehouse commission at which it will request that the order of the commission for six fares for a quarter provided for the company shall be rescinded.

The company claims in its request that since jitneys have been operating in the city it has lost on an average of $200 per day from its receipts. The additional losses that would be occasioned by the six-for-a-quarter fares rules would be an additional $25,000 annually.

The question of supplying the public with six tickets for 25 cents is now before the state supreme court. A decision of this court will probably be rendered within another month. It is intended to get a hearing before the commission within the next ten days. Revoking of the order will cause the case to be dropped in the higher court.

Peggy Peabody's Observations

The Girl With the Latch Key.

I was talking to an ardent anti-suffragist recently and she had this to say about "the girl with the latch-key," also known as the "new woman": "She is wilful, eager, restless, occupying herself with everything except the things that used to occupy her. She is surely changing the feminine ideal and fast becoming in part responsible for the wrong in the world."

Heaven help the old woman and the new woman, the girl with the latch-key and the girl without, all women in fact, whatever their propensities. Most of them are doing their best and you cannot ask more of anyone. The phrase, "new woman," is one that covers a wide range. It includes all women who are earning a living in occupations outside the home and who prefer a good job to an indifferent husband.

There are few girls, comparatively speaking, in equal or better circumstance than the mothers who bore them. It is not surprising to me if a daughter of a comfortable, middle-class family cannot paint a dainty little picture or a flower-piece. If she cannot play the piano and sing we are not lost in amazement, and if she cannot embroider and sew a fine hem we do not consider her helpless.

The girls of the great middle class, nowadays, as soon as they graduate from school, and even before, are thinking seriously about an occupation in life which shall enable them to support themselves independent of anyone. They devote quite a few years, perhaps, if they are among the fortunate; if not, they step right out of the schoolgirl ranks into those of the bread-winner and maintain this position until the right man comes along or until there is no need, or they cannot work any longer. In such a life they have little opportunity to become trained in many little accomplishments and feminine graces that are rapidly and regretably disappearing.

But on the other hand if we have not women who can paint a little, embroider a little, sing and play a little, spin and weave, nurse babies and keep house, we have women who can earn their own living, rear children and keep house, as houses are kept nowadays, at one and the same time, and that evens up matters.

The really capable woman, whether her lot be cast beside the quiet and protected shores of home or the turbulent waters of life, can make ends meet and rise to meet any emergency. It doesn't much matter whether she carries a latch-key or stays close by her own fireside while doing her duty so that she does it.

PERFECT BEAUTY

The fashion of the present day requires that the complexion of the well-groomed woman shall be clear and of snowy whiteness. The regular use of will bestow the charms that are so admired. Gouraud's Oriental Cream is a liquid powder, far surpassing the dry powders that have to be applied so frequently to gain the desired effect. It whitens, softens and clears the skin. It is absolutely free from grease and consequently does not encourage the growth of hair.

St. Paul Soloist Will Be Heard At Pilgrim Memorial Service

MISS MARIAN CRARY.

MISS MARIAN CRARY of St. Paul, who will be the soloist at the Memorial vesper service at Pilgrim Congregational church tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, will sing "O Divine Redeemer" by Gounod.

Miss Crary, who has a soprano voice, has studied three years in St. Paul with Mlle. Marcia, with whom she will go abroad for further study after the war. She is studying this summer with Mlle. Marcia, who is the guest of another pupil, Miss Margaret Craig of 2401 East First street.

Miss Crary ranked second in the state musical contest that was held in St. Paul in April. This contest was preliminary to the sectional contests by which were selected twelve musicians who will appear on a program to be given at the biennial meeting of the National Federation of Musical clubs that will be held at Los Angeles this summer.

EMIL OBERHOFFER.

CHARLES E. WATT, editor of the Music News, printed at Chicago and one of the recognized authorities on all matters musical in this country, writes as follows of the concert given at Chicago by Emil Oberhoffer and the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, which will be heard here next week: "One of the greatest of our annual treats is the visit of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, for there are patrons of music in plenty who consider this body of players unsurpassed by any ever heard in Chicago, and there are still many more who find in the work of Emil Oberhoffer, the director, a vitality, buoyancy, and originality of style which are not equaled by any other conductor before the American public.

"Be this as it may, it still remains the fact that the orchestra, as presented this year, is of surpassing worth, and Mr. Oberhoffer is now, as he has always been, fascinating in his personality and charming beyond expression in his readings, while the skill with which he turns his orchestra into an accompanying body when the soloist appears is not equaled by any one else.

More than that, Mr. Oberhoffer has given a fame and prestige to the city of Minneapolis it never possessed before. Formerly it was only known as a city of flour mills; now it is known as a city of culture and refinement.

Mr. Oberhoffer is one of the most interesting figures in American musical life today. Born in Munich, and with musical ancestry and early musical training and environment, his talents as violinist, pianist, and organist led him into varied lines of musical activity, while his bent toward conducting, given play before coming to this country as a youth, was later developed in opera, choral, and orchestral lines, culminating in the forming of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra in the city which has been his adopted home for a number of years. He has been the one conductor of the orchestra since its beginning, a circumstance which is unique in this country, except in the case of Theodore Thomas, who formed and conducted until his death the orchestra which remains a monument to his name.

What the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra is today, it owes to Mr. Oberhoffer's genius and ability in selecting and training the men who comprise it, in inspiring the people of Minneapolis to their faith in him and in the orchestra, and in winning the approval of the public of Minneapolis and of the numerous cities in which the orchestra has been heard.

Given the born conductor, a city which places the necessary funds at his disposal to gather together a first class body of men from the music centers of the world, and the years necessary to form this body into a trained organization with a rare esprit de corps, it is no more to be wondered at that Minneapolis has become the home of a great orchestra, than that Boston or Chicago has accomplished a like result.

Emil Oberhoffer, by virtue of what he has accomplished, stands today one of the foremost figures in the musical life of America, and is so recognized wherever the Minneapolis orchestra has appeared.

Duluth Musicians Will Attend Los Angeles Meet

Program Will Include Interpretations By Noted Composers of Their Own Works; Presentation of American Opera "Fairyland" Will Be Big Feature Event.

AS THE biennial meeting of the National Federation of Musical clubs draws near, plans are being completed for the ten days of musical festivity, June 24 to July 3, which will attract to Los Angeles the leading composers and artists of the country.

Among the Duluthians who will attend the convention are Miss Faith Helen Rogers, who won the students' prize for her song, "A Ballad of Trees and the Master;" Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge and Miss Frances Woodbridge. Probably several other members of the Matinee Musicale will attend.

Much Interest in Program.

Mrs. George S. Richards, who is the state vice president of the national federation, says that a great deal of interest will center about the program, which will be given by the successful contestants in the state contests which were held recently all over the country.

The most vitally interesting feature of the biennial, next to the production of the prize opera, is the congress for the encouragement of American music. Brilliant programs have been prepared under the direction of Charles Wakefield Cadman, one of the best known American composers. Members of Mr. Cadman's committee, which is one of the most important in the federation, are: Carl Busch, Mrs. Elizabeth Casterton, George W. Chadwick, Arthur Foote, Charles H. Farnsworth, Henry K. Hadley, Leonard Liebling, Roland Paul, Oscar Sonneck and Tali Esen Morgan.

Interpret Own Compositions.

Through the efforts of this committee many of America's distinguished musicians will conduct or interpret their own compositions. Among them are: Arne Oldberg, 1915 prize symphony, No. 2 G minor Op. 34; David Stanley, overture, "Prince Hal;" Mabel W. Daniels, "The Desolate City," with baritone solo by Cecil Fanning; Carl Busch, "Minnehaha Vision;" George W. Chadwick, "Symphonic Sketches;" Ernest R. Kroeger, quintet in F minor; Frederick Preston Search, "Aria," "Minuet;" Walter Spry, "Intermezzo Scherzando" No. 6; and Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, concerto for piano and orchestra. Other composers whose works will be heard are: Arthur Farwell, Felix Borowski, Noble Kreiler, Edward MacDowell, Arthur Foote, Eric deLamarter, Adolph M. Foerster, Edgar Stillman Kelley, George Colburn, Louis Victor Saar and Faith Helen Rogers.

Recitals will be given by Cecil Fanning, with H. B. Turpin, accompanist; Yvonne de Treville, Jeanette Durno, Carrie Jacobs Bond, Marie Stapleton Murray and Walter Spry and Princess Tsianina Redfeather.

The crowning event of the festival will be the premiere of the $10,000-prize American opera "Fairyland," by Horatio W. Parker and Brian Hooker, which will be given Thursday, July 1, under the direction of Alfred Hertz, one of the greatest of living conductors. The principals are Marcella Craft, lyric soprano, "Rosamond;" Kathleen Howard, mezzo, "Myriel;" Ralph Errolle, tenor, "Auburn;" William Wade Hinshaw, baritone, "Corvain;" Albert Reiss, lyric tenor, "Robin."

There will be a chorus of 100 and an orchestra of seventy. Albertina Rasch, formerly of the Vienna court opera, and engaged for the coming season of the Chicago Grand Opera company, will be the premiere danseuse. The stage director will be Louis Gettzchalk, producer of Eastern successes.

Orchestral concerts, recitals, demonstrations of public school music and conferences, a congress of renowned musicians and the premiere of a prize opera will be leading features of a program that will be representative of our best American music.

"BEYOND THE POINT OF ROCKS"

FULLY 25,000 PEOPLE ATTEND CELEBRATION IN WEST END

Many Handsome Floats and Other Features Make Up Parade.

Mayor Crowns May Queen; Entire City Council Is Present.

What was probably the biggest crowd that ever turned out to a civic celebration in Duluth was rewarded by seeing the best and possibly the biggest industrial parade shown in the city at the West end last night. The success of the affair was far greater than any merchant or member of committee ever dreamed of. The stores were all closed during the evening and most of the employes were in the throng.

Good natured crowds began to gather as early as 6:30 o'clock. By 7:30 o'clock it was estimated that there were fully 15,000 people on the streets, the street at that time between Twenty-ninth avenue, the starting point, and Garfield avenue, was lined several ranks deep along the sidewalk and at 8:30 o'clock there were fully 25,000 people on the thoroughfare, it is believed.

Parade Has Many Attractions.

The parade was the longest, had the greatest number of attractions, went off with the least hitch of any affair of its kind ever attempted in the West end. Long before the float carrying the "Tramp" orchestra, which brought up the rear, had left Twenty-ninth avenue, the head of the parade had turned at the Point of Rocks and was on its return trip.

At the head of the parade, rode Capt. K. A. Franklin and his two aides. Then there were policemen mounted, followed by the Third Regiment band, and the uniform rank of the Woodmen and the Vasa order. One of the big features of the parade followed the band. This was the West End Beautifying clubs. Nearly 250 boys from the Lincoln, Adams, Monroe, Bryant and Ensign schools took part. The Lincoln boys led, each dressed in overalls, carrying various kinds of implements and signs, which told the people to "Rake-up," "Paint-up," "Make Your City Beautiful" and other suggestions. Every boy of the Ensign school carried brooms. Similar implements were carried by the Bryant, Monroe and Adams boys.

Second Division.

Loading the second division was the Zenith City band. Following it came a handsomely decorated float, carrying Miss Inga Brende, the "Queen of May," and her four maids of honor. These maids were Miss Alice Mattson, Miss Anna Olson, Miss Edith Olson and Miss Linda Olson, the four leaders in the recent contest. Behind this float were the city officials, including Mayor W. I. Prince, Commissioners Merritt, Silberstein, Voss and Farrell, and Chief of Police McKercher.

Then there was a large float carrying the girls of the West End Beautifying clubs following which was the Svea Glee club, singing as the parade moved along.

Many Handsome Floats.

Many of the floats in the parade were of handsome design and showed that great preparatory work had been done. Some of the more strikingly beautiful floats were those entered by the Minnesota Tea company, the proprietors of which had their two large touring cars handsomely decorated in white and carrying their girl employes. Others of the more handsome floats were those of the Anderson Furniture company, John J. Moe & Son company, Morterud & Koneczny, Duluth State bank, Universal Flour company, Zenith Telephone company, Bowman Width, Heglund company, National Candy company, Winkler Bros.' Candy company, S. W. Hill Clothing company, Home Laundry company, Enger & Olson Furniture company, West End Bakery company, Zinsmaster-Smith Bread company, Elliott Packing company, Hogstrun & Markhanna company, F. A. Patrick company, and Johnson & Thygeson. Others who had floats in the parade were the John Wahl Candy company, Gustafson Brothers, Hardware company, Victor Juten, Charles Mork & Son, Scott-Graff Lumber company, Johnson & Peterson Hardware company, Haudsrud & Lindquist, A. Hanson Hardware company, Davidson Bros., grocers, Olson Bros., grocers, Fred W. Erickson, Haines House Moving company, O. F. Wennerlund, and many others.

Crowning "May Queen."

Probably the feature that caused the greatest crowding on any of the corners was that of the crowning of Miss Brende as "Queen of May." Mayor Prince officiated at this ceremony at the corner of Twentieth avenue west and Superior street shortly after the arrival of the "Queen's" carriage at this point. In an address in which the mayor lauded the business men for their progressiveness and in which he congratulated the citizens on choosing the handsomest young woman in the district to the honor, he placed a crown of flowers on her head and presented her with a handsome wrist watch as a token from the merchants.

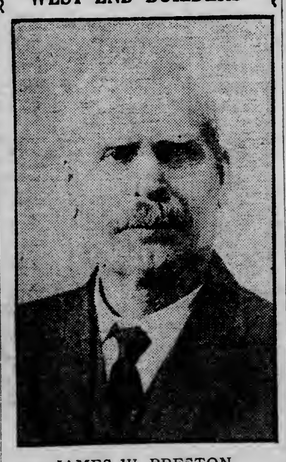
Miss Brende responded, saying, "I wish to thank every friend who assisted me in receiving this honor," and then she threw kisses at the crowd.

The West end was no place for pessimists last night. It is safe to say that there was no such "animal" in the entire district last night.

The men who made the affair a success are: Carl E. Longren, chairman; S. W. Hill, O. F. Wennerlund, Emil Gustafson and C. E. Lundquist, members of the general committee, Leonard Peterson, chairman; Emil Olson and Herman Olson, in charge of the parade.

Capt. K. A. Franklin, marshal; and Emil Gustafson, S. K. Westberg and C. O. Carlson, aides.

WEST END BUILDERS



JAMES W. PRESTON.

James W. Preston is spoken of as the man who made parades and other celebrations of like natures in the West end a possibility. As a West end builder and booster "Jim" Preston is said to be one of the best.

Preston is one of the pioneers of the West end. When asked when he came here he said that he had forgotten "ancient history," but was sure that it was before the time of automobiles, street cars or other conveniences.

Mr. Preston has taken a lively interest in the work of the West End Commercial club. It was Mr. Preston who superintendended the paving of Superior street and who the year before paved Twenty-first avenue. Both jobs were completed in record time.

REALTY MEETS GOOD DEMAND

Inquiry Stronger Now Than at Any Time in Years.

Prices Are Reasonable; Several Transactions Just Put Through.

West end realty is meeting a steady demand and ready sale, according to leading real estate dealers of this end of the city. The inquiry is said to have been stronger this spring than during any former year, and not only are the inquiries looking for houses, but vacant lots on which modern structures may be built to advantage.

E. A. Swanstrom of Swanstrom Brothers said today that there was no boom in the property. "It is not a rush of any kind in the purchasing of property. The buyers often make the inquiries in a guarded manner. They are eager to buy but refuse to be 'held up' on prices. The values of property now are at probably the lowest figure they ever will be, and, when quoted, are usually satisfactory to the prospective purchaser."

Nels Backstrom and C. J. Olson recently purchased five lots on Chestnut street through the Swanstrom Brothers' firm on which the purchasers intend building four residences. These buildings will be erected and placed on the market for sale at about $3,000 each.

David Gibson has just completed purchasing through this firm, a residence at Twenty-third avenue and Seventh street. The consideration was $3,800.

Lots are bringing good consideration. Nels Backstrom paid $1,000 for a lot on Sixth street between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth avenues. O. B. Paine just purchased a house on Twenty-third avenue between Sixth and Seventh streets. The consideration was not announced. Property adjacent to the city is also in demand. Forty acres were sold this week by the firm to Richard McCue. The property is situated near Munger.

Dancing will follow the program and all Modern Samaritans and their friends are invited to attend.

Arrangements are progressing for the annual minstrel show, which will be staged by the members of the council on June 21. The minstrel show will close the social season, and the entertainments will be resumed on the first meeting in September. The committee in charge of the minstrel show this year follows: Charles Ashby, J. A. McLaughlin and Richard Jones.

LETTER CARRIERS MUST WEAR "STRAWS"

Compulsory Rule Effective June 8—Vacations Begin July 1.

Letter carriers in Duluth will don Panama straw hats as a part of their official garb, June 8, according to Postmaster William E. McEwen. At that time all of Uncle Sam's postmen will file before the postmaster for inspection.

It was planned to have the straw hat season for carriers begin earlier, but cold weather made this impractical. Straw hats and overcoats, Mr. McEwen says, make a poor combination for carriers.

Carriers are inspected twice yearly, Mr. McEwen says, once in the spring and again in the fall. At the inspection June 8 the carriers will draw lots for their summer vacations. Each carrier is given a vacation of fifteen working days each year. This year the season runs from July to the latter part of June, 1916.

Any carrier may wear a straw "lid" from now on without breaking the rules of the department, said Mr. McEwen.

DEMENTED WOMAN SOUGHT IN WOODS

Bemidji, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. John Anderson of Jelle is lost in the dense forest, northwest of Red lake, and a searching party of sixty is scouring the woods for her. She is supposed to be insane, but is still alive, according to a telephone message to Sheriff Andrew Johnson this morning saying she had been seen twelve miles from her home, running through the woods.

She was lost again, however, before the searching party could be notified. She has been in the woods since Wednesday evening, when she left the home of her son, Jacob Anderson, to visit a neighbor.

OLD MAN WEATHER HAS BEEN DOGGONE MEAN TO NORTHERN LEAGUE

Magnates Are on the Wrong Side of the Ledger So Far This Season—Mike Collins to Continue in the Boxing Game—Boxers Must Have a Care Lest They Kill Their Own Game.

BY BRUCE.

THE cruel maledictions of fate or the weather man or some other perverse cog in the general scheme of the pendulum of events, have conspired to the very utmost to disturb the even tenor of the way of the Northern league. The opening day games around the circuit were postponed right at the start. Since May 6 it has either rained, threatened to rain, snowed, hailed, blown or been as cold as blue blazes, or turned out something nearly equally disagreeable.

In the frowning face of this untoward behavior upon the part of the aforementioned fate or the weather man, John Burmeister, august president of the league, refuses to admit that he is discouraged. All pessimistc talk is drowned in the sonorous roar of big John to the effect that the league will get the kinks ironed out of its system with the coming of warm weather.

Efforts are being made to remedy some of the mistakes time has uncovered. For instance, there is that awful team at Winnipeg. A certain baseball man is authority for the statement that the Winnipeg aggregation is about the worst team that has ever lined up in professional baseball circles. A real team at Winnipeg is what Burmeister is working on at the present time.

Roy Patterson has turned in his resignation as manager of the Peggers. Having years of experience as a major leaguer to draw upon failed to benefit Patterson. Those who know Patterson will declare that he is "too nice a fellow" to make good as a manager. In other words they assert that the boy who started on the baseball diamonds hereabouts hates to release a player or chide a member of his team.

"Frosty" Thomas, a former American league and American association pitcher, has taken over the managerial reins of the Winnipeg team. Some new players have been secured and a strenuous attempt will be made to get a fresh start, a sort of running buck at the somewhat appalling steepness of the percentage ladder.

Mike Cantillon is also working on the revised schedule of the league. M. J. is considered sort of expert on the rather exact art of schedule making. At least his expertness is attested to by some of the magnates of the league. The revised schedule is expected to make somewhat of a change in the playing dates of every team in the league, and more particularly Winnipeg and St. Boniface.

President Burmeister has discovered—or believes he has discovered—that the present schedule calls for too much baseball at Winnipeg. St. Boniface is merely across the river from the corporate limits of Winnipeg. As a matter of fact the new Winnipeg grounds are in St. Boniface. Therefore with both teams playing on their own grounds at the same time, Winnipeg, or St. Boniface, just as the case is viewed, there is the somewhat analogous position of a town being asked to choose between two rival circuses.

It is believed that the revision of the schedule so as to avoid conflicts in playing dates up in the region of the Peg will serve to increase the attendance. Some one will have to hit upon a plan to increase the song of the turnstile. To date the attendance has been something fierce.

Gale Brooks, who has secured the stock formerly in the possession of Horace Webb, is a concession man and promoter. He is said to have corraled a pile of kale. Whether Brooks owns the controlling interest in the club or no, little has been said. It is stated, however, that A. H. Pulford has 40 per cent of the stock of the Winnipeg club locked in his vault.

Whether this is going to prove a successful year for the league depends a great deal upon conditions at Winnipeg. For instance the sale of the Superior club to A. L. Steece was closed in a measure upon the basis of the drawing ability of the different teams at the Peg. Before Mr. Steece invested coin of the realm in the Superior property he was told that one club took away $1,000 from Winnipeg in a three game series.

Figuring on this basis Mr. Steece believed that in eight games up there his team might collect in the neighborhood of $2,500. In the first series of games the Superior team played at Winnipeg the gate did not reach the league guarantee amount. Unless conditions improve there will be some money dropped by practically all of the magnates of the league. Let it be said that John Burmeister is laboring with strenuous grind to bring about a speedy improvement.

Mike Collins at Eau Claire.

MICHAEL COLLINS, who leaped blithley into the national boxing limelight during the last year by promoting one of the largest and most successful contests in the United States, is going to continue the artful game of boxing promoting in the precincts of Eau Claire.

Possibly the passage of the Minnesota boxing law convinced Mike that it would prove a losing venture to stage bouts in his big Hudson arena. With characteristic vigor he has taken hold of the Eau Claire, Wis., club and has already arranged a sparkling series of contests for the evening of June 4.

Big Fred Fulton will scrap Ned Carpenter of Iowa, and Mike O'Dowd the fighting Celt of St. Paul, will oppose Billy Perkins of Rhinelander, Wis.

On the date in question a big meeting of the United Commercial Travelers is scheduled for Eau Claire. Something like 2,000 knights of the grip are expected to swell the population of the little Wisconsin village. This ought to give the mitt show a good play at the gate.

As a promoter Mike Collins has been a real and genuine success. A regular fellow, a most likeable chap, and a man who has always endeavored to play square with both the boxers and the public, there are few who know Mike who envy the success he has made out of the game. Every fight manager who has ever done business with Collins was always glad to do business with him a second time. And, Horatio, when some fight managers or some boxers don't have a kick coming—why they ain't no kick coming.

Mister Molan Starts Talking.

MR. MICHAEL MOLAN, the state boxing commissioner of Minneapolis, has started talking right off the bat. Hark to Michael—"The bouts in Minnesota will not be like some of those conducted at Hudson—the boxers will be compelled to do their best all the time." This more or less raucous remark has called forth a shrill and chiding answer from Mike Collins. As an answerer, the Collins boy is a cuckoo.

"Boxers did their best at Hudson or they were stopped," quoth Mike Collins. "I don't like the remarks of Mr. Molan and I may take steps to have him prove them."

Right here a clarion warning, loud and treble of note, should be sounded to the boxers of the land—yea, Bo, and to their managers. For heaven sake don't permit the suspicion of fake stuff to insidiously sneak into the game.

Only recently the boxing authorities of Australia took occasion to bar Jeff Smith for alleged faking. Also Jimmy Clabby and George Chip were thrown out of the ring in New York, because Referee Billy Roche declared the men were stalling. Also, to call up another case, the mayor of Indianapolis refused to permit the Dillon-Chip or Saylor-Welsh bouts to be held in Indianapolis, because he alleged most boxing contests were fakes and promoted merely for the gate.

Wrestlers killed a grand old game by crossing the public. Houses of $38,000 were drawn in Chicago, and dear old Kansas City used to cough up gates of $18,000 to the boys. But the rasslers got their heads together and gypped the public—and now a lot of the buckos are wondering why the game is moribund.

In the old days of boxing the word fake was never uttered in connection with the game. Boys wept bitterly when defeated. Alert care should be exercised in the supervision of the game. The public needs to be protected and the boxers also need to be protected from themselves.

CORNELL LEADS IN COLLEGE CONTEST

Trials Demonstrate She Has Best Chances of Winning.

Philadelphia, May 29.—Cornell university demonstrated on Franklin field yesterday that her track men have the best chance of winning the annual championship of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletics. So evenly balanced was the team that Cornell was able to qualify in all events in the eliminations and trial heats. No less than eighteen Cornell athletes came through safely for the semi-finals and finals today. This does not include the one and two-mile races in which, as usual, there are no preliminary eliminations.

Of Cornell's supposed nearest rivals, Harvard, Yale and Pennsylvania, the Philadelphia team was put out of the running for the championship by two of her men meeting accidents. McDonald Lippincott, Pennsylvania, thought to be good for possibly ten points, pulled a tendon in the 100-yard dash and was carried off the field. R. B. Ferguson, looked upon as a sure point winner in both the 120 and 220-yard hurdles, went out of the low barrier race when he failed to qualify in a heat for second and third men after he had been badly shaken up by a fall in his first heat.

The number of men qualified by each college today was as follows:

Cornell, 18; Harvard, 16; Yale, 11; Pennsylvania, 10; Princeton, 8; Dartmouth, 6; Columbia, Michigan and Pennsylvania State, each 5; Maine, 3; Bowdoin, 2, and La Fayette, Haverford, Johns Hopkins and Syracuse, each 1. Pennsylvania and Bowdoin each have a chance to qualify one or more today when a dead heat in the 220-hurdles will be run off.

One intercollegiate record was broken, H. P. Bailey of Maine university throwing the hammer 165 feet ¾ inch. The former record was 164 feet 10 inches, made by J. R. Dewitt of Princeton, thirteen years ago.

TENNIS COACHES ARE IN DEMAND

President Wrenn Calls Attention to Definition of Amateur.

New York, May 29.—Increasing demands for tennis coaches, either amateur or professional, has caused the United States National Tennis association to turn its attention to this new phase of the sport. Clubs in all parts of the country are trying to secure the services of professional coaches and since there are but few available, amateur experts are being requested to act as coaches. As a result of this situation President Robert D. Wrenn of the U. S. N. L. T. A., has been obliged to call attention to the definition of an amateur and rule on several cases involving the principles of the definition. The rule reads:

"An amateur is one who has not played, instructed, pursued or assisted in the pursuit of tennis or other athletic exercise as a means of livelihood or for gain or any emolument."

One case in particular called for a ruling where the proprietor of a large summer hotel offered board and lodging free to an amateur in return for the latter's service in arranging hotel tournaments and caring in a general way for the game and courts during the vacation season. In another a question arose regarding the status of a player tendered the position of a coach to a school team which carried no salary or other emoluments. In the first case President Wrenn ruled that acceptance of a position with such a summer hotel would undoubtedly lay the amateur open to charges of professionalism. In the second it was suggested that the player place his offer before the executive committee for final judgment.

Chicago, May 29.—Rain prevented the games of the conference tennis tournament which were scheduled for yesterday on the Midway courts, and probably will cause an extension of the meet to Monday.

MANDOT WINS GREAT BOUT FROM STOCKY RED WATSON

First round—Mandot.
Second round—Mandot.
Fourth round—Mandot.
Fifth round—Even.
Sixth round—Watson.
Seventh round—Watson.
Eighth round—Mandot.
Ninth round—Mandot.
Tenth round and fight—Mandot.

BY BRUCE.

Louisiana Joe Mandot and Red Watson engaged in a terrific tilt at the Superior Grand last evening. In point of poignant interest, starting with the fourth round, the bout was one of the best that has been staged across the way. Our call is Mandot. It was a bout that will call forth voluble dispute as to which boy was entitled to the decision. In the seventh round Watson had Mandot down and groggy at the bell. But after putting up a wonderful exhibition of gameness in weathering the terrific ring gale, the little Frenchman came back and gave Red an artistic lacing in the three closing rounds of the mill.

Just why Watson failed to put Joey away in the big and dramatic seventh round is a mystery to some of the vetgran followers of Marquis of Queensberry social sessions. The stocky redhead came in close and clipped Mandot a short left swing on the jaw. The body of the California boy was behind the swing and Mandot's eyes took on the glassy stare of grogginess and he began to weakly stagger.

Yell For Knockout.

Frantic yells of ringsters rose like the roar of the tide. The frenzied roll of pandemonium was taken up in the lower body of the house and spread like leaping flames to the balcony and gallery. The savagry in the breast of man was unleashed and joyously and barbarically sang the ancient song of battle.

"Now you've got him, Watson!" rang out over the house. Men leaped to their feet. Slowly Watson followed the reeling Mandot around the ring. A frenzied little man in a corner rose and walked around the outside of the ring, following the course of the boy who was being beaten into the near verge of impotency. This man was Tommy Walsh, manager of Mandot.

In the midst of the din and furore, penetrating the fanfare of sounds, rang the cool and commanding voice of Walsh. He was talking to Joey. It was a ring prayer—again a call to the fading vestige of courage—an appeal to the blinking brain of the little French boy. Megaphoning his hands over his mouth, Walsh, added his will, his brain and his knowledge of the ring game to that possessed by little Joey—and they weathered the terrific round—those two.

Watson began it by slamming Mandot that terrific short left on the jaw. Then he followed by lashing in an agonizing right to the stomach. The look on Joey's face was one of mute helplessness. The eyes of the French boy were glassy. Another terrific left was swung to Mandot's jaw. Joe tried to clinch and was fought off. He staggered clear across the ring to the far ropes and then a punch sent him reeling like a man helpless from drink, through the strands of the ropes. On the floor Joey lay prostrate, the glassy eyes staring like haunted things. Only the tenacious instinct of the fighting man was carrying the New Orleans boy along.

Mandot Rises.

Leaning over the ropes, almost, Tommy Walsh pulled for his boy. Slowly Mandot arose. He staggered and nearly fell. Diagonally across the ring he staggered with the dogged Watson, his jaw outthrust, following. Standing against the ropes, his hands dangling helpless by his side, his eyes glassy, his tongue almost lolling, Joe Mandot gave an exhibition that will go down in Head of the Lakes ring history. The little French booy stood reeling, tottering on the abyss of dreamland, and yet he ducked and slipped for nearly half a minute the swings of Watson.

The house was still in a frenzy of excitement; the air was rent by hoarse shouts. "Knock him out, Red!" was the rhythm of the thing. Like the bay of the pack on the scent rang the cry of the mob for the head of Mandot.

And then, like a clarion toll, rang the gong. The great chance of Red Watson passed. The pugilistic future of Joey Mandot was saved. Opportunity had clattered up the hall to Red Watson's room and knocked with loud and insistent call at his door. But while Red turned drowsily and opened the door the sprightly young creature had fled.

Mandot Nearly Gone.

It was only a ring miracle that saved Mandot. He fell into his chair. With frenzied haste his seconds worked over the game little kid. Smelling salts were held under his nostrils. They may have poured something down his throat. Again the clang of the gong. "Now Watson will finish him," said a ringsider. And then another of those things that keep the ring game green in the memory of some men occurred. Mandot came out of his seat, transformed from a staggering, glassy-eyed, beaten man to an alert, determined boxer, and outfought and out-boxed his man and won the round by an easy margin.

She was some great little fight! Aye, verily.

The battle started slowly and then grew thrillingly great. The first three rounds were much alike. Joey was jabbing and swinging a right to the jaw. Red was missing terrific swings and vainly waiting for a chance to put over a haymaker. Twice Watson swung with such dynamic force that his misses nearly sent him on the floor. Once Joey caught Red a well-timed uppercut, which landed just as Red slipped a wee bit. The combination toppled the stocky little battler to the floor.

In the sixth Watson started. He caught Joe with several swings and outfought him in the infighting. The seventh, as has been recounted, was all Watson's. The last three rounds found Mandot coming all the time. He had Watson tired in the two rounds and repeatedly beat him to the punch.

Billings Defeats Werner.

A lad by the name of Werner was substituted for Frankie Snyder. The Snyder one broke his hand, said hand being exhibited in the ring, attached firmly to said Snyder. Mr. Werner did not look and always act in the very best of condition. In the first round Kid Billings swung a beautiful right uppercut and floored Mr. Werner. After weathering the ring gale in this session Mr. Werner seemed to get his second breath and went along swimmingly until the fifth, when young Kid Billings bumped him several in the stomach and several more to the head, and while Mr. Werner was doing a Camille crawl along the resined roughness of the floor Mr. Silk Shirt Harry Stout brought the mill to a close.

Young Stuart of Duluth and Mickey Towers of Superior stepped eight rounds in the curtain raiser to a draw. Mickey was the better boxer and Stuart the stronger and harder hitter.

It was a good evening of glove entertainment. A good time was had by all. Commissioner Ribenack of Duluth was perched beamingly in a front ringside row. Representative Bert Heedlng of Milwaukee, father of the Wisconsin boxing law, was likewise among those present.

As is usual in the case of Superior boxing matches, fans from Duluth composed a major portion of the audience.

Superior managed to struggle along with the aid and assistance of two pitchers, in the second round twelve Superior batters were up before the side was retired and six runs were annexed.

Alexander, his former roommate. The lead changed three times in the second game, which Boston won 5 to 4, only by using every element of reserve strength. The lineup was so changed by pinch hitters during a rally in the eighth inning that an all-most general readjustment was necessary when the team took the field in the ninth. A home run by Cravath over the left field fence, a running one-hand catch by Connolly in the ninth inning and the fielding of Magee were features of this contest. Score:

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 29.—Mamaux outpitched Coombs in a close battle yesterday and Pittsburgh defeated Brooklyn 3 to 1. Wagner starred prominently in the victory. He tripled in the sixth, sending Baird home and he scored himself on a close decision at the plate when Viox hit a short sacrifice fly to Meyers. Wagner was hurt in the collision at the plate, and retired, while Miller was put off the field by Umpire Byron for protesting the decision. A triple by Hinchman, and McCarthy's sacrifice fly scored Pittsburgh's third run. A wild throw by Johnson scored Meyers in the fifth and saved Brooklyn from a shutout.

STATE TRACK MEET HELD

Twenty-Four Schools of Minnesota Compete at Northrop Field.

Baseball Conference Season Ends; Thomas Will Be 1916 Coach.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alan McBean, manager of athletics, and his assistants Tuesday closed the interscholastic entry book with a sigh of satisfaction. One hundred and eighty-two entries from twenty-four schools and academies are entered in the track meet for today.

Teams of Two Seasons.

The teams will compete in two classes. Shattuck, Cavalier, N. D., Lewis Institute of Chicago, Hector high, Rice Lake and Chippewa Falls, Wis., Galahad Military academy, St. Paul Central, and all the Minneapolis high schools compose the list of Class A. Class B consists of the high schools from Faribault, Litchfield, Owatonna, Excelsior, Waseca, Duluth Central, University high and the La Salle institue.

St. Paul Central has sent the largest entry list, 19. Chippewa Falls will have only one representative, Miller. The dashes will be the center of interest. The 100-yard will find Cummings of Hector, Kline of Rice Lake, Miller of Chippewa Falls, and Read of St. Paul Central, the most likely leaders. Cummings, who took first place in the quarter last year, making a new state record, will find stiff competition in Kasper of Shattuck, and Keeler of the West high. The mile will be of exceptional interest. The Lewis institute has two entries in this meet.

Surprise in Store.

The meet promises to be full of surprises. With the large number of men competing a few dark horses are bound to show up. A number of records ought to be set. It was thought at first that the Class B field events would have to be staged Saturday morning, owing to the large number of entries, but Manager McBean announced that everything will be raced in the afternoon. The schools will be limited to two men in each event. Coach Frank has been chosen as head referee.

Interfraternity Handball.

The interfraternity handball schedule was completed Wednesday when the last contest of a very successful season was played between the team representing Phi Sigma Kappa, champion of the academic fraternities, and Phi Delta Phi, the professional fraternity winners. Phi Sigma Kappa triumphed, winning two games 21 to 12 and 21 to 13. Harold Shackell and R. D. Curry composed the Phi Sigma team, while Palmer and Stellwagen played for Phi Delta Phi.

Thirty-six men were out at the Sigma Delta Psi tryouts on Northrop field Monday. The events were optional and trials were held in each of ten required for membership in the athletic fraternity. One more trial will be held this year, at which those lacking but a few events will have an opportunity to qualify and gain membership this year. After this tryout a summary of the standings of the athletes who have tried for Sigma Delta Psi membership the past year, will be published. Several are expected to qualify for senior membership before the year is out, and still more expect to gain junior grade. Clark Shaughnessy, hero of many football battles, and possessor of three "Ms," succeeded in making senior membership by qualifying in his last event, the two-mile, to the time of 11:16.2. B. F. Johnson, a freshman, has only one event to qualify in before gaining senior membership. He ran the two-mile in 11:46. Ballentine is another man who almost completed all requirements Monday by making senior grade in the two-mile, 220 hurdles, high dive, handspring and broad jump.

Gopher Nine Loses Last Game.

The final appearance of the Gopher nine on the diamond this year was made Thursday afternoon, when it met the Wisconsin team in the last conference game, Wisconsin succeeding in defeating the Gophers by a score of 9 to 4.

In addition to this being the last chance that Gopher fans had to see their team in action this year, four of Minnesota's favorites made their final appearance in the realm of conference baseball. The four men that Minnesota will lose through graduation will leave blanks in the lineup that will be hard to fill. They are: "Rube" Pennington, twirler and captain of the team; Chester Longley, "Bee" Lawler, all-round star athlete, and Mundy, also of football fame. This last opportunity to see these men and their team-mates perform was the cause of an unusually large attendance. Although Minnesota has not finished high in the percentage column this year, she can be proud of the fact that her men have played consistently good ball all season. The last game with her old rival, the Badgers, was lost by a very small margin. The game, which was drawn out to ten innings, resulted in a final score of 8 to 7 in Wisconsin's favor.

Interfraternity Baseball.

The race for the interfraternity baseball championship and for the possession of the two-year trophy, a silver loving cup presented by the Nathanson Cigar Stores company, is fast drawing to a close. The Delta Theta, who as leader of the fourth division, is contender in the finals, has now the cup in its possession, having won the championship last year, and if they come out on top this year will retain permanent possession of the trophy. The twenty fraternities which were entered in the tournament were divided into four sections of five teams each, the four teams winning the championships of the four divisions to play in the semi-final contests. In the first division Phi Kappa Psi is the winner, in the second Alpha Tau Omega came out on top, in the third Phi Delta Theta and in the fourth Acacia and Phi Sigma Kappa are still fighting for first place. The final battle for the championship will take place this afternoon between the two winners in the semi-finals, and is a contest looked forward to with great interest in the circles of the Greek letter men.

Aggies Win Contest.

The Agricultural college won the intercollegiate baseball championship Wednesday afternoon. The crucial game, which practically settled the intramural baseball tourney, was played before a large crowd of students on the parade ground. The final score of the game, in which the engineers tasted defeat for the first time, was 3 to 0 in favor of the "Ags." The game was exceedingly close throughout and the losing engineers put up a strong fight for the championship honors. Up to the fourth inning the game was a scoreless tie when a rally of the Aggies and a two-bagger by Schneiderhan netted them three runs. Schneiderhan pitched a beautiful game for the Ags, striking out fifteen men in the seven innings. He was easily the star of the contest. Brown, pitcher for the engineers, also showed excellent form, though the hard-hitting Ags registered quite a number of hits against him. Handschu, formerly of the St. Paul Northern league team, caught for the engineers. The Ags have a perfect record in the series, having won all of their games and, though all the intercollegiate games have not been played off, the coming final examinations in many of the colleges will make completion of the tourney impossible. The Ags are conceded to have the best all-round team on the campus, having a strong player in every position, and it is almost a certainty that if the remainder of the games were to be played the Ags would still be on top. The engineers and medics have a percentage of .750 and the laws .666, while academics, architects, dents and pharmacists each have but .250.

Thomas to Be Coach Again.

Frosty Thomas will again guide the destinies of the Minnesota baseball team in 1916. He was unanimously elected as coach at the meeting of the athletic board of control Wednesday afternoon. Thomas' work with the Gophers this year has been a success, and his re-election is heartily welcomed by the baseball squad and the students. When Thomas took hold of the Maroon and Gold cligibles last spring, it looked as if Minnesota would not win a game, and then with the appearance of a few old stars, the Gopher hopes rose, until the question of pitchers came up. Thomas had a fair looking ball club, but he did not have a pitcher who could be termed reliable. "Rube" Pennington, an outfielder, was turned into a hurler with fair success. Cy Young, a big left hander, was the only other pitcher, and with these two hurlers the Gophers worried along. Next year Thomas should put the Gophers a little further into the running, for he will have a chance to look over the squad before the season opens.

Compete for Tennis Honors.

Selden Smith and Roger Kennedy, in whom Minnesota fans place their hopes for tennis championship, left Wednesday night for Chicago, where they are now participating in the conference net meet. The two Gopher representatives will play in the singles and doubles. Just before the two men left, Roger Kennedy was unanimously chosen captain of the 1916 team.

"Val" Gharrity Tops Association.

Gharrity's average of .472 still keeps the Minneapolis player on top in the American association. Following him are Paddock, St. Paul, .457; Lelivelt, Kansas City, .373; Crossin, Louisville, .367; Gardner, Cleveland, .365; Beall, Milwaukee, .356; Compton, Kansas City, .352; Butcher, Indianapolis, .352; McMillan, Indianapolis, .340; Platte, Louisville, .336; Kansas City, with .286 and Indianapolis with .281 lead the clubs. Nixon, Cleveland; Bronkie, Indianapolis; Kelly, Indianapolis, and Randall, Milwaukee, are tied for base stealing honors with ten each. Beall leads the run-getters with thirty-one.

The association's leading pitchers are Ellis, Louisville, four and none; Tipple, Indianapolis, three and one; R. Williams, St. Paul, four and one; Young, Milwaukee, seven and two; Schardt, Milwaukee, six and two; Dougherty, Indianapolis, three and one; Delhi, Kansas City, eight and three.

BIG REGATTA TO BE HELD

Oarsmen Will Race on Day Boat Club Is Formally Opened.

A big rowing regatta will be held at the boat club on the afternoon of June 12, when the club is formally opened for the season of 1915.

According to the announcement made today, this will be about the most ambitious local offering ever attempted in the way of rowing contests. Preparations have already begun and the big event will be gradually worked up to.

Jimmy Ten Eyck stated today that inasmuch as the National regatta rules call for the majority of races with a turn, he has already started rowing his scullers and his four men around a turn. The eight contests will be rowed over a straightaway course.

The idea is to get the boys used to rowing the race with a turn. From now until the boys board the choo choo for Springfield, the practice of rowing around a stake buoy will be kept up.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WILL CHANGE ITS BASE

Will Locate Where No County Option Election Imperils.

East Grand Forks, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is reported steps will be taken for the establishment of brewery distributing depots in Red Lake Falls by the concerns that have been forced out of business here through the Polk county option election result.

One of the agents of a company that has operated here has made preliminary arrangements for the establishment of stations at Red Lake Falls, while both the Kelwoll brewery of Crookston and the East Grand Forks brewery have made arrangements for the establishment of store houses in that city.

The fact that Red Lake Falls is the only county in the northwestern part of Minnesota that is without a pending option election, is responsible for the interest that liquor men are taking in that section.

Sell to Saloonmen.

Local brewery agents have adopted the same scheme used at Moorhead, where the breweries "sold" their plants to local saloon men, holding retail licenses. By so doing, they are able to continue the business, though under the name of the individual saloon owner instead of under the company names.

While there has been some talk of testing the Minnesota county option law, as yet no definite steps have been taken by the saloon interests.

East Grand Forks is again connected directly with Grand Forks by walking bridge facilities, the pedestrians' portion of the De Mers avenue bridge having been reopened this week.

WHITE EARTH LAND CASES BEING HEARD

Evidence Taken at Walker Affecting Much Valuable Land.

Walker, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Testimony was taken here Thursday and yesterday in the cases brought by the United States government against the present holders of titles to certain Indian lands on the White Earth reservation, 1,000 tracts valued at $2,000,000 being involved.

The lands in question were those owned by the Indians through allotments and held in trust for them by the government, but were sold by the Indians.

The statutes provide that mixed-blood Indians may legally convey such property, but make it unlawful for full-bloods to do so. In its effort to set aside the conveyances which have been issued the government claims that they were made through false statements and that in some instances the purchasers knew them to be false, the land being sold by Indians of full blood. This, the government claims, would make the titles void.

St. Paul Man Referee.

George R. O'Reilly of St. Paul, referee appointed by the United States district court, heard the testimony, and C. C. Daniels, special assistant United States attorney general, appeared for the government.

Several cases charging criminal operations in the sale of the White Earth land have been tried in the Federal courts of Duluth and Fergus Falls. Testimony in the cases will be taken at all points where there are Indians residing whose information will be valuable in ascertaining the truth of the situation.

HOW TO HEAL SKIN-DISEASES

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes and similar itching, burning skin troubles.

At any reliable druggist's get a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap. These will not cost a bit more than seventy-five cents. With the Resinol Soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the Resinol Ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.

Don't Forget!

MARKET HAS FRESH BREAK

Wheat Off Under Influence of May Settlement and Crop News.

Flaxseed Weak, With Absence of Crushers' Demand; Trading Light.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 29.—Weakness materialized in all the grain markets today under a combination of bearish factors. Evening up of May contracts at Chicago and Minneapolis was perhaps the main influence. That future in Chicago sold off to $1.39, a drop of 11c in two days. A substantial tonnage of wheat has been rushed in there of late, and operators were reported to have been largly able to cover their contracts. Wheat deliveries at that point today were reported at 175,000 bu. At Minneapolis the quotation in May wheat was cut down 7c to $1.15, and its premium over July was reduced from 8c yesterday to 1¼c.

Crop news was more favorable today, the weather being reported as clearing over the West and Southwest, and Liverpool cables were lower on better receipts and increased offerings. The freight situation as it affects Argentina, was reported to have been improved, and increased shipments from that market are expected.

The market was firm in the September future here and it closed up fractionally. It was noted with interest that Chicago had bought wheat to arrive from Texas, and that Kansas City dealers had purchased a fair tonnage of Oklahoma new wheat. Cash demand locally was quiet again today, and withthe lower grade stuff showing a dragging tendency.

May wheat closed 1c off at $1.48¼ bid. July opened unchanged at $1.47½, and closed 1¼c off at $1.46¼ asked. September opened ¼c off at $1.21, and closed ¼c up at $1.21½.

Durum was weak in the absence of demand. May closed 1½c off at $1.48¾ nominally. July opened unchanged at $1.50, and closed 1½c off, and September closed ¼c up at $1.20¾ nominally.

Flaxseed Sells Off.

Trading in flaxseed was on the most limited scale, and its market dragged through the session. Offerings were light but they met with no response from crushers.

May flax closed 3½c off at $1.91 asked. July opened unchanged at $1.95, and closed 2c off at $1.93. September opened unchanged at $1.98, and closed 2c off at $1.96 asked. October unchanged at $1.97½, and closed 1½c off at $1.96 asked.

At Winnipeg, May flaxx closed 3¼c off at $1.72¼ bid; July 3¾c off at $1.73¼ bid, and October 3½c off at $1.77 asked.

Oats were weak closing ⅞c off at 50¼c for on the track or to arrive. Barley closed unchanged at from 66c to 76c, and rye unchanged at $1.15@1.17.

At Winnipeg, May oats closed unchanged at 62¼c asked, and July ¼c up at 63½c.

MARKET GOSSIP.

At Minneapolis, cash demand showed improvement. No. 1 northern blue stem sold 8c over July, and velvet chuff at 3c over July. There were pretty fair flour sales. Cash No. 1 northern wheat sold there at from $1.46 to $1.52, and No. 2 northern at from $1.43 to $1.49. Wheat stocks in Minneapolis elevators increased 15,000 bu in the day.

Le Count wired from Kinsley, Kan.: "From McPherson to Hutchinson there are lots of poor fields, also lots of splendid wheat. This district will harvest fairly good crops with favorable weather. From Hutchinson west, crop is very spotted as a result of early hot weather, but it will raise a fair crop. This territory is the best with exception of last year, that I have ever seen."

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The market was under pressure of lower American cables and liberal American shipments. Spot market was heavy, ½@1d lower, with cargo market easier. Winters and Manitobas were 3@4¼d lower, and Plates unchanged. American crop advices are now tempered with conservatism, and it is believed that the government report will show a noticeable loss, but the yield will be ample. Spring wheat outlook and Canadian prospects are considered excellent. Buying of new crop wheat is restricted.

"Corn—American firmness was offset by free Plate offers, weakness in Buenos Aires, declining Plate spot and cargo market at 2@6d decline.

"Argentine weather is clear and cool. Freights are easier and this assists business. Arrivals of both wheat and corn are liberal and stocks are increasing."

At Buenos Aires, near wheat month was under pressure as influenced by weakness in America, but July was firmly supported with holders reserved. Corn was weak, with favorable weather and better grading.

C. E. Lewis & Co. had the following closing letter from Chicago: "Liquidating sales in May wheat here and in the Northwest led to considerable selling of deferred months. On the decline shorts became good buyers of July and September, causing a rally near the close. Rains were again quite general, but indications are for clearing weather. Crop reports were more favorable in tone, and the trade is now looking forward to the government figures which will be issued on the 8th of next month. We anticipate a lower level of values for both July and September wheat."

CHICAGO MARKET.

Prospects of Better Weather Give Bears Advantage in Wheat.

Chicago, May 29.—Prospects of better weather gave the bears an advantage today in the wheat market. Lower quotations from Liverpool tended also to favor the selling side. In addition the fact that high premiums for May delivery would end today acted as a decided handicap to the bulls. Opening prices which ranged from ⅛c to 1½c lower, were followed by material declines all around.

Absence of export call resulted later in a more pronounced setback. Offers of May, however, were scarce near the end of the session and there was a sharp rally in that option. The market closed unsettled at ⅛@2½c under last night.

Corn receded with wheat. Indications of improved field conditions counted further toward easing prices off. The market, after opening ¼c lower to a shade advance, underwent a moderate general sag.

Traders in oats took their cue from other cereals. There was a fair volume of business.

Provisions held about steady. What action there was in prices appeared to depend chiefly on the course of the hog market.

TRADE REVIEW

New York, May 29.—Dun's Review of Trade says: "Steadily expanding industrial operations—due mainly, but not wholly to the big war demands—have a stimulating effect generally, although the many uncertainties of the foreign situation make for caution everywhere. Hesitancy in new enterprise, however, does not imply any lack of confidence in the future, but rather a disposition to await further developments in regard to the country's diplomatic relations with Germany. Fundamentally, domestic conditions gain in strength; gold is again flowing this way, and the banking position is unusually sound, with ample funds available for all requirements; collections are somewhat less difficult on the whole and while credits are still closely scanned, commercial failures during May made much the best exhibit of the year. Moreover, the purchasing power of the people is enhanced as the number of unemployed diminishes. Prospects for large traffic movements in grain and other staples prompt the transporting companies to enter the market more freely for needed equipment and buying on the part of these interests together with the urgent war demands, results in continued improvement in iron and steel."

TRADING IS VERY QUIET

Expected German Reply to Washington's Note Restrains Business.

New York, May 29.—Trading in stocks was almost at a standstill today, the impending holidays, coupled with the probability of the publication of Germany's reply in the interim, making for increased caution. Prices tended lower in the early dealings, war shares and other specialties scoring declines of 1 to almost 3 points. United States Steel fluctuated within a point, and other favorites moved more narrowly. Reading and Rock Island fell a point, and Missouri Pacific steadied on further deposits of notes under the extension plan. The list showed general improvement later. The closing was firm. Bonds were easier.

BIG LEDGE

As a stockholder or prospective stockholder you will be interested in the following—

Humboldt, Ariz., May 22, 1915.

"On the north side of the property we have a force of men at work on the open pit for steam shovel work. The ore is running from 10 to 15% copper from the grass roots, and is FOUR HUNDRED FEET WIDE.

"On the west side we are drilling and the ground is good, is increasing in values in copper and gold as we go down. From this we will send in cores from the drilling next week. Also on the west side we are opening up two open pits, and from all the work we are taking out good ore to ship to the smelter by teams.

'Besides the drill crews we have 26 men at work.

"There will be no delay in getting ready for big operations this year. EVERY SHAFT, TUNNEL and CUT IS IN ORE and we are MAKING BIG STOCKPILES TO SHIP. Besides this we are cleaning off the ledges wherever they are exposed, to show the ore over it. It is only a question of time necessary to block out the ore and assay the samples to get some idea how big we are, and this is being done fast."

(Signed) CHAS. BATRE.

The above coming from the vice president of the Big Ledge speaks for itself. Preparations are being made to start regular shipments. Nothing is quite so convincing as smelter returns. Remember is rapidly developing into a mine of huge promise. With ore being blocked out and regular shipments inaugurated, it must be clear to all that present prices will not maintain long. Permit us to suggest the advisability of quick action if you desire to secure any stock at present prices. Big Ledge looks like the real opportunity of the day. Write for our circular and bulletins.

GOOD COPPER MINES ARE GETTING SCARCE

P. S. The following telegram has just been received from President Le Duc and Vice President Batre, dated May 27:

"Development last week on Copper Kettle, Copper Spring and Mountain View Claims can be classed as a large strike of high-grade copper and gold of large proportions that cannot be definitely stated for sixty days beyond the fact that the ledge now shows over 100 feet in width, one-half a mile long and 35 feet deep. Have a large force of men sinking the three shafts and proving the width of the outcrop which shows over 100 feet now. Drill on the west side running satisfactorily, also taking out shipping ore, preparing three open pits; run 3 to 18%—average 7% copper. We are making arrangements with the Clarkdale Smelter to treat the ore."

TO INCREASE ITS CAPACITY

Copper Range to Install Another Turbine at Champion Mill.

Mining Operations Are to Be Resumed By Winona Monday.

Houghton, Mich., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Copper Range Consolidated will install at the Champion mill a turbine of the same capacity as that at the Baltic mill, 600-kilowatt or 800-horse power, which with that at the Baltic will run all of the regrinding mills now in use and those that will, in the near future, be added to the present plant. The addition of other mills will be made for the purpose of regrinding all of the tailings of the mills. The regrinding mills now in use make at least a recovery of two pounds of copper which will be considerably increased by the mills to be added.

Houghton.

Houghton Copper will begin about Monday to ship rock to the Winona mill, via Isle Royale and Houghton. Another connection could have been made with the Copper Range railroad, but the connection through Altantic is in poor condition and it would cost too much money to repair it. It is thought that it will take about two months to ship the stockpile, as the rock will have to be shoveled into a small car and pushed to the railroad rock car and dumped into it. About four large cars will be loaded daily.

Winona.

Winona will resume mining operations Monday, forwarding to the mill at first about 300 tons daily and gradually increasing this output to 600. The management states that about two pounds more are recovered at its own mill from its rock, as shown by the treatment of rock mined by Capt. J. M. Broan while he has been working the mine on tribute, than at the Centennial-Allouez and Trimountain mills, for the reason that at the Winona mill there are six regrinding mills which regrind all of the tailings while at the other two mills only a part is reground. A plant has been constructed for the continuous treatment by the Slater or ferric chloride process of twenty tons daily. This, it is thought here, will be a sufficient large test to give conclusive results. In the laboratory the tests have run very high and the process seems very well adapted to the nature of the Winona rock. Of course with the price as high as it is now the Winona will pay very well, but if the leaching process proves to be successful with this rock it will yield a fair profit even with 12-cent copper.

Isle Royale.

Isle Royale mill will put one stamp into commission in about the middle of June and the other two will be running in about two months from that time. The second and third stamps have been sent back from Milwaukee and will be set up as soon as the first begins its regular work. It only takes about two weeks to erect each stamp, but there remains a good deal of work to be done on the wash.

Ahmeek.

Ahmeek will start the fifth stamp, the first of the new addition to the mill, Monday on its regular run, it and its wash having been limbered up and adjusted the present week. Orders have been given to rush the sixth stamp and the stamp itself is already set up and everything at the mill is ready, but it will have to wait for the completion of the wash at the Calumet & Hecla shops. There is no crushing roll at this stamp and it will take care of about 650 tons, making the output of the mineral about 3,400 tons daily, the rock coming from the four shafts. The sixth stamp will enable the Calumet & Hecla to care for the rock of some of its subsidiaries and the Ahmeek thereby to earn some additional money. The mill with this aid will cease to work Sunday nights, which has been done for about four months.

Keweenaw.

Keweenaw Copper is about half way down to the ninth level and the ground has been averaging good. Drifting on the east side of the shaft on the fourth level has been discontinued owing to the nearness of the old workings. Drifting is to be carried on at the fourth level west, fifth and sixth both east and west, and has just been started on the seventh east. As a whole the openings are showing good grades of the metal. The work is being pushed as fast as possible in order to begin production at an early date.

Quincy.

Quincy is giving a marathon regrinding mill at a trial at its mill under the direction of J. H. Johnson of the Johnson Engineering Works of Chicago, the manufacturers. The mill is cylindrical in shape, nine feet long and three feet wide, and the grinding is done by steel rods varying in diameter from one to eight inches, according to the material and the evenness desired. The advantages claimed are twice the amount of product with the same amount of only one-half the horse power, and that the cost will not be increased on account of the war as in the case of the French and Danish flint and chert pebbles used in some of the regrinding mills and which are becoming quite scarce owing to the great difficulty of importing them in any quantity.

Mass.

Mass is now treating at its mill a little over 1,100 tons daily, very gradually, but constantly, increasing and in due time will attain the 1,200 figure and perhaps a little better than that. The old workings on the Evergreen lode in a short time be drained out by the diamond drill hole recently bored to them and will afford on the sides and below some good ground. The third of the North lodes of the South Lake is being opened by one drift which is employed first on one drift and then on the other and is still showing a good quality of heavy and also of stamp copper. This mine is earning good profits and its prospects were never so bright.

Allouez.

Allouez's costs are higher than those of the Ahmeek and some of the other mines on the Kearsarge lode because here the lode turned to the northwest and there has resulted a fracturing that renders the hanging-wall difficult to support. Several times more pillars have had to be cut out here which entails more cost and there is then the great difficulty in recovering them after the good rock has been taken out. A system of mining that can be called the Chute and Pillar system has been adapted to this mine with greatest protection to the men and permits the largest amount of ground to be recovered with the lowest cost. Openings are cut into the upper side of the drift about twenty-five feet apart and high enough to serve as chutes into the cars and the rock is taken out or stoped so as to give a thickness of four feet to these long pillars left between the small openings. The broken down rock is caught by the pillars and continues them up into a triangular shape which checks the force of the rest of the descending rock and then more pillars cut out up in the openings as the weakness of the hanging-wall demands. After the rock is exhausted as many of the pillars are taken out as possible and some times they are pretty much all removed, but oftener the greater part of them are abandoned. Of course after sufficient reserves are opened up, the cost will be greatly reduced as then advance work will only be necessary to replace the rock taken out. To the north of No. 2 shaft several long drifts, one of which will have the length of about 3,500 feet, are being driven to the boundary and no stoping will be done before the boundary is reached. There will be another lessening of the cost when adequate reserves are provided because while the rock that is taken out more than compensates for the expense, it of course costs more than that of regularly selected stopes, as a great deal of poor rock has to be taken with the good.

Superior.

Superior is getting ready to resume work at shaft No. 2 in a few days. It is twenty feet below the eighteenth level, or 1,625 feet from the surface, and although crosscuts have been driven to both lodes on the eighteenth and some other lodes above, no copper has been disclosed. The distance from No. 1 south to No. 2 is 2,400 feet and copper has been found in the eighteenth level, which being pushed to connect with the latter shaft, for 1,400 feet on the west vein. The work on this connection will also be begun anew. There is quite a probability the rich shoot trends with depth southerly.

New Arcadian.

New Arcadian began again to sink its shaft from the 900-foot level to the 1,500-foot level with one drill, but another will be put in a few days. About ninety feet a month is the ordinary rate of speed, but as Jackhammer drills are to be used the figure may be higher. There are five drills in operation besides that in the shaft, two seeking the No. 8 conglomerate, the well known geological marker, in the crosscut south of the shaft, one in each drift on the 900-foot level, on its way to the New Baltic, where the northern is still maintaining its width of sixteen feet and its richness, and another is finishing a sump or catch basin for the mine water. The 1,050 foot level should be reached in about fifty to fifty-five days.

Algomah.

Algomah has installed its recently acquired compressor and has one drill in action to be soon followed by another in taking out the black oxide of copper at the forty-foot level. When the ore is taken out the ballers will begin to unwater, probably in two or three weeks.

MINING CLAIMS ARE LOCATED

Chief Consolidated Has Taken 183 Claims in Tintic District.

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 29.—Notices of the location of 183 mining claims in the Tintic and the North Tintic mining district for the Chief Consolidated Mining company have been filed with the recorder of Utah county. The locations cover practically all the ground that is open to location in the vicinity of the Scotia mine which is under bond and lease to the Chief for $110,000.

On account of the good results that are being obtained by the Chief in the Scotia property, the company has decided to fully explore that section. The property located comprises approximately 3600 acres of ground.

The company has had engineers in the field for several weeks running surveys and ascertaining what property was already held. At the same time the geological features of the ground have been inquired into as fully as possible and the Chief has laid out plans for systematic development of as much of the district as can possibly be taken in for the least expenditure.

HIGH VALUES RECOVERED BY THE OIL FLOTATION PROCESS

Great Increase Is Reported By Butte & Superior Company.

Slump in Barnes-King on Rumor of Possible Litigation.

Butte, Mont., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The highest value of concentrates recovered by the oil flotation process of the Butte & Superior Copper company were those reported for the month of April, the value of the concentrates being $62.26 per ton, against $47.38 per ton in March and $48.64 in February. The concentrates in last December were valued at $28.24 per ton, indicating a great increase in recoveries since then. During April the mill treated 36,951 tons of ore and recovered 7,798 tons of concentrates at a cost of $3.74 per ton. In March, 36,812 tons of ore were handled and 7,365 tons were treated and 8,144 tons of concentrates made at a cost of $3.40 per ton. In a statement, required by law, which the Butte & Superior has filed with the county authorities its financial condition is set forth. The authorized capital is given at $3,500,000, of which $2,720,947 has been actually paid in. Of the amount paid in $1,397,465.08 was in cash, and the remainder in real and personal property, $1,138,581.92 on the basis of the original authorized capital stock of 1,200,000 shares of the par value of $5 each. The capital was reduced to 250,000 shares and the par value changed to $10, and this has since been increased to 350,000 shares. The sum of $184,000 was issued in conversion of the company's refunding bonds. The assets of the company are placed at $7,134,954.61, including interests in transit, accounts receivable, materials and supplies, cash and deferred charges. The liabilities are $218,227.84.

North Butte Extension.

The North Butte Extension Development company, control of which is in the Butte & Superior, reports a capitalization of $1,500,000, of which $1,338,850 is outstanding. Stock to the amount of $285,350 was issued in payment of a like amount of stock of the North Butte Extension Copper Mining company, which the development company succeeded under a reorganization. The capital stock paid in in other ways is $1,053,500, as follows: For development of company's properties, $300,000; acquisition of other stock of the North Butte Extension Copper Mining company, $17,000; payment for property, $86,000; services, $500; to pay off indebtedness of the old company, $150,000. Assets are placed at $350,000.

Atlantic Mines.

The Atlantic Mines company, a corporation organized to take over the Lexington group of mines after the La France Copper company failed, reports that it has a capitalization of $1,000,000, of which one-fourth was actually paid in. The assets, including the Lexington property, are placed at $500,241.22. The company and property are now owned by the Anaconda company and the latter is engaged in re-opening the mines for the purpose of mining its zinc deposits.

Four of the mines of the Aanconda company, the Tramway, Buffalo, St. Lawrence and Badger State, were closed for four days in order to decrease the ore output because the Washoe smelter had an over-supply on hand. The mines resumed operations last Monday.

Barnes-King.

There has been a slump in the price of Barnes-King Development company stock from $2 to $2 per share during the past month or two, and insiders explain the probable reason to be a rumor of possible litigation with the Kendall Mining company over the ore deposits of the North Moccasin and Kendall mines. President Goodalo of the Barnes-King company says the only basis for the rumor is the fact that he has been in correspondence with the Kendall people relative to an agreement as to the boundary of ore body to which each company is entitled, and there is no possibility of any litigation. Only a small portion of the ore body is involved in the question of establishing a boundary agreement. The North Moccasin's main ore body is in another portion of the ground. The official returns for April were slightly higher than the estimates. The total value of the bullion was $44,293.38, and the tonnage of ore mined was 4,608 tons, the average value being $9.61. The reports for the first weeks in May indicate that the month will run about the same as April. The electric power has been turned on the mill of the Pegan-Gloster and both the mine and mill are expected to be in full operation by June 1. Every report from the Pegan-Gloster is of the most encouraging nature, and officers of the company look upon that property as the most important producer in the future. The company has about $250,000 in the treasury, two good gold producers, no debts, and the belief is that as soon as the returns from the Pegan-Gloster come in the company will begin the prayment of a quarterly dividend of probably 10 cents per Anaconda.

At the annual meeting of the Anaconda Copper Mining company the plan of the directors to reduce the capitalization by half and double the par value of the stock, raising it from $25 to $50 per share, was adopted without opposition, the purpose being in furtherance of the scheme to absorb the Amalgamated Copper company. The Anaconda board of directors was enlarged from seven to nine to make room on the board for three Amalgamated company representatives, A. H. Melin, one of the old Anaconda directors, retiring but remaining in his position of secretary-treasurer. The new directors are Andrew J. Miller of New York for two-year term; Nicholas F. Brady and J. Horace Harding of New York for three-year terms. The directors re-elected are John D. Ryan of New York, C. P. Kelley of Butte and Ben B. Thayer of New York for one-year term; H. H. Rogers and George H. Church of New York for two-year terms and William Rockefeller of New York for a three-year term. The number of shares of the company was reduced from 6,000,000 to 3,000,000, leaving the capital stock of the company at $150,000,000. The next move in the plan to dissolve the Amalgamated company will be the exchange of stock. The Amalgamated has 3,212,684 shares of the Anaconda company in its treasury but by reducing the number of shares of the latter company the Amalgamated holdings are cut to 1,606,342. The Amalgamated has 1,538,879 shares of its own stock outstanding which will be exchanged for the new Anaconda stock.

Washoe Acid Plant.

The new acid plant at the Washoe smelter was put in commission the past week and has begun the manufacture of sulphuric acid for use in the leaching process. Construction work has been completed to the point where operations could be started. The capacity of the plant is 100 tons of acid per day. The acid is carried to the leaching plant in special tank cars. The concentrates are brought by rail to the furnaces at the acid plant where they are roasted, and the fumes, impregnated with nitrate, pass through a series of towers and chambers of lead, the acid being drawn off as it reaches the desired strength.

Boston & Montana.

The Boston & Montana Development company tunnel on the Elkhorn property has cut another cross-vein at a distance of 1,808 feet from the portal. The vein contains copper and silver, lying in layers with quartz. It is regarded as the finest discovery yet made in the tunnel.

NINETY-DOLLAR ORE ON HOME RUN CLAIM

High Gold and Silver Values Discovered Near Alice Mine.

Butte, Mont., May 29.—Ore carrying gold values of $90 to the ton and 300 ounces in silver was struck in a 40-foot crosscut at a depth of 180 feet in the Home Run claim, located just north of the old Alice mine in the Walkerville district, according to Edward Mathews, who is interested in the development of the property with Tom Helmes, Jerry Doyle and Dan Hurley. The lead was struck this week and is eighteen inches wide. This is the second strike that has been made on the Home Run claim in a few months. The property is being worked under a lease.

The men who are working the property have been developing it for nearly eleven months and plan to make their first shipment to the Washoe smelter, about the first of the month. Big values were encountered in the first strike, but it was decided to continue sinking the shaft in the hope of getting better results at a greater depth. The hope was fulfilled, according to all reports.

Since the first strike was made, a 60-horse power electric hoist has been installed and other modern equipment put in on a small scale. The Walkerville men who are interested in the property are jubilant over their prospect. Men are being worked two shifts since the strike.

INDICATIONS OF NEW IRON RANGES

Important Report Made By Wisconsin State Geological Survey.

Madison, Wis., May 29.—It has been believed for many years that much iron ore would eventually be discovered in Northern Wisconsin. The last legislature had sufficient faith in this possibility to provide funds for beginning a survey to find what the facts are. As a result of the work the state geological survey will soon receive from the state printer the first report, covering a territory of over 2,000,000 acres.

To get an approximate idea of the area, take your map and draw a line connecting the following towns in order: Cameron, Spooner, Hayward, Cable, Morse, Park Falls, Minocqua, Prentice, Phillips, Winter, Ladysmith and Holcombe.

Many of the ninety townships surveyed show very strong indications of the presence of iron formation—the rock in which iron ore is found—and there will undoubtedly be a large amount of drilling done in this area in the near future on the basis of the information contained in this report.

Each of the ninety townships is described in plain terms and definite statements are made as to just which lands show the best indications, and which lands are not worth exploring. Each township description is accompained by a detailed map of that township about eight inches square. This map shows all the railroads, roads, houses, streams, swamps and other ordinary features of a map, and in addition shows the magnetic lines indicating the presence of iron formation, the rock outcrops, and all the detailed readings taken with the dial compass and dip needle.

The report comprises about 400 pages and 91 maps and is well-bound. It is sent out free to persons requesting it and forwarding the 20 cents necessary to pay for mailing. Address all requests to the State Geologist, Madison, Wis. Those writing now will receive their copies as soon as the printer can furnish them within about two or three weeks.

SHAFT WORK TO START AT BARROWS

Northern Pacific Laying Spur Track to the Property.

Brainerd, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—That shaft work is soon to be started at the Barrows Mining company's property is evidenced by the fact that the Northern Pacific railway is laying an 1,800-foot spur track to the property. Bids have been asked for on machinery and supplies. C. P. Meyers of Duluth and C. B. Rowley of Brainerd were in Minneapolis Monday and purchased some machinery which will be shipped to Barrows at once. The company expects to start construction on the shaft by June 1.

At the Iron Mountain mine three shifts of men are busily engaged in shaft sinking to the first level, and the ore taken out is being shipped. The shaft penetrates a body of high-class manganiferous ore for which the mining company has a ready market. The Soo railroad has a gang of carpenters at work reconstructing the shafthouse which was damaged by one of their trains, and the shafthouse is expected to be in service again in a few weeks.

The stockholders of the Cuyuna Iron & Manganese Ore company held their annual meeting and elected these directors for the ensuing year: John Wahl, S. Momb and C. P. Meyers of Duluth, and T. F. Lynch and J. P. Boyle of Eveleth.

DISSOLUTION IS NEAR AT HAND

Profit of the Amalgamated in Sixteen Months Is Shown.

In view of the approaching dissolution of the Amalgamated company, which is set for June 7, the report for the sixteen months ending April 30 is of especial importance. It shows the net income for that time of $7,847,288, or $4.80 per share.

The income and dividends from associated companies was $8,647,012, from which had to be deducted $1,299,724 expenses, distributed as follows: Office and administrative expenses, $184,932; Federal income and state taxes, $80,387; interest and discount on loans, $1,034,404.

The first two named items will be largely eliminated by the new consolidation.

The company's balance sheet on April 30, 1915, showed investments in securities to the amount of $176,819,955 and cash and cash assets of $1,257,880, or a total of $177,577,835. There was a surplus of $21,743,153, accounts payable of $1,936,782, with outstanding a capital stock of $153,887,900.

In his report President John D. Ryan said in part:

"Directors believe that the interests of the shareholders will be materially and immediately benefited by the dissolution and the consequent exchange of their holdings into the stock of the Anaconda company.

"Since its incorporation the Amalgamated Copper company has earned profits amounting to $113,032,800, of which $91,279,147 has been paid in dividends and $21,552,964 of cash has been invested in properties in securities that have since they were acquired been exchanged for Anaconda stock. The subsidiary companies have since the formation of the company, charged off for depreciation and obsolescence the sum of $33,117,007 and for depletion of timber holdings and coal mines $1,604,545, a total of $34,721,461."

BUILDING LOTS AND MODERATE PRICED HOUSES IN DEMAND

Auction Sale of Lots—Waverly Park Deal Nearly Closed.

Inquiry for building lots and moderate-priced houses remained the feature in real estate circles during the past week. Though the unfavorable weather imposed a bar to activity, through interfering with inspections by prospective investors, a lengthy list of transactions was recorded.

An interesting development in the high-class residence field came in the passing of deeds from the East Duluth Land company to Edward F. Chapin, Jr., for three lots at Thirty-third avenue east and First street, just east of Congdon park, at a consideration of $3,575. The Little & Nolte company represented the seller and the Whitney Wall company the purchaser. It is understood that Mr. Chapin proposes to build a modern home upon the site during the present season.

Will Sell By Auction.

Considerable interest is expected to be created in the realty field in the announcement by the N. J. Upham company of its proposal to hold an auction sale of a choice block of residence property next Saturday, June 5. Fourteen fifty-foot lots on First street, between Twenty-eighth and Thirty-first avenues east will be offered for disposition to the highest bidders. Six of these lots are at the corner of Hawthorne road, which is now paved its full length, and the laying of a new pavement has been arranged for at that end of First street. It is in a district surrounded by expensive modern homes and the building of others is being arranged for in Congdon Park and elsewhere in that vicinity, so that the opportunity is regarded as a most favorable one for prospective home builders. The method of selling is an entirely new departure in Duluth and its outcome will be awaited with interest by investors.

The effort to dispose of the lots remaining unsold in Waverly Park is reported to have been attended with good results so far, and strong hopes are entertained that the plat will be cleaned up prior to June 15, when, as announced, prices on any lots then not disposed of will be advanced $100 each. Sales of two lots were put through yesterday by the N. J. Upham company, and options have been taken upon two others.

That office besides advised the sale of a two-family flat house on Ninth avenue east near Fourth street; also a house and lot at Third avenue west and Sixth street, and a 40-acre parcel of land near the Jean Duluth farm.

Real Estate Banquet.

Members of the Duluth Real Estate exchange have arranged to celebrate its tenth anniversary in the holding of a banquet at the Kitchi Gammi club next Tuesday evening, June 1. A committee headed by John A. Stephenson is engaged upon a program for the evening's entertainment, and a number of new features are promised. Members of the city commission, J. B. Cotton, president of the Commercial club, and others will be included in the list of speakers.

The A. A. Fider company reported the receipt of earnest money on the sale of two houses, one at Second avenue east and Seventh street, and the other at First avenue east and Railroad street.

Quickening up in inquiry for lots in the Park Drive addition above Chester park was advised by the Hoopes-Kohagen company.

As a result of the more optimistic feeling prevailing in steel trade circles, gratifying improvement in outside investment inquiry for lots in Gary First and Central divisions was commented upon by A. W. Kuehnow, president of the Gary Land company. Prospective buyers from the Twin Cities were in the city during the week.

The Wahl-Messer Realty company sold two Home Acre tracts over the Duluth Heights yesterday for immediate improvement.

Four tracts at Exeter Farms were disposed of by the Alliance Real Estate company to local buyers who are arranging to take up market gardening.

Charles P. Craig & Co., acting for the Lakeside Land company, sold a lot on Juniata street and one on Jay street, upon which contracts have been let for the building of houses. Seven 2½-acre parcels at Greysolon Farms were also disposed of during the week by that office. Three more houses are now in course of erection out there.

The Benjamin F. Schweiger company sold this week No. 1124 East Ninth street, consisting of a seven-room dwelling, on a 50x140-foot lot to Richard O. Hambly at a consideration of $2,300.

It also sold lot No. 3, block 67, Harrison's Brookdale division to Swan M. Lindberg at a consideration of $300, and No. 113 Tenth avenue east, a seven-room dwelling on a 40x50-foot lot to Ida Seifert, at a consideration of $2,000.

The Whitney Wall company sold a lot in the Homewood addition at Seventh avenue east to John Carlson for $325. A good inquiry for building lots is being received by that office.

Deeds for the old Wentworth property on the upper side of Second street, near Second avenue west, passed today to the purchasers, J. T. and M. K. Stack. While the consideration for the 100-foot frontage was not mentioned, it is understood to have been approximately $20,000. As intimated in The Herald a week ago, fifty feet of the frontage has been sold to the Knights of Columbus as the site for a handsome building which it is proposed to erect next summer.

LAND ON MONTHLY PAYMENTS!

We are offering to settlers and investors a tract of about 100,000 acres of hardwood land in Douglas County, Wisconsin, only one hour's ride on the train from Duluth, on a cash payment of $1 per acre and the balance payable in monthly installments of $5 on each forty bought. The soil is a rich clay loam as fertile as any in America, and unexcelled for dairying, stock raising and general farming.

Douglas County climate is ideal. Summers comfortable and cool with long days, plenty of sunshine and plenty of rain. Winters steadily but not severely cold. No cyclones or bad blizzards. The early and late frosts, so dangerous to fruit and crops in other places, are counteracted here by the proximity of the lake.

Douglas County markets are the best. Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and St. Paul and all the cities of the Middle West and the great copper and iron mining regions of the North are within a few hours' ride, while the cities of Duluth and Superior, connected with the rural districts by good roads and the best of local train service, are a permanent and ever growing market for all farm products. The U. S. Steel corporation and the railroads are spending many millions annually to make the Twin Ports one of America's greatest commercial centers, and many conservative business men predict that Duluth will be a second Pittsburgh. All this means an immense increase in land values that will be yours if you buy now.

There are no better opportunities for land buyers than right here within a few miles of the Head of the Lakes, where clover grows like a weed, where freight rates are low and farm produce high, where building material are a source of income instead of expense, where the farmer buys in the lowest and sells in the highest market, where the soil is rich and the rainfall abundant, where dairy products run into millions annually and where the climate is the most wholesome in all the world.

Prices on our Douglas County lands will average about $15 per acre. Land seekers are taken out to look over our lands every day. Call or write.

CONFERENCE OF FARM INTERESTS

Meeting Will Be Held in St. Paul Next July.

A conference for all interested in any way in country life and the development of its resources will be held July 27 to July 31 at the University farm, St. Paul, according to advices received here.

The details of the program are now being worked out. Charles Otis Mc-mie of Pennsylvania, a speaker and rural worker of considerable ability, has been secured for a series of lectures. He comes to Minnesota with the highest recommendations, and with a list of lectures which indicates that he has studied the problems of rural development from various important angles. Others on the program will be Rev. E. C. Hickman, Byron, Minnesota; Rev. E. H. Edwards, Castle Rock, Minnesota; A. M. Locker, secretary of the Minnesota Sunday School union, and various members of the faculty of the Minnesota College of Agriculture.

Those attending the conference can secure accommodations in the dormitories on the campus at a charge of $5 for board and room for the week.

CANKER WORMS NUMEROUS.

Spraying of Trees Suggested By Agricultural Expert.

Measuring worms, or canker worms as they are commonly called, are said to be worse than usual this season throughout the state.

The young caterpillars or loopers are now very small, and, where spraying can be done, as in an orchard, the early sprays containing arsenate of lead will be very effective. The only protection for large shade, or forest trees now is to band those not in contact with other trees, with tree tanglefoot or other sticky material, thus catching the worms as they crawl from tree to tree.

It has been definitely proved that both the fall and the spring canker worms are here, according to A. G. Ruggles of the Minnesota Experiment station. The only difference between the two varieties is that the adult moths of the fall canker worm leave the soil and lay eggs on the trees in the fall, while the adults of the spring canker worm leave the soil and deposit eggs in the spring. The proper time to "get" these insects is at the egg-laying period. Tanglefoot around tree trunks catches the wingless moths on their way up the trees to lay eggs.

CORN PLANTING TIME IN JUNE

Hostetter Urges Farmers to Get Ground in Good Condition.

June 1 to June 15 is corn planting time for St. Louis county farmers, according to A. B. Hostetter, district supervisor of agricultural agents of Northern Minnesota.

Mr. Hostetter declares that in the meantime, the farmers should keep the ground well cultivated and before the seed is planted the soil should be properly prepared. An indication of the progress that is being made in introducing field corn in this immediate territory is the announcement that the following farm owners are building silos to care for the crop this summer:

Anton Passard, Hibbing; R. Pritchart, Hibbing; P. Mortenson, Hibbing (two silos); F. Ainsley, Hibbing; Thomas Dillon, Hibbing; Dr. W. H. Magie, Duluth; Louis Anderson, Pike Lake; James Sullivan, Duluth; R. B. Knox, Duluth.

Mr. Hostetter declares that this points to a greater development of the dairy industry in St. Louis county.

CARE URGED IN FEEDING CALVES

Diet During Early Stage Declared the Most Important.

That the first year of a calf's life is the most important with respect to its growth is the declaration of R. M. Washburn of the University farm, St. Paul, who declares that unless animals are kept growing during this period, their final development will be much retarded, and that the chances are they will never reach the scale which their inheritance would give them.

On the best regulated dairy farms, he says, calves are born in the autumn and early winter, and they should receive skim milk in moderate quantities through much, or all, of the summer following birth. On farms having hand separators there is no difficulty in providing the sweet milk for calves, morning and evening; but farmers who patronize whole-milk creameries or who still skim by hand should remember that after the first few weeks milk for calves should either be thoroughly sweet or fully sour, that the most dangerous condition is the half-sour stage. If milk is fed to calves when it is in this changing condition it is almost certain to cause indigestion. It should not be half sour, nor sour one day and sweet the next, but always one or the other.

Clean feeding pails must be used, otherwise the germs of fermentation and diarrhoea will be brought to the infant cow from the slime of the dirty drinking dish, and with young calves it is important that the temperature at which the milk is fed be nearly that of the body. Older animals may receive milk of the temperature of the milk-holding tank.

While it is very important that heifers should have free access to pasture during the second summer, to develop strong bodies, the calf need not have pasture the first summer. In fact, for calves born after the first of the year, pasturing may be a disadvantage. Most young calves in this country are better off chewing tender hay in the quiet and half-dark stable than fighting flies, panting from the heat, and cropping tough grass in the pasture.

DISPOSES OF $50,000,000

Will of Late Alfred G. Vanderbilt Filed for Probate.

Trust Fund Bequeathed By Father, Passes to His Son.

New York, May 29.—The will of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who perished when the Lusitania went down, was filed for probate today in the office of the surrogate of New York county.

Margaret Emerson Vanderbilt, the widow, is left $2,000,000, in accordance with an ante-nuptial agreement made in London, an additional sum of $1,000,000 and the income of a trust fund of $5,000,000.

Widow Gets Real Estate.

Mrs. Vanderbilt also receives real estate here and abroad, including Sagamore lodge, Camp Killkare in New York, and Gloucester House in London.

The trust fund, which was bequeathed to him by his father, Cornelius Vanderbilt, is transferred to the deceased's eldest son, William H. Vanderbilt, who also receives the use of Oakland farm, at Portsmouth, R. I., which the executors are forbidden to dispose of until he reaches his majority.

Other Bequests.

Mr. Vanderbilt's brother Reginald C. Vanderbilt receives $500,000; his uncle, Frederick W. Vanderbilt, $200,000; Frederick M. Davies, $500,000; Henry B. Anderson, $200,000; Frederick L. Merriam, $250,000; Charles E. Croker, $10,000, and Howard Lockwood $1,000. Employes of Oakland farm, Saganore lodge, Camp Killkare and Gloucester House in London, who have been in service for five years, get a full year's wages.

The rest of the estate is bequeathed to the executors to divide among the sons of Margaret Emerson Vanderbilt, his second wife, who are Alfred G., Jr., and George.

The will is dated Dec. 16, 1913, and was signed in New York city. The executors are Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Frederick W. Vanderbilt, Henry B. Anderson, Frederick M. Davies and Frederick L. Merriam.

COPPER STOCKS RALLY AT CLOSE

tions in which Duluthians are largely interested, including the Shattuck-Arizona Copper company, the Inter-state-Callahan and the Cuyuna range, are featured in it.

Commenting upon the present stock market situation, it says: "Pending the reply from Germany to the Washington note the stock market has been in a waiting attitude, displaying strength through the list all the time, and giving some attention to specialties. The market is rather narrow, but quite generally strong. An advance of ten points in the price of lead was an encouraging feature. Pullman company will contract with Russia to furnish 40,000 freight cars, representing $25,000,000 to $30,000,000. Champion declared $1 dividend, Interstate-Callahan, $1.25; C. & A. regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents; Butte & Superior regular quarterly and $2.50 extra. Chino increased dividend from 50 to 75 cents. Utah Copper increased dividend from 75 cents to $1. Ray resumed at 37½ cents per share. Nevada Con. declared 37½ cents.

"The news is all on the constructive side, and the pending reply from Germany is expected to eliminate the crisis. New Cornelia directors plan 50,000,000 bond issue, 3,500,000 to be underwritten and offered to public."

The Butte & Ballaklava Copper company's mine, President I. Freimuth declares, is now on a profitable operating basis. He expresses great satisfaction at conditions and prospects. The mine is producing 150 tons per day, and the ore shoot on the 1,600-level looks well. The ore in the West drift at last report averaged 6.2 per cent copper across a face of five feet. The average in the East drift face, taken at same time, was 4.8 copper. The ore face was four and one-half feet wide. The ore of the Ballaklava mine runs about one ounce silver to every unit of copper. The ore body, opened on the 1,600 by drifts east and west, had a total of 70 feet at last report, and a very satisfactory average. Annual meeting of the company will be held in Duluth next Monday.

Bemidji Jitneur Fined.

Bemidji, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thirty-five dollars were collected in two days in fines this week by Judge M. A. Crowell of the municipal court. Ten dollars were forfeited from two young men who had deposited that amount as bail on a charge of drunkenness, $5 on a fine of a jitney bus driver for speeding and $20 were paid by two men arrested for disorderly conduct. This is a record not exceeded since the saloons left Bemidji.

cause the sun had set and the ship was considered at sea. The chief engineer of the ship at 8:24 p. m. observed a white streak in the water, perpendicular to the ship on the starboard side and a severe shock was almost instantly felt, followed by a violent explosion abreast hold No. 1.

Hatch Covers Blown Off.

"Hatch covers were blown off, also cargo booms above the same, and the air was filled with oil and debris, the double bottom compartments below Hold No. 1 having been used for tanks for fuel oil. Bottom plating and pieces of the side were blown up through two decks. The ship settled immediately by the head, and officers and crew took to boats. After remaining off the ship about one hour they returned and headed the ship for Liverpool. Under orders of the British admiralty a British naval trawler came up at midnight and remained with the Nebraskan until she reached the mouth of the Mersey.

"No one was seriously injured. The ambassador is sending by mail a detailed report of Lieut. Towers and depositions of three ship officers taken by the consul at Liverpool."

Officials who read the report closely said it contained all the evidence of an attack by torpedo. There had been some doubt whether it was not a mine.

CORN PLANTING TIME IN JUNE

Hostetter Urges Farmers to Get Ground in Good Condition.

June 1 to June 15 is corn planting time for St. Louis county farmers, according to A. B. Hostetter, district supervisor of agricultural agents of Northern Minnesota.

Mr. Hostetter declares that in the meantime, the farmers should keep the ground well cultivated and before the seed is planted the soil should be properly prepared. An indication of the progress that is being made in introducing field corn in this immediate territory is the announcement that the following farm owners are building silos to care for the crop this summer: Anton Passard, Hibbing; R. Pritchart, Hibbing, P. Mortenson, Hibbing (two silos); F. Ainsley, Hibbing; Thomas Dillon, Hibbing; Dr. W. H. Magie, Duluth; Louis Anderson, Pike Lake; James Sullivan, Duluth; R. B. Knox, Duluth.

Mr. Hostetter declares that this points to a greater development of the dairy industry in St. Louis county.

That the first year of a calf's life is the most important with respect to its growth is the declaration of R. M. Washburn of the University farm, St. Paul, who declares that unless animals are kept growing during this period, their final development will be much retarded, and that the chances are they will never reach the scale which their inheritance would give them.

On the best regulated dairy farms, he says, calves are born in the autumn and early winter, and they should receive skim milk in moderate quantities through much, or all, of the summer following birth. On farms having hand separators there is no difficulty in providing the sweet milk for calves, morning and evening; but farmers who patronize whole-milk creameries or who still skim by hand should remember that after the first few weeks milk for calves should either be thoroughly sweet or fully sour, that the most dangerous condition is the half-sour stage. If milk is fed to calves when it is in this changing condition it is almost certain to cause indigestion. It should not be half sour, nor sour one day and sweet the next, but always one or the other.

Clean feeding pails must be used, otherwise the germs of fermentation and diarrhoea will be brought to the infant cow from the slime of the dirty drinking dish, and with young calves it is important that the temperature at which the milk is fed be nearly that of the body. Older animals may receive milk of the temperature of the milk-holding tank.

While it is very important that heifers should have free access to pasture during the second summer, to develop strong bodies, the calf need not have pasture the first summer. In fact, for calves born after the first of the year, pasturing may be a disadvantage. Most young calves in this country are better off chewing tender hay in the quiet and half-dark stable than fighting flies, panting from the heat, and cropping tough grass in the pasture.

CONFERENCE OF FARM INTERESTS

Meeting Will Be Held in St. Paul Next July.

A conference for all interested in any way in country life and the development of its resources will be held July 27 to July 31 at the University farm, St. Paul, according to advices received here.

The details of the program are now being worked out. Charles Otis Morrie of Pennsylvania, a speaker and rural worker of considerable ability, has been secured for a series of lectures. He comes to Minnesota with the highest recommendations, and with a list of lectures which indicates that he has studied the problems of rural development from various important angles. Others on the program will be Rev. E. C. Hickman, Byron, Minnesota; Rev. E. H. Edwards, Castle Rock, Minnesota; A. M. Locker, secretary of the Minnesota Sunday School union, and various members of the faculty of the Minnesota College of Agriculture.

Those attending the conference can secure accommodations in the dormitories on the campus at a charge of $5 for board and room for the week.

For further information address A. F. Woods, dean, department of agriculture, University farm, St. Paul.

Spraying of Trees Suggested By Agricultural Expert.

Measuring worms, or canker worms as they are commonly called, are said to be worse than usual this season throughout the state.

The young caterpillars or loopers are now very small, and, where spraying can be done, as in an orchard, the early sprays containing arsenate of lead will be very effective. The only protection for large shade, or forest trees now is to band those not in contact with other trees, with tree tanglefoot or other sticky material, thus catching the worms as they crawl from tree to tree.

It has been definitely proved that both the fall and the spring canker worms are here, according to A. G. Ruggles of the Minnesota Experiment station. The only difference between the two varieties is that the adult moths of the fall canker worm leave the soil and lay eggs on the trees in the fall, while the adults of the spring canker worm leave the soil and deposit eggs in the spring. The proper time to "get" these insects is at the egg-laying period. Tanglefoot around tree trunks catches the wingless moths on their way up the trees to lay eggs.

DISPOSES OF $50,000,000

Will of Late Alfred G. Vanderbilt Filed for Probate.

Trust Fund Bequeathed By Father, Passes to His Son.

New York, May 29.—The will of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who perished when the Lusitania went down, was filed for probate today in the office of the surrogate of New York county.

Margaret Emerson Vanderbilt, the widow, is left $2,000,000, in accordance with an ante-nuptial agreement made in London, an additional sum of $1,000,000 and the income of a trust fund of $5,000,000.

Widow Gets Real Estate.

Mrs. Vanderbilt also receives real estate here and abroad, including Sagamore lodge, Camp Killkare in New York, and Gloucester House in London.

The trust fund, which was bequeathed to him by his father, Cornelius Vanderbilt, is transferred to the deceased's eldest son, William H. Vanderbilt, who also receives the use of Oakland farm, at Portsmouth, R. I., which the executors are forbidden to dispose of until he reaches his majority.

Other Bequests.

Mr. Vanderbilt's brother Reginald C. Vanderbilt receives $500,000; his uncle, Frederick W. Vanderbilt, $200,000; Frederick M. Davies, $500,000; Henry B. Anderson, $200,000; Frederick L. Merriam, $250,000; Charles E. Croker, $10,000, and Howard Lockwood $1,000. Employes of Oakland farm, Sagamore lodge, Camp Killkare and Gloucester House in London, who have been in service for five years, get a full year's wages.

The rest of the estate is bequeathed to the executors to divide among the sons of Margaret Emerson Vanderbilt, his second wife, who are Alfred G., Jr., and George.

The will is dated Dec. 16, 1913, and was signed in New York city. The executors are Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Frederick W. Vanderbilt, Henry B. Anderson, Frederick M. Davies and Frederick L. Merriam.

tions in which Duluthians are largely interested, including the Shattuck-Arizona Copper company, the Interstate-Callahan and the Cuyuna range, are featured in it.

Commenting upon the present stock market situation, it says: "Pending the reply from Germany to the Washington note the stock market has been in a waiting attitude, displaying strength through the list all the time, and giving some attention to specialties. The market is rather narrow, but quite generally strong. An advance of ten points in the price of lead was an encouraging feature. Pullman company will contract with Russia to furnish 40,000 freight cars, representing $25,000,000 to $30,000,000. Champion declared $1 dividend, Interstate-Callahan, $1.25; C. & A. regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents; Butte & Superior regular quarterly and $2.50 extra. Chino increased dividend from 50 to 75 cents. Utah Copper increased dividend from 75 cents to $1. Ray resumed at 37½ cents per share. Nevada Con. declared 37½ cents.

"The news is all on the constructive side, and the pending reply from Germany is expected to eliminate the crisis. New Cornelia directors plan 50,000,000 bond issue, 3,500,000 to be underwritten and offered to public."

The Butte & Ballaklava Copper company's mine, President I. Fredmuth declares, is now on a profitable operating basis. He expresses great satisfaction at conditions and prospects. The mine is producing 150 tons per day, and the ore shoot on the 1,600-level looks well. The ore in the West drift at last report averaged 6.2 per cent copper across a face of five feet. The average in the East drift face, taken at same time, was 4.8 copper. The ore face was four and one-half feet wide. The ore of the Ballaklava mine runs about one ounce silver to every unit of copper. The ore body, opened on the 1,600 by drifts east and west, had a total of 70 feet at last report, and a very satisfactory average. Annual meeting of the company will be held in Duluth next Monday.

Bemidji Jitneur Fined.

Bemidji, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thirty-five dollars were collected in two days in fines this week by Judge M. A. Crowell of the municipal court. Ten dollars were forfeited from two young men who had deposited that amount as bail on a charge of drunkenness, $5 on a fine of a jitney bus driver for speeding and $20 were paid by two men arrested for disorderly conduct. This is a record not exceeded since the saloons left Bemidji.

DO YOU STILL OWE

A balance of, say, $100 on your piano that you purchased from some retailer or so-called factory representative? If you had made your purchase here at the factory warerooms, you would, no doubt, have been paid up in full by this time, owing to the fact that your piano would have cost you $100 less. Remember that the dealer who buys his pianos from the various manufacturers can not compete in price and quality with the firm who manufactures and sells direct.

Investigate our easy payment plan and rent proposition.

REPLY TO GERMANY TO BE DISCUSSED TUESDAY

NEW SPIRIT OF PATRIOTISM IS EVIDENT IN THE OBSERVANCE OF MEMORIAL DAY BY DULUTH CITIZENS

"OLD GLORY" NEVER MORE SIGNIFICANT

Holiday Generally Observed and All Join in Honoring Veterans.

"Old Glory" never seemed more glorious than it did to Duluth citizens today.

There seemed to be a new spirit of patriotism in Duluth's observance of Memorial day that was never felt before.

Never was such a Memorial day parade held in the Zenith City as that of this morning.

Never did the sun shine brighter on the old soldiers.

Never did the flags flutter more bravely.

Never did the school children turn out in such numbers.

Never did the militia and naval reserves march better.

Never did the crowds show such reverence and respect for the veterans of '61.

Perhaps the blessings of a country at peace were forcibly brought to mind, but whatever the cause, Duluth Memorial day observance of 1915 will pass into history as the most notable the city has yet seen.

Half a century has passed since the close of the strife between the North and South and Duluth today turned out en masse to honor the eighty-two survivors of that great conflict now residing in this city and to commemorate the deeds of the multitudes who gave up their lives during the Civil war to perpetuate the nation or who have departed to the Great Beyond since Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox. All feeling of sectional strife and bitterness has passed away

GERMAN SUBMARINES UNUSUALLY BUSY AS ANSWER IS PREPARED

Six Large Ships Sent to Bottom Within Three Days.

White Line Steamer Megantic Is Chased By Submarine.

London, May 31.—German submarines have been unusually busy while the German foreign office was engaged in the preparation of its answer to the Washington note on the Lusitania incident. The last few days, it is pointed out in London, provided them with a heavy bag of merchant ships. These include the steamer Ethiope, 3,700 tons, and the Tullochmoor, 3,500 tons, which were sunk by submarines Friday in the approaches to the English channel. On Saturday the British steamer Ping Suey, belonging to the Holt line, was attacked twice by German undersea

French and British Troops Report Progress North of La Bassee.

Germans Have Apparently Abandoned Attempt to Take Ypres.

London, May 31.—The lull along the western battle front has been broken by the French, who claim to have taken a group of German trenches in the Nikelm region and to have made good progress north of Arras. With British co-operation they appear to have made slight progress north of La Bassee.

After repeated and costly repulses the Germans, for the time being, seem to have abandoned their attempts to take Ypres. During the past week the Germans have made only slight gains in the neighborhood of this salient.

Except for the news of the movements of warships which appear to be

GERMAN REPLY UNSATISFACTORY

Newspapers Hold Answer to the American Protest Against Submarine Attacks Upon Merchantmen Does Not Meet the Issue—Causes Most Disagreeable Impression in This Country

New York, May 31.—Editorial comment on the German note to the United States:

DISAGREEABLE IMPRESSION.

New York Times: The German reply is not responsive to our demands. It does not promote that "clear and full understanding" as to a grave situation which President Wilson in his note declared to be desirable. * * * The manner in which Berlin receives our representations in regard to the sinking of the Lusitania cannot fail to create a most disagreeable impression in this country, which the note's outward form of courtesy will not remove.

WORSE THAN EVASIVE.

New York World: The German note in response to the American protest against submarine attacks upon merchantmen does not meet the issue. It is worse than evasive. It is insincere, even pettifogging. Regret will be felt everywhere in the United States that th affairs of a great people believed to be friendly have fallen into the hands of men capable of such desperate trifling.

NOT SATISFACTORY.

New York Tribune: Germany's answer to our government's protest against the slaughter of its citizens, peacefully and lawfully going about their business on the high seas, will not satisfy American opinion. Courteous on the surface as Herr von Jagow's communication is, it does not strike the note which the people of this country hoped that it would strike.

NO MISAPPREHENSION.

New York Press: Berlin's answer to President Wilson's note is friendly, gracious and—unsatisfactory. * * * The point as made unmistakable in Mr. Wilson's note is that the von Tirpitz admiralty must stop slaughtering American citizens, whether in the case of a Gulflight or a Lusitania, whether by pairs or by scores. The Berlin foreign office speaks of a probable misapprehension on the part of our government as to the real character of the Lusitania. There is none; there could be none.

MERELY PRELIMINARY.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Germany's answer to the American note is evidently a preliminary affair, a request for further parley, and based on the assumption that a final answer must await full and mutual ascertainment of all of the facts on which the American note is based. To illustrate, the status of the Lusitania—whether a virtual cruiser and troop and ammunition transport, or passenger liner proper—is one thing Germany wants determined as preparatory to a full understanding on that particular case. Pourparlers must be gone through with. The German preliminary reply, therefore, is meant to open the way to further discussion, while scrupulously avoiding the appearance of shutting the door to the hope of an arrangement that will make for the rights and safety of neutrals, while preserving Germany's right to avail herself fully of the means at her disposal to combat Britain's overwhelming preponderance of sea power. It would be preposterous to expect Germany to discontinue positively her use of submarines against the commerce of the enemy.

REAL ISSUE IGNORED.

New York Herald: Germany has

LAST FIGHT TO SAVE LIFE OF FRANK BEGINS

State Prison Commission to Hear Application for Commutation.

Atlanta, Ga., May 31.—The last fight to save Leo M. Frank from the death penalty began here today with preparations for the hearing before the state prison commission on his application for commutation of sentence.

Counsel for Frank will present a letter written by the late Judge D. S. Boan, who presided at the prisoner's trial for the murder of Mary Phagan.

It became known last night that this letter, in which the judge is understood to reiterate his doubt as to Frank's guilt and urge executive clemency, was entrusted to Luther Z. Rosser of Frank's counsel.

It is said to have been written by the judge just before his death to be placed before the prison commission in the event the case ever reached that body.

It is estimated that the hearing will occupy not more than two days and the commission is not expected to hear Frank personally.

According to counsel, the most important new evidence to be submitted will be a statement, or possibly an affidavit, by Mrs. Frank, setting forth her knowledge of her husband's case. Mrs. Frank was not permitted by law to testify at the trial.

GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTER WHO SIGNED NOTE TO UNITED STATES

HERR VON JAGOW.

FINAL RESERVE CALLED TO COLORS

Orders Issued to All First Class Members of Landsturm.

Amsterdam, May 31, via London.—The Reichsanzeiger of Berlin has published an order calling to the colors all first-class members of the landsturm, or the final reserve forces, not previously summoned. This order does not apply to Bavaria. Germans in Germany must report between June 8 and June 10. Germans outside of Germany as soon as possible.

ANSWER OF TEUTONS IS DISAPPOINTING

President Will Give German Document Careful Study and Then Take Up the Matter With His Cabinet.

Believe Answer Will Be Forwarded With As Little Delay As Possible After Thorough Discussion.

Washington, May 31.—President Wilson went for a long automobile ride early this morning, after reading newspaper comment on the German note. He had not received the official text from the state department, and as his day was broken by an engagement to speak at Memorial day exercises in Arlington national cemetery, he will not begin a thorough study of the note before night.

An unusually large number of sightseers were gathered in front of the White House when the president went out to his motor. There was a scattering of handclapping, and the president bowed and smiled in reply.

Refuse to Discuss Note.

Officials refused to discuss the note before the president had an opportunity to consider his reply. It was expected that the question would be discussed thoroughly at tomorrow's cabinet meeting, and that an answer will be forwarded to Berlin with as little delay as possible.

State department officials compared today the official text of the German note with the text as made public in the press dispatches.

"The text of the official dispatch differs in some of the phraseology," it was explained, "but there is no difference whatever in the sense conveyed."

The difference is attributed to the fact that the official and unofficial translations were made by different persons, with resulting unavoidable differences in the English wording.

Difference in Translation.

One of the differences in translation between the official and unofficial texts of the note appears in the paragraph alleging that the Lusitania was armed.

The unofficial text read:

"The Lusitania, too, according to information received here, had cannon aboard, which were mounted and concealed below decks."

The official text reads:

"According to reports at hand here, the Lusitania, when she left New York, undoubtedly had guns on board, which were mounted under decks and masked."

State department officials said this was the principal difference in text noted.

Two Problems.

Two international problems—the one a crisis in the relations between the United States and Germany and the other the determination of the administration to bring about an early cessation of internal warfare in Mexico—developed for President Wilson today a combination of circumstances hardly paralleled in American history.

The president had prepared a statement to be issued tomorrow as a warning to the Mexican factions that their incessant strife had forced the innocent populace to the verge of starvation and that unless the chief elements came to an agreement to restore order some other means would have to be found by the United States to accomplish this end.

There was a confidence in executive quarters that the warning would suffice to set in motion definite plans for peace in Mexico, but in respect of the relations with Germany, made increasingly grave by the reply from Berlin to the American note sent as a consequence of the Lusitania disaster, pessimism and high tension were apparent.

Profound Disappointment.

The text of the note from Germany has arrived in Washington. Officials generally read it with profound disappointment for, they pointed out, it endeavored to obscure and evade the main issue—the questions of humanity involved—and sought to interpose a technical argument on matters of law hitherto undisputed under the universally accepted laws of nations. Most important of all, it was noted that no attention was given to the request of the United States for assurance that American lives would be safeguarded in the future.

Lusitania Unarmed.

The answer to Germany is expected to give the American government's understanding of facts—that the Lusitania was unarmed and carried no concealed guns, that she sailed from the

COMPETE FOR PRIZE OFFERED BY KAISER

New York, May 31.—A chorus in which more than 5,000 New York school children were to sing is one of the features of the program of the saengerfest of the Northern Saengerbund of America here today. The saengerfest will continue until Wednesday. Various societies are competing for a prize offered by the German emperor. Singers from all parts of the country took part in a great mass chorus of 6,000 persons last night.

TO INCREASE THE ARMY OF JAPAN

Tokio, May 31.—The budget committee of the house today approved the project to increase the standing army of Japan. The measure provides for the addition of two divisions or about 24,000 men. The previous diet was dissolved by the emperor in December, last, for declining to uphold the program of the ministry for military development.

The budget committee also approved a measure for the construction of three submarines and eight torpedo boat destroyers.

STEAMER BRINGS FIVE LUSITANIA BODIES

New York, May 31.—Five of the Lusitania's dead, three men and two women, were brought to New York today by the steamer Lapland from Liverpool.

The bodies were those of Mrs. Catherine E. Willey of Lake Forest, Ill., Miss Elizabeth Secombe of Boston, George R. Copping of Toronto, W. H. Brown and a man, Lindsay, address not given.

The Lapland brought 193 passengers.

COMMENT ON NOTE BY BERLIN PAPERS

All Print Document But Few Express Editorial Views.

Berlin, May 31, via London.—All the newspapers of Berlin today publish the German government's answer to the Washington communication on the Lusitania incident, but very few of them make any comment upon it.

The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung publishes the note under a headline reading, "The War."

The Bourse Zeitung prints a brief and mild editorial article, reiterating that the responsibility for the loss of lives lies with those who "took on board passengers to use them to a certain extent as hostages against attack."

The Tageszeitung publishes extended comments from the pen of Count von Reventlow, its writer on naval affairs. This commentator says the German reply, together with Germany's earlier assurances of willingness and good will, will erroneously be taken to indicate preparations to give in, and will lead to "a more threatening" demand for obedience.

Quotes From Declaration.

To those who expect signs of giving in on the part of the submarine boats, Count von Reventlow quotes from the war zone declaration of Feb. 4 the phrase which warns vessels they are likely to be torpedoed, and he intimates that this will be enforced in the future as it has been in the past.

The Welt Am Montag says:

"Soon after the torpedoing of the Lusitania the United States filed a complaint with Germany that sounded almost threatening. More than twenty years ago American diplomats won for themselves the title of 'shirtsleeved diplomats.' Consequently one judges the tone and the contents of the American note by a standard different from that customary in Europe. The German government, therefore, has not become excited over the Washington note; on the contrary, it has replied in all calmness."

DEDICATE MONUMENT TO DEAD OF BATTLESHIP MAINE AT ARLINGTON

Memorial Consists of Mainmast and Fighting Top of Ship.

Washington, May 31.—Unveiling and dedication of the Maine Memorial monument, erected by the government to the dead of the battleship destroyed seventeen years ago in Havana harbor, was the principal feature of Memorial day ceremonies in Arlington National cemetery.

President Wilson, Secretary Bryan, Secretary Daniels and Governor Frank B. Willis of Ohio, were on the program, more thoroughly national in its scope than ever, since Gen. John A. Logan established services of the kind forty-seven years ago.

The monument dedicated to the Maine dead is the mainmast and fighting top of the battleship which long lay imbedded with other wreckage in the bottom of Havana harbor. Restored and rigged as it was on the deck of the Maine it now arises from a granite and marble base chiseled in the form of a gun turret with names of the Maine's 264 victims carved on its curved exterior.

In Presence of Veterans.

In the presence of veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American wars, the president, cabinet, justices of the supreme court, diplomats of foreign nations and heads of patriotic organizations of the United States, the fitting memorial was today unveiled. Fifty white-uniformed marines manned the improvised rigging designed after the

SUMMARY OF THE WAR NEWS

Russian resistance to the Austro-German advance in Galicia apparently is stiffening. Following the recent victory of the Russians at Sienlawa, in Central Galicia on the San, it is announced at Petrograd that the right bank of the river has been cleared for a considerable distance of the Austro-German forces, which succeeded in crossing it, 3,000 prisoners being captured in one day. So far as has been disclosed, however, the Russians have not succeeded in halting the movement for the investment of Przemysl.

In the Baltic provinces the invading Germans are said to have been pressed back, losing guns and prisoners. The Russian war office acknowledges a retreat near the Dubysa river, but asserts German attempts to cross the river failed.

An official announcement from Constantinople says the French and British attempted in vain to recapture the positions in their center said to have been taken by the Turks.

The main bodies of Italian and Austrian troops have not yet come to grips, the Italian invasion still meeting little opposition. In France gains for the allies are reported near Arras, in Le Pretre forest and in Alsace.

TWO OBSERVANCES FOR EPISCOPALIANS

Memorial Day and Trinity Sunday Hold Their Attention.

Yesterday had a double significance in the Episcopalian churches of the city. It was both Memorial day and Trinity day.

At St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church, Dr. A. W. Ryan, in his morning sermon, called attention to the fact.

"We are commemorating two things today," he said. "In the first place we are honoring the men who saved our type of government. Their deeds had a great beneficial influence on our life, and we ought to be appreciative of the work they did.

"In the second place we are commemorating a doctrine in our church, a doctrine of infinite importance to all men. The Jewish church first gave us an idea of a God who was wholly righteous. The Christian idea of rich and unfolding love is wrapped up in the Trinity, and from it we learn that the social side of the Christian church ought to be an important one."

old ratlines of the destroyed ship as the veil fell. This exercise followed an invocation by Rev. Father Childwick, chaplain of the Maine at the time of her destruction.

As part of the ceremony Frank Bagley Daniels and Jonathan Worth Daniels, sons of the secretary of the navy and nephews of Ensign Worth Bagley, the first American officer killed in the war with Spain, raised an ensign to the top of the mast and hoisted signal flags flaring to the breeze the words "Maine, 1915." The youths, clad in sailor suits, were attended by Mrs. Adelaide Worth Bagley and Mrs. Josephus Daniels, mother and sister of Ensign Bagley. Secretary Daniels was on the program for the dedicatory address. On the program at this ceremony also were Maj. Charles F. Cramer, commander-in-chief, United Spanish War Veterans; Gen. H. Oden Lake, national commander, Army and Navy Union, and Maj. Robert Lee Longstreet, U. S. A.; Monsignor W. T. Russell, a Spanish War veteran, pronounced the benediction and "taps" were sounded.

A memorial tablet placed upon the mast in Havana harbor by the Havana Chapter of the Doughters of the American Revolution, which was removed when the government removed the mast to Washington, was re-affixed to the shaft.

Memorial Ceremonies.

Memorial ceremonies of the day were in four sections beginning with exercises at the graves of the unknown dead whose memory was eulogized by Governor Willis of Ohio. The rough pile of granite marking the huge grave of 2,111 Union soldiers whose rank and names are not known, was covered with flowers. Following those ceremonies, was the memorial tribute to victims of the Spanish war under auspices of the District of Columbia Spanish War Veterans. Secretary Bryan was on the program as orator of the day, following an opening address by Department Commander H. C. Wilson.

Elaborate ceremonies characterized the memorial to the Civil war dead under auspices of officers of the Grand Army of the Republic and Woman's Relief Corps. They were held in the historic, vine-covered amphitheater on the crest of the Arlington grounds overlooking the national capital. John McElroy, acting department commander G. A. R., was master of ceremonies, to introduce President Wilson and other speakers, including Past Department Commander A. P. Tasker, Past Department Commander George H. Slaybaugh, who read Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and Mrs. Israel Worrell Ball, past national senior vice president Woman's Relief Corps.

The program included a salute of twenty-one guns at the arrival of the president. After the general ceremonies and decoration of the graves of 23,000 soldiers in Arlington, came the dedication of the Maine memorial which closed the day's events.

March Shortened.

New York, May 31.—Owing to the advanced age of most of the Grand Army veterans taking part in the Memorial day parade here today the line of march was shortened to less than half a mile. Members of forty-four Grand Army posts, a detachment of regulars from Governor's island, many National Guard and naval militia commands, Spanish war veterans and other organizations marched up Riverside drive to the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument. Exercises were held at the monument and at Grant's tomb.

Ten Thousand In Line.

Chicago, May 31.—Civil war veterans marched in review in Memorial day parade here today. Including Spanish war veterans, militia, civic and patriotic organizations, it was estimated that 10,000 persons were in line. Clear, cool weather brought out thousands of persons to view the parade. Governor Edward F. Dunn of Illinois and Mayor William Hale Thompson, with their staffs were in the reviewing stand.

boats within the space of five hours, but she succeeded in escaping into Plymouth. Another victim was the steamer Glenlee of 4,400 tons, which was sunk somewhere between the British and French coasts recently. In the North sea a German submarine sent the Russian ship Mars to the bottom a few days ago, and the losses of the British steamers Spennymoor and Cadeby also have been reported. Thus within the space of three days six ships of considerable size have been sent to the bottom by German submarines and six lives have been lost. Furthermore the trans-Atlantic liner Megantic had a narrow escape from an attack by a German submarine.

London observers are drawing attention to these cases, particularly in connection with the presentation of the German note.

Chased by Submarine.

Queenstown, May 31.—The White Star liner Megantic, with a large number of passengers, from Liverpool to Montreal, was chased by a submarine off the south coast of Ireland yesterday morning, but escaped.

Considerable alarm was caused here early yesterday morning when an "S. O. S." call was received from the liner, reporting that a submarine had been sighted. The first message was soon followed, however, by another stating that the Megantic had outdistanced the submarine and later a third message received from the steamer's captain reported that he had evaded the submarine, and was proceeding on his voyage with all on board well.

Sunk by Shells.

Barry, Wales, May 31.—The British steamer Tullochmoor, 3,520 tons, was shelled and sunk by a German submarine Friday evening. The crew escaped and has landed here. The Tullochmoor was in ballast from Genoa, for South Shields.

The Tullochmoor was steaming off Ushant (westernmost of the islands off the coast of Brittany, France) Friday evening when halted by a shot from a submarine, according to a Central News dispatch from Barry.

The under water boat, Capt. Holford said, was only fifteen yards distant from the steamer at that time. The German commander gave the steamer's crew ten minutes to launch their boats and the twenty-six men rowed away without waiting to save their personal effects.

"The crew of the submarine," said Capt. Holford, "made no attempt to board the Tullochmoor, nor was I asked to show my ensign or tell my nationality. The Germans kept firing into the ship until she went down. They must have had a good deal of ammunition to spare, for the steamer was target for nearly forty shots before she disappeared."

While the Tullochmoor was still afloat, Engineer Dockeray swam back from the small boat he was in and obtained the ship's papers.

The Tullochmoor's crew was rescued by the Spanish steamer Olizzara, after spending three hours in the steamer's boats.

The Tullochmoor, which was 340 feet in length, with a beam of 45.6 feet, was built in 1899. She was owned by the Moor line, Ltd., of Newcastle, Eng.

Crookhaven, Ireland, May 30, via London.—The mate of the schooner June Rose, which has arrived here reports that members of the schooner's crew saw a submarine at 1 o'clock last Tuesday afternoon a few hours before the American steamer Nebraskan was seriously damaged by an explosion. The June Rose was in sight of the submarine from 20 to 30 minutes after first sighting the under-water boat west of Fastnet. The schooner later saw the Nebraskan flying the American flag.

United States Consul Skinner at London has telegraphed here for all available information concerning the presence of submarines in the vicinity of the Nebraskan.

London, May 30.—Forty-nine men of the crew of the British battleship Majestic were lost when that vessel was torpedoed off the Gallipoli peninsula on May 27, according to the casualty list issued tonight.

The number of men lost on the steamer Princess Irene, which was blown up in Sheerness harbor, exclusive of seventy-eight yard workmen, is given as 243.

London, May 30.—A dispatch to Lloyd's agency from Ushant, northern France, says the French vessel Dixie has passed there for Brest, having on board the crew of the British steamer Glenlee, bound from Cardiff for Aden, which was sunk by a German submarine.

The Glenlee was a steamer of 2,650 tons, owned by the Western Steamship company of Glasgow.

searching for German submarine bases, little definite information has come to hand from the Dardanelles. Certain dispatches by way of Athens claim that many lines of Turkish trenches on the Gallipola peninsula have been taken during the last week.

The situation along the river San in the vicinity of Przemysl appears for the moment to be unchanged.

Italian Statement.

Rome, via Paris, May 30.—An official dispatch from the Italian grand headquarters says:

"In the Giudicaria valley on the Trentino-Tyrol frontier (extreme southwest), we occupied an important position, the summit of Spessa, near Storo. Our artillery destroyed the armored fort of Luserna, on the Asiago plateau, which hoisted a white flag.

"Seeing this, the Austrian fort of Belvidere, situated farther to the rear, immediately turned guns against Fort Luserna. The modern works on the summit of Vezana also were completely demolished by our artillery and occupied by infantry. The latter advanced at once as far as the village of Vezana situated below, which had hurriedly been abandoned by the Austrians. Our loss was slight.

"In Cardore, we occupied the defile of the Croci, the Cortina d'Ampezza walls, and all the valley surrounding that township.

"On the Friuli frontier, the Austrians long ago threatened the positions on the left bank of the Isonzo, commanding the passages of the river, mounting a large number of medium weight guns. They also strongly hold several points on the right bank, including Goria.

"The heavy rains have swollen the river to abnormal proportions, causing it to run swiftly. Nevertheless, our troops continue their progress with vigor. Their morale is excellent.

(Signed) "CADORNA."

French Statement.

Paris, May 31, 2:41 p. m.—The French war office this afternoon gave out a report on the progress of hostilities which reads:

"There were no new developments during the night of May 30-31, with the exception of the check in the region of Notre Dame de Lorette to a German attack; this movement was easily repulsed by our troops.

"The number of prisoners taken yesterday at 'The Labyrinth' to the southeast of Neuville St. Vaast is 150, including four officers."

CAPTAIN OF SUBMARINE WHICH SANK FRENCH SHIP

LIEUT. GEORG R. VON TROPP.

Austria has its "Lieut. Weddigen." The submarine hero of the dual monarchy is Lieut. Georg Ritter von Tropp, who commanded the "U-5" which sank the Leon Gambetta, one of the big French ships engaged in the attack of the Dardanelles. It was believed that the French warship was sunk by a Turkish mine; but German papers just received say that von Tropp sank the big vessel with a torpedo from his submarine and his accomplishment has made him the toast of Vienna.

NEW SPIRIT OF PATRIOTISM EVIDENT and the expressions of the speakers were equally generous to the brave men who fought, whether they wore the blue or the gray.

Business Suspended.

All business was at a standstill throughout the city. Thousands of people were on the streets, and it is doubtful if there was ever such a patriotic demonstration seen in Duluth before.

The "New Birth of Freedom," spoken of by Abraham Lincoln in his immortal Gettysburg address, seemed to be in the minds of all today, and the love of country was evident in the expressions of both the speakers and the crowds.

Enjoy Ideal Day.

Duluth never had a more ideal Memorial day. The weather was Duluth's best. This also helped to bring out great crowds of people. Some made the day an occasion for an outing either to one of the many pleasant resorts within the city or out of town. But the great majority remained in the city and took part in the patriotic outburst.

Another feature was the great display of flags and the national colors in many forms. The stores were decorated as never before on a Memorial day and Old Glory fluttered in the breeze in every part of the city.

There was also a harmony in the celebration, seldom seen. The schools, the churches, the Citizens' Staff, the Grand Army of the Republic, the Sons of Veterans, the Spanish-American war veterans, the Ladies' Relief corps and the public joined in making the occasion one of great success. There were no German-Americans, or English-Americans in Duluth today, but just Americans.

As most of the Grand Army men are no longer able to stand the strain of the work entailed in carrying out memorial services, the Sons of Veterans and the Citizens' Staff had charge of the series of events of today.

Five Parts to Program.

The program was divided into five distinct parts, all of which were carried out with conspicuous success. These were the parade, the Auditorium exercises, the services at cemeteries, a celebration on board the U. S. S. Gopher at the canal, and a banquet for the veterans at Memorial hall. Rev. U. S. Villars, pastor of the Lester Park M. E. church, was the orator of the day, and he delivered an eloquent, patriotic address.

By the time the parade was formed at the courthouse square at 10 a. m., thousands of spectators had arrived to see the event. The line of march was the longest and the enthusiasm greater than ever witnessed at a Memorial day parade in Duluth. Fully 2,000 were in the line of march and included the Grand Army and other military organizations and auxiliaries, pupils from the public schools, Mayor Prince and the entire city commission, the National Guard, naval corps and two bands. Every pupil in the parade carried an American flag.

The parade presented an imposing sight when the march began to the stirring strains of the Third Regiment band and the drum corps. Col. F. E. Resche, grand marshal of the day, was assisted by five honorary grand marshals: John Frazier, N. L. Upham, John Dimond, J. H. Baker and William Carnathan.

Five Sections.

The parade was divided into five sections. In the first were the state military and naval forces under the command of Lieut.-Col. H. V. Eva, M. N. G. In the second division were the Citizens' Staff and government and city officials under the direction of S. S. Williamson. Many fraternal orders under the command of Albert K. Wheaton made up the third division. Fifteen hundred pupils under the direction of A. H. Davenport made up the fourth section. In the fifth section were the members of the G. A. R. and Spanish war veterans under E. G. Chapman. The members of the Grand Army rode in automobiles.

The parade formed at West Second street by the courthouse square. The line of march was from this point to Second avenue east, south to Superior street, then to Mesaba avenue to Second street and ended at the Auditorium and the Central high school. The meeting at the Central high school was for the children and the one at the Auditorium for the public in general.

There was a big crowd at the Auditorium, and the place was profusely decorated with American colors and banners. The program was opened by a stirring selection by the G. A. R. drum corps of Gorman post. T. F. Upham, president of the Citizens' Staff, then introduced the presiding officer, Mayor W. I. Prince. Rev. Charles N. Thorp, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church, pronounced the invocation.

The First Minnesota.

Among the most interesting features of the program was an oration, "The First Minnesota at Gettysburg," written and delivered by Miss Laura Frankenfield. A number of the members of the First Minnesota are members of the G. A. R. in Duluth, and the recalling of their famous charge on the field of the most decisive battle of the Civil war, brought forth a hearty response from them.

The Normanna Chorus then sang "The Star Spangled Banner." State Senator Richard Jones delivered Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Rev. Mr. Villars then gave the chief address of the day. Following Rev. Mr. Villars the whole audience, led by the Normanna chorus, rose and sang "America."

The roll call of the dead for the last year was read by adjutants for the Culver post, Gorman post, Sons of Veterans, Camp John G. McEwen, U. S. W. V., and Camp A. M. Diggles, U. S. W. V.

The assembly room at the high school was crowded by pupils and other visitors during the meeting after the parade. All of the fifteen hundred pupils in the parade were present. W. W. Huntley, vice president of the Citizens' Staff, presided. The exercises were opened with a selection by the Bryant school orchestra. The remainder of the program follows:

Oration, Richard Duffy, Denfeld high school; Oration, Vincent J. McKinnon, Christian Brothers high school; orchestra, Bryant school; oration, Irving Grover, Central high school; presentation of flags, Capt. Smallwood; "America," audience.

At the Cemeteries.

The ceremonies for decorating the graves of the soldier dead took place at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the cemeteries. The program was in charge of Comrade Asa Dailey of Gorman post, G. A. R.

Fitting memorial services for the sailor-soldier dead took place on the U. S. S. Gopher, just north of the North pier. The members of the Relief Corps and others taking part were embarked at the foot of Fifth avenue west and then taken to the scene of the program. The services were solemn and impressive as provided by the ritual of the Women's Relief corps.

HUNDREDS TAKE IN FIRST RIVER EXCURSION

The first river excursions of the season took place yesterday, when the steamer Columbia carried hundreds of people to Fond du Lac to spend all or part of the day. Two trips were made each way, quite a large crowd going up in the morning with lunch baskets and spending the rest of the day at up-river points; and in the afternoon another large crowd took the chance to see the beauties of the St. Louis in early-season bloom. On the boat on all trips, Henry Williams' orchestra furnished excellent music.

GRAIN FIRM IS SIXTY YEARS OLD

"After Sixty Years," is the title of an interesting brochure issued by the H. Poehler company of Minneapolis and Duluth to mark that mile-stone in its business history. Accompanying it was a neat bronze souvenir containing an engravure of the founder of the house, Henry Poehler.

The brochure contains a history of the house from the time of its inception in 1855, and it is illustrated with photogravures of its directing heads and officials, including that of its Duluth manager, A. W. Withrow.

The H. Poehler company is conceded to be the oldest grain commission house in the Northwest, and an interesting fact in connection with it is that it is operating under a charter granted by the territorial legislature. During its career, it has handled over 200,000 carloads of grain.

NATURE SMILES ON VETERANS' DAY

"Fair tonight and Tuesday; slight changes in temperature; light to moderate northeasterly winds."

That is all that Weather Forecaster Richardson would say today. He is very secretive and won't even issue a weather map. This secrecy is sanctioned by the United States weather bureau, so there you are.

Except for a cool wind that prevailed part of the day, Sunday was perfection. The late afternoon, when the sun overcame the chill the wind was trying to put over, could not well be improved upon, for conditions were just what they should be for walking, and thousands took advantage of it. Every street had its modicum of pedestrians, but all of the pretty drives and boulevards were crowded. There were those who rode, of course, but the walkers were the ones who really enjoyed the day, for it was a day for exercising and not for joy-riding, to get the real benefit of the ozone.

Mr. Richardson's opinion is that that same fine weather will continue for a day or two anyway, and today is certainly starting out as though all nature would smile benignly on the old veterans and would hold off bad weather in honor of the nation's dead.

General Forecasts.

Chicago, May 31.—Forecasts for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Tuesday:

Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota—Fair tonight and Tuesday.

Upper and Lower Michigan—Fair tonight and Tuesday.

The ceremonies of dedicating the flag pole and flag at the Northern Pacific round house took place yesterday afternoon and were witnessed by more than 200 employes of the shops and members of patriotic orders of the city.

J. E. Goodman, member of Joshua B. Culver post, G. A. R., and master mechanic of the shops, presided at the ceremony. The principal addresses were given by Mayor W. I. Prince and Capt. Henry Cleveland.

The raising of the flag took place following a short talk by the mayor. The flag was raised by J. J. Mitchell, car foreman, and as it rose in the air the crowd cheered. The program included several musical selections by the Grand Army Drum corps, the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by Mrs. T. J. Hyde, and Charles Helmer played a cornet solo. At the close of the program the crowd sang "America."

The cedar pole is eighty-nine feet high with an eighteen-inch base and tapering to five inches at the top. The pole and flag were purchased by money raised by subscription among the employes. The men who contributed to the purchase of both represented eighteen different nationalities.

BONDAGE GREATER NOW THAN IN '61

Religious Bigotry and Industrial Bitterness Scored By Rev. Mr. Fish.

That the country is now divided by religious bigotry and industrial class bitterness and that a greater deliverance is now needed than before the Civil war, was the statement of Rev. Milton Fish in his sermon at the Central Baptist church last night. He said the country was sorely in need of a great spiritual revival that would regenerate men.

"Five decades have passed since Lincoln helped this nation to be free from body slavery and from state secession," he said. "These great achievements are witnessed by the graves of a million slain and by the white-haired men of the rapidly diminishing G. A. R. Today we pledge our loyal service to our native lands. May our service in the paths of peace be as strenuous and sacrificial as was theirs on the field of battle.

"Was the price of the Civil war well paid? The black man was freed as to his political status, but he remains in industrial and social bondage. Lincoln's own son is an agent to the negro's beggary.

"Today the country is divided by religious bigotry and by industrial class bitterness. We need a greater deliverance than that wrought through the great war."

TWO HIGHWAYMEN HOLD UP WOMAN

Mrs. C. E. French Loses Purse and Other Valuables; Two Men Taken.

A purse containing about $1.60 in change, five keys to lockers at Memorial hall of the courthouse, a small silver purse and a pair of silk hose, were snatched Saturday evening at about 11 o'clock from Mrs. C. E. French, 2622 West Third street, as she was walking toward her home on Third street between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth avenues. The purse was found torn to pieces early yesterday morning by Dr. French in an alley between Second and Third streets at a point about three blocks from where the theft took place.

Two men, both described as being young, met Mrs. French near the bridge at this point. One struck her arm and grabbed the purse. The other stopped and said, "What's the matter, lady?" and then ran off after the one who got the purse.

Mrs. French reported the theft to her husband about two minutes later, and the police were immediately notified. Dr. French went out after the men and about a half hour later found two men near the alley where later he found the purse. He brought these men to his home to be identified by Mrs. French, but she was unable to say whether they were the right men.

To Summer Tourists and Their Duluth Hosts!

The Street Railway Company wants to do its share toward giving summer visitors in this city a good impression of Duluth.

The street car service of any city is one of the first features to impress a visitor. We want visitors to Duluth to carry away an impression of clean, well ventilated, comfortable cars; prompt and efficient service, and courteous employes.

Here is an extract from the company's rules which may be of interest to summer visitors:

> "Conductors are expected to be familiar with principal points along their route, so as to be able to give information to passengers about streets, parks, connecting or intersecting railway lines, depots, ferries, public buildings, large stores, hospitals, theaters, etc."

General information regarding the city can be obtained if you will "Ask Mr. Hanna" at 410 West Superior street. He can tell you what car to board to reach any given point in the city. After you have boarded that car the conductor will give you any further information you need.

Mr. Hanna will also run sight-seeing cars for the special benefit of tourists and their Duluth hosts during the coming summer.

A trip to the top of our Inclined Railway will give a visitor a better general idea of the topography of the Head of the Lakes than any number of maps, and a view that is equalled by few on this continent.

AN OLD FAVORITE.

Baldwin Players Present Some Mary Jane Holmes Sentiment.

Mrs. Mary Jane Holmes' pleasantly sentimental love story, "Lena Rivers," is being presented at the Lyceum all this week by the Baldwin Players, and with their accustomed success.

Probably every young woman in the audience yesterday had at some time, wept feverishly over the sorrows of Lena. And probably if the truth were known, many of the men in the audience had in more callow days, followed Lena's adventures with much interest.

For the benefit of those who are not familiar with the author of "Lena Rivers," "Tempest and Sunshine" and some fifty-seven other masterpieces, it might be stated that in "Lena Rivers" there are the homely characters of the small-town folk of back East type; there is the young girl who has lost, by death, her mother, and whose father disappeared when she was born; there is the country lout, with his puppy love for the heroine; then comes the real lover, a perfectly grand man from Kentucky, to which state the girl eventually goes, accompanied by her dear old-fashioned granny, to live with her distant, and snobbish, relations in the south.

How she becomes a woman, is loved by her Kentuckian, and loves him, make the sentiment. How a daughter of her uncle, jealous, embittered huzzy, contrives through the employment of circumstances that are wholly innocent, to besmirch the character of the young girl from back East, and how the step-father of the girl's hero finally confesses that he is the girl's own father, clearing her name, and making his gifts to her and his attachment to her clear, forms the plot. And how the girl and her sweetheart eventually are reunited and wed, makes the happy ending so essential to such a story.

Lena Rivers is enacted by Anna Bronaugh. At the beginning, in the prelude of the play, Lena is but a stripling of a girl, the same sort of girl as "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." At this work Miss Bronaugh excels.

This week, however, her lines take her through a vale of tears, but with the happy ending mentioned. Miss Bronaugh wades bravely through the tears, and emerges a very pretty picture in pink, ready to be swept into her lover's arms.

Harry Minturn as Durward Belmont, Kentuckian, Lena's lover, manly, handsome, struggles manfully at all times to make a real man out of a Mary Jane Holmes hero, and he comes near succeeding as a mere mortal could. His efforts are heroic.

Maude Melville is Granny Nichols, of the "I swan" type of Massachusetts old lady, and throughout she radiates goodness, humanity and Christian kindliness.

Margaret Lotus is this week called upon to present the snobbish, jealous, scandal-spreading young person, and she attacks the part like a "good sport." She is jealous and snobbish enough to make the audience want to sic a dog at her. Being a villainess is a thankless job, but Miss Lotus does not shirk it.

Arrayed against her in the Kentucky home is Anna Livingston, played by Miss Anna Lamb, in which Miss Lamb does by far the best work she has shown here.

Miss Meta Eyforth takes a double role with success in each—that of Nancy Scovendyke, back East, and later, Mrs. Graham, wife of the man who afterwards proves to be Lena's father.

Mark Elliston plays Harry Graham with his usual ability; A. Romaine Callender has a rather small part as John Livingston, and George Fox plays the country fellow who is "still running errands" for the community, though seeking Lena in marriage. Al Smith, blackened and lisping darky lingo, makes an acceptable negro servant, Rastus Johnson.

During the prelude Miss Bronaugh and George Fox put on a song, the lines of which run to the idea that "it is the same old story in the same old way," and the Sunday audiences encored for a repetition. Mr. Fox has considerable of a voice, as has Miss Bronaugh, and they showed ability that might well win them a place in the "two-a-day." On the whole "Lena Rivers" is a pleasant interlude for those seeking enjoyment and not darning the performers to entertain them. A special matinee will be given today. "Bought and Paid For" will be presented next week by the Baldwinians.

Theater Gossip.

NEW SHOW OPENS AT GRAND.

In the headline position is Emily Smiley and her associate players presenting Hilliard Booth's new and original one-act playlet, "One Woman's Way." The scenes are laid in New York city at the present time, and the lines are particularly bright and interpreted in an unusually clever manner, pulling a continuous stream of laughs during the allotted twenty minutes.

Frish, Howard and Toolan are versatile entertainers and merry mirthmakers. They sing and dance and make good fun in an inimitable manner of their own.

An up-to-date novelty called "Skedaddle" is the offering of Hawley and Hawley, who promise something new in the line of vaudeville divertisement.

George Dixon, known as the musical jack-in-the-box, has a novelty musical offering out of the ordinary and highly entertaining.

A Civil war drama in three reels is, "Sally Castleton, Southerner," featuring Merriam Nesbit. "Sophie Changes Her Mind," a comedy, and "For Her Happiness," a drama of unusual interest, complete the program.

On Tuesday and Wednesday the much heralded "Diamond From the Sky" will be shown. The first installment consists of three reels and is entitled, "The Heritage of Hate." This $800,000 serial will be shown each Tuesday and Wednesday throughout the summer.

When Miss Emily Stevens was selected for the important role of Cora in the play of that name coming to the

"CORA" AT THE REX.

Rex today and Tuesday, it was because of her reputation as one of the best actresses in emotional and dramatic work among the younger women of the stage today. Miss Stevens' greatest achievement on the dramatic stage was probably in the role of Lilly Wagner in the sensational play "Today," which has toured the country. She was the first Mary Turner in "Within the Law," an interpretation which also won for her marked praise, and she is at present starring in "The Garden of Paradise." So, it will be seen that B. A. Rolfe, producer, was not amiss in choosing Miss Stevens for the exacting and difficult role of Cora. This being a "name" play, the title gives no intimation of the story, which, however, tells of the trials and tribulations of a young girl reduced to poverty, who rises above them through sheer force of character and talent, to a position of prominence in the operatic world.

League Works for Clean Candy.

Springfield Republican: Candy is the subject of one of the reports in the April bulletin of the Boston Woman's Municipal league. The committee inspected a number of candy factories and found that in many places where good materials were used the candy was a dangerous food because it was handled so much. It is interesting, says the report, to note the change of viewpoint in the mind of a person who is laboring to bring about greater cleanliness in the candy industry. At first, the one dangerous feature seems to be the material used in the manufacture. Gradually one realizes that refined sugar is almost wholly free from germs; and that glucose, albumen and other substances are not objectionable so long as they remain clean.

As one's attention is centered more and more closely upon the employe, the climax is reached in one word. "Hands." It is a fact that machine-dipped chocolates—cheaper, price than the hand-dipped and less artistic to the eye—are becoming more popular among persons who realize the possible danger from the continuous immersion of the hand necessary in melting chocolate. If there is one need which is more pressing and universal than others, it is the need of warm, running water for the cleaning of the hands. In some factories a very small fee is charged for the use of a towel. This rule tends naturally toward the dispensing with so necessary an article, and we can hardly blame the worker for cutting out this item of expense. Cold water and soiled roller towels—a frequent combination—are wholly ineffectual from a sanitary point of view.

Peggy Peabody's Observations

Are Stepmothers Jealous?

While I know there have been ideal stepmothers, I am frank to admit that I have never yet met one of that class who has been what I would call thoroughly successful. Few women are capable of bringing up another woman's children just as they would their own and find themselves able to withstand the desire to put their own flesh and blood first and foremost.

I have every faith in the motives of women who undertake the mothering of a brood of children. I believe that some of them have succeeded in sinking the greater love for their own children (which is perfectly natural to mothers) completely out of sight and that the children bound to them by no tie of blood never feel that there is anything lacking in their love for them.

That which you see in the stepmother when she does not succeed in treating the little children left to her care as fairly and generously as she does her own, is what you may witness in any mother who lives when it comes to an issue between her children and a neighbor's children. You will find that it is human nature and particularly mother-nature to obtain all the good that one can for one's own, and to condone many things in one's offspring that one calls by very hard names in the children of a friend or acquaintance.

Jealousy is the hardest thing against which one has to contend where a stepmother and stepchildren are concerned. Usually they are both jealous, though they may not know it or, knowing it, be willing to own that jealousy is the spirit that prompts them in their separate ways. It is a foolish and even a wicked thing to be jealous of the dead and to let the evil workings of one's heart prompt one to actions that make a child unhappy. It is equally foolish for a stepchild to resent every little thing done for the mother as a sort of affront to the memory of the mother that is gone.

But the spirit that exists more or less strongly between stepmothers and the children they are called upon to rear, is one that cannot be erased. It is a weakness natural to both. Mother love, to be ideal, should stretch forth its arms to all children bravely starting out on life's journey and give them protection and support.

It might often help a stepmother if she would put her own children in the place of those left without their mother. She might see justice and injustice in a different light then.

CLUB HOUSE FOR OUTERS

Chippewa Club Plans $6,000 Resort for the North Shore.

Plans for a $6,000 clubhouse and hunting lodge to be built on the north shore of Lake Superior, eleven miles from the center of the city, are now being prepared. The new lodge will be constructed for the Chippewa club, a new social organization which has been formed with headquarters in the city.

The Chippewa club has a membership of 500 and includes many well-known Duluthians in its roster.

A tract of ten acres on a north shore site, which is ideal for the location of an all-the-year-around outing place, has been selected. Fred Waldron, consulting engineer, is preparing plans for the clubhouse.

The plans call for a two-story house with ten rooms as residential accommodations for members. It will be built as a rustic hunting lodge with the largest log fireplace at the head of the Lakes as a center of attraction in a dining room 50 by 30 feet.

W. P. Adams, formerly of Duluth, will be in charge of the clubhouse, which will be opened about July 15. The lodge will be modeled after Long Island country places which are visited annually by thousands of New Yorkers on their outing trips.

GERMANY WITHHOLDS ITS FINAL DECISION ON DEMANDS OF THE U. S.

Awaits Reply From Washington In Connection With Lusitania.

Complete Text of Preliminary Note Is Carried to Government.

Germany Declares It Is Not Its Intention to Attack Neutral Ships.

Berlin, May 30.—Germany withholds its final decision on the demands advanced by the United States government in connection with the sinking of the Lusitania, until the receipt of an answer from the United States on the note which Herr von Jagow, the foreign minister, has delivered to Ambassador Gerard, in reply to the American note received by the German government on May 15.

In its reply, the German government declares that it is not its intention to submit neutral ships in the war zone, which are guilty of no hostile acts, to attacks by submarines or aeroplanes; that it is investigating the circumstances in connection with the attacks on the American steamers Cushing and Gulflight, and that in all cases where neutral vessels, through no fault of their own, have been damaged, Germany will pay indemnification.

The reply urges that in the case of the Lusitania, which Germany alleges was armed and carried large supplies of war munitions, it was acting in justified self-defense in seeking with all the means of warfare at its disposition, to protect the lives of its soldiers by destroying ammunition intended for the enemy.

The German government recalls the proposals submitted by the United States government to Berlin and London, designed to end the submarine warfare and the shutting out of food supplies from Germany which, it declares, failed of their purpose because of the refusal of the British government to agree to them.

Text of Note.

The following is the text of the German note:

"The undersigned has the honor to submit to Ambassador Gerard the following answer to the communication of May 15 regarding the injury to American interests through German submarine warfare:

"The imperial government has subjected the communication of the American government to a thorough investigation. It entertains also a keen wish to co-operate in a frank and friendly way in clearing up a possible misunderstanding which may have arisen in the relations between the two governments through the events mentioned by the American government.

Regarding, firstly, the cases of the American steamers Cushing and Gulflight. The American embassy has already been informed that the German government has no intention of submitting neutral ships in the war zone, which are guilty of no hostile acts, to attacks by a submarine or aviators. On the contrary, the German forces have repeatedly been instructed most specifically to avoid attacks on such ships.

"If neutral ships, in recent months have suffered through the German submarine warfare, owing to mistakes in identification, it is a question only of quite isolated cases of exceptional cases which can be attributed to the British government's abuse of flags, together with the suspicious or culpable behavior of the masters of the ships.

Regret and Indemnification.

"The German government in all cases in which it has been shown that a neutral ship, not itself at fault, was damaged by German submarines or aviators, has expressed regret over the unfortunate attacks, and, if justified by conditions, has offered indemnification.

"The cases of the Cushing and Gulflight will be treated on the same principles. An investigation of both cases is in progress, the result of which will presently be communicated to the embassy. The investigation can, if necessary be supplemented by an international call on the international commission of inquiry, as provided by Article III of The Hague agreement of Oct. 18, 1907.

"When sinking the British steamer Falaba, the commander of the German submarine had the intention of allowing the passengers and crews full opportunity to escape. Only when the master did not obey the order to heave-to, but fled and summoned help by rocket signals, did the German commander order the crew and passengers by signals and megaphone to leave the ship within ten minutes. He actually allowed them twenty-three minutes' time, and fired the torpedo only when suspicious craft were hastening to the assistance of the Falaba.

"Regarding the loss of life by the sinking of the British passenger steamer Lusitania, the German government has already expressed to the neutral governments concerned, its keen regret that citizens of their states lost their lives.

"On this occasion the imperial government, however, cannot escape the impression that certain important facts having a direct bearing on the sinking of the Lusitania may have escaped the attention of the American government.

Clear Understanding.

"In the interest of a clear and complete understanding, which is the aim of both governments, the imperial government considers it first necessary to convince itself that the information accessible to both governments that the facts of the case is complete and in accord.

"The government of the United States proceeds on the assumption that the Lusitania could be regarded as an ordinary unarmed merchantman. The imperial government allows itself in this connection to point out that the Lusitania was one of the largest and fastest British merchant ships, built with government funds as an auxiliary cruiser and carried expressly as such in the naval list issued by the admiralty.

"It is further known to the imperial government from trustworthy reports from its agents and neutral passengers, that for a considerable time, practically all the more valuable British merchantmen have been equipped with cannon and ammunition and other weapons and manned with persons who have been specially trained in serving guns. The Lusitania, too, according to information received here, had cannon aboard, which were mounted and concealed below decks.

"The imperial government further has the honor to direct the particular attention of the American government to the fact that the British admiralty, in a confidential instruction, issued in February, 1915, recommended its mercantile shipping, not only to seek protection under neutral flags and distinguishing marks, but also while thus disguised to attack German submarines by ramming. As a special incitation to merchantmen to destroy submarines, the British government also offered high prizes and has already paid such rewards.

Not Undefended.

"The imperial government, in view of these facts, undoubtedly known to it, is unable to regard British merchantmen on the scene of naval operations specified by the admiralty statement of the German navy, as 'undefended.' German commanders consequently are no longer able to observe the customary regulations of the prize law, which they before always followed.

"Finally, the imperial government must point out particularly that the Lusitania on its last trip as on previous occasions, carried Canadian troops and war material, including no less than 5,400 cases of ammunition intended for the destruction of the brave German soldiers who are fulfilling their duty in the fatherland's service.

"The German government believes that it was acting in justified self-defense in seeking with all the means of warfare, at its disposal, to protect the lives of its soldiers by destroying ammunition intended for the enemy.

"The British shipping company must have been aware of the danger to which the passengers aboard the Lusitania were exposed under these conditions. The company in embarking them, notwithstanding this, attempted deliberately to use the lives of American citizens as protection for the ammunition aboard and acted against the clear provisions of the American law, which expressly prohibits the forwarding of passengers on ships carrying ammunition and provides a penalty therefor. The company, therefore, is wantonly guilty of the death of so many passengers.

Ammunition Exploded.

"There can be no doubt, according to the definite report of the submarine's commander, which is further confirmed by all other information, that the quick sinking of the Lusitania is primarily attributable to the explosion of the ammunition shipment, caused by a torpedo. The Lusitania's passengers would otherwise, in all human probability, have been saved.

"The imperial government considers the above mentioned facts important enough to recommend them to the attentive examination of the American government.

"The imperial government, while, withholding its final decision on the demands advanced in connection with the sinking of the Lusitania until receipt of an answer from the American government, feels impelled in conclusion to recall here and now, that it took cognizance with satisfaction of the mediatory proposals submitted by the United States government to Berlin and London as a basis for a modus vivendi for conducting the maritime warfare between Germany and Great Britain. The imperial government, by its readiness to enter upon a discussion of these proposals, then demonstrated its good intentions in simple fashion. The realization of these proposals was defeated, as is well known, by the declinatory attitude of the British government.

"The undersigned takes occasion, etc.,

(Signed)—"JAGOW."

LODGE PROMOTERS GIVEN RECEPTION

Mayor Welcomes Brotherhood Officers; Campaign for Membership.

T. B. Hanley of Des Moines, supreme president of the Modern Brotherhood of America; A. L. Jones of Minneapolis, supreme director, E. L. Balz of Mason City, Iowa, supreme secretary and W. E. Kinman of Minneapolis, state manager, were tendered a reception by the Duluth lodges of the order Saturday evening at Odd Fellows hall. The high officials of the brotherhood came to Duluth to institute a campaign for membership in this city.

Mayor Prince opened the program with an address of welcome after which each of the guests gave brief talks. The program of speeches was followed by a dance. Duluth Central lodge, No. 450, and Fraternity lodge, No. 860, had charge of the evening's entertainment. Superior lodges were also represented at the meeting.

Within the next two weeks, W. B. Ingalls, W. D. Barber and W. E. Kinman, all of Minneapolis, will come to Duluth and solicit membership for the order. It is planned to increase the rosters of the local lodges by 200 members.

GENERAL OPTIMISM IN BANKING CIRCLES

Bright Crop Prospects in Northwest; Activity Predicted Next Fall.

Bank officials are generally optimistic over the business and financial situation. Reports being received by correspondents from over the Northwest are most encouraging, it being generally conceded that if the country is favored with normal weather during the next six weeks, a record harvest will be garnered in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana.

Confidence in that respect is to a large extent based on the fact that the ground was better plowed and prepared for seeding this spring than had been the case in several years, and that in consequence of the abundant moisture during the past month, the growing plant is strong and healthy and in splendid position to withstand any adverse conditions that may materialize later on.

'If our Northwest farmers gather in anywhere near the tonnage of grain predicted in some quarters, we are going to be in for an era of prosperity in this territory next fall in view of the high prices likely to be realized for foodstuffs," said a bank man today.

Commenting upon the business situation, the City National bank of Duluth says in its June letter on trade conditions:

"Were it possible for America to deliver to Europe all of the goods, supplies and commodities purchased or ordered immediately, this country would be, by such action, plunged into a period of almost unbounded prosperity. Orders on hand and unfilled for goods to be shipped abroad are estimated by various authorities all the way from a billion to a billion and a half dollars of value. Naturally the sale of this quantity of goods and commodities and the bringing of this much money or credit into this country would stimulate local or home demand to just that amount. Some of these European orders will take months to fill and we are just now beginning to feel the commercial effects and benefits of the European war. These benefits will increase as the weeks pass, and faster than they have been increasing because we are rapidly adding to our facilities."

How You May Change Your Face Completely

Any woman not satisfied with her complexion can easily remove it and have a new one. Then thin veil of stifling, half-dead cuticle is an encumbrance and should be removed to give the fresh, vigorous, young skin underneath a chance to show itself and to breathe. There's a simple, old-fashioned remedy which will always do the work. Get an ounce of pure mercolized wax from your druggist and apply it at night like cold cream, washing it off in the morning. The wax will gently absorb all the lifeless skin and leave a healthy and beautiful complexion, as fresh as a child's. Naturally it takes with it all such facial blemishes as freckles, tan, moth patches, sallowness, liver spots, pimples. It is pleasant to use, and economical. The face so treated soon looks years younger.

To keep the skin free from wrinkles there's nothing quite so good as the old reliable saxolite lotion. It is only necessary to dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel and bathe the face in this as required. —Advertisement.

NEW CHIEF SUSPENDS OFFICER FAGERBERG

Fails to Explain "Drunk" Charge; McKercher Will Enforce Discipline.

When Patrolman Victor Fagerberg of the West end force failed to report at headquarters Saturday for a conference with the chief, Mr. McKercher suspended him indefinitely.

Drunkenness while on duty May 15 was given as the cause of the suspension, although the patrolman is said to have committed two similar offenses previously.

Following the report of the patrolman's alleged third offense, Chief McKercher asked for his resignation before June 1, to be effective on that date, and up to a late hour Saturday night the officer had not presented this, or appeared at headquarters to explain his attitude.

Chief McKercher has had the case under advisement for two weeks, and considerable pressure was brought to bear by friends of the discharged officer and West end business men to have him retained in office. The final decision in the matter was not reached until Saturday night, according to the chief.

"It is with deep regret that I find it necessary to remove any man from office," he said, "but a man under the influence of liquor is no officer to be in charge of the safety of a community. I said when I took charge that drunkenness would not be tolerated. I mean that this order shall be held in the highest respect by the rank and file of the force. I hope this one example will serve to warn any officer who is inclined to overstep the bounds of sobriety.

The discharged officer was appointed to the force May 1, 1911, during the term of Mayor J. A. McCuen.

Headquarters have been established at 114 East Superior street. Attendants will be in charge day and night, in accordance with association plans as decided upon at recent meetings.

"We want to give Duluth people real service, and through the headquarters we feel that we will be able to do it," said Mr. Kelley.

The Duluth Jitney association now has 160 members, and is growing daily, stated the president.

A New York bank has just completed a country-wide survey of business conditions.

One of the facts that is particularly impressive is that the automobile industry is the most prosperous industry in the country.

An advertising survey would show this to be the leading industry in newspaper advertising.

Newspaper advertising has sent the message of the automobile into every home.

It has made the motor drawn vehicle a necessity.

What newspaper advertising has done for this industry it will do for others.

GERMANY MISSES THE POINT.

Germany's reply to the American note gives no guaranty whatever that the Lusitania incident may not be repeated tomorrow, but raises an issue regarding certain facts and proposes a discussion of these alleged facts before the very direct demands of America are met.

Again it is wise to keep a tight rein on temper, and to think twice before giving expression to opinion. Besides, it is President Wilson's comment alone that counts, and it is well to let him make the nation's answer. The country knows that its dignity, security and self-respect are in safe hands.

Germany says that it is not its policy to destroy unoffending neutral ships, and that if such ships are destroyed it is accident or the fault of Germany's enemies. Yet such "accidents" are irritatingly common, and the growing fear is that the Nebraskan, too, was the victim of such an "accident."

It may be that the character of the German reply will make it necessary for the president to repeat the substance of the American note. That is always an irritating necessity. The note was plain enough. What it called for was plain enough. The German reply is nothing like what it called for.

Politeness still prevails. Despite its firmness, the Wilson note was polite. Despite its evasions, the German note is polite. Even though it is deemed necessary for the president to repeat in still more vigorous terms what he said in his first message to Germany, we may be sure that his phrases will still be polite.

Germany wants to know if the Lusitania was not armed, and if it did not carry troops and ammunition. The collector of the port at New York, whose men examined the vessel thoroughly before it left, declares that the Lusitania was NOT armed. It carried no troops, though it may have carried unorganized and un-uniformed recruits; that point is not clear. It did carry ammunition; though it has not been described as anything that could have exploded and sunk the ship.

If the Lusitania were, as Germany intimates, virtually an armed vessel of war, it was our duty to compel it to intern instead of letting it leave port. The intimation that we failed in so plain a duty under international law as this is more irritation.

Germany declares that American law prohibits the carrying of passengers in ships carrying ammunition. It does not. It prohibits the carrying of self-exploding materials.

Much of the matter in the German note is wholly aside from the point—evasive, controversial, delay-making. It simply increases the necessity of keeping a tight hold on personal feelings, and of giving President Wilson a free field for his expression of America's position. We know that it will be prompt, to the point and adequate.

A JOLT FOR THE MOTHER-IN-LAW JOKE.

Brooklyn has a "domestic relations court." This court handles divorce cases, and keeps intelligent account of divorce statistics. A recent compilation of these statistics shows one interesting thing: that mothers-in-law cause fewer divorces than anything else in the whole list of divorce causes.

Out of 1,157 cases covered by this report only twenty-one—less than two per cent—were assigned to "interference by mothers-in-law."

The mother-in-law joke is one of our commonest and most stupid jokes. It is a libel on womanhood, a libel on humanity. The only basis for it there ever was is the fact that mothers think there is nobody good enough for their sons or daughters; and that roots in the finest warmth in the world—mother love.

It was time the mother-in-law joke had a jolt. Jokesmiths continue to revamp it from time to time. Distracted by the need of something to make merry about and to keep the wolf from the door, unable to think of real humor, the jokesmith every so often drags out that poor old mother-in-law joke, dusts it off, puts a new hat on it, gives it a fresh pair of shoes, and sends it toddling awkwardly out into the world again. And, oddly enough, comic paper editors seem to pay real money for it.

It's time it was given eternal rest. The mother-in-law is no joke. There have been bad mothers, and no doubt there are bad mothers-in-law. There are not enough of them to warrant the impression that has been created by the mother-in-law joke.

Chicago claims to be "the chewing gum capital of the world," which fact may account for that city's sudden efforts to spruce up.

THE POST-GRADUATE SCHOOL OF CROOKEDNESS.

The wife of Donn M. Roberts, the former mayor of Terra Haute who was sentenced to prison for crookedness, visited her husband in jail not long ago.

"How long was your husband in politics?" a local reporter asked her.

"Ever since he was a boy," said Mrs. Roberts, "and this," pointing to the gray, grim walls, "is his post-graduate course."

The post-graduate course of a type of politics that has been all too common in America logically is taken in jail, though nowhere near so many pupils of corruption have taken it as there should have been.

In almost every instance where politics and crime have become partners, the alliance was sealed by a special interest of one kind or another.

There has been downright stealing, just as there is stealing in private employ; but mostly these have been individual cases.

Broadly, the partnership between politics and crime has concerned itself with selling privileges to vice, to public utility corporations, to privilege-seekers of one kind or another who stood ready to pay for disloyalty to the public interest.

The evil of this has been many-sided and far-reaching. Perhaps its worst result has been that it made politics a thing of reproach from which many decent people shrank, when it should be a high calling that attracts the best brains, the best thought and the highest public spirit.

Less important but still significant influences of the union between politics and crime are exemplified by the fact that when graft-ridden Terre Haute recently tried to sell some bonds bond-buyers refused to touch them.

If a few more corruptionists in politics could be sent to take their post-graduate courses, politics would become more attractive to the kind of men it ought to attract.

Those people who are worrying because our warships aren't more numerous seem to forget that those we have are manned by Americans.

TESTIMONY FOR "VOTES FOR WOMEN."

There has been talk in the Illinois legislature about repealing the law which lets women vote in that state on all except constitutional officers.

As nearly as we can estimate, the source and character of this talk is a pretty high tribute to votes for women, too.

And it has brought out this interesting and significant testimony from the Chicago Tribune, which is worth reproducing here in Minnesota where we have not yet been bold enough to admit our women to the polls:

> Our suffrage act has yielded Illinois nothing but good. The participation of women in full statutory suffrage has strengthened the cause of clean administration and honest government. It has affected favorably the moral tone of our politics. It has not revolutionized government, and no level-headed person now believes that it ever will. But the prophets of mischief as a result of equal suffrage haven't a leg left to stand on. Of their apprehensions and warnings nothing resembling a shadow of fact is visible anywhere in the state.

No harm anywhere has come from giving woman the ballot. No such startling and revolutionary gains have come as some of the too ardent friends of equal suffrage promised; but what has come has been for the good and well-being of humanity.

But it is undeniable that your shoes don't shine themselves while you are wielding the safety razor.

Also one is tempted to wonder whether Europe would have fared any better if it had had the services of an intermediary council.

Newport may be expected to break out with a statement that the mines and submarines have chased all the sea-serpents across to this side.

MEMORIAL DAY, 1915.

Yesterday was Memorial day. As the day falls on Sunday, the observance was postponed to today.

Today, therefore, the nation pauses in its work to pay homage to its soldier dead—and to its soldiers living.

It is well that it should do this. It is well that it should remember, if for only one day in the year, the service to their country and to humanity these gallant men rendered half a century ago. It is well that the nation should reckon the value of this service, estimate the height of the sacrifice it entailed, and pay its homage today accordingly.

The tribute of today is to the dead and to the living, but the day brings with it a pathetic reminder of how fast mounts the list of the dead, how small grows the list of the living. Civil war time is fifty years gone. The wounds it left have healed long since, the structure that it built has endured the shocks of time and experience and has been proved solid and lasting. That there is any structure at all is due to the men whom the nation honors today.

As Memorial day succeeds Memorial day,—and how rapidly they come and go, treading with ever-mounting pace each upon the heels of the other!—American sentiment toward the occasion is undergoing a subtle change. It is not that there is less respect and affection for those who have gone, from those whose bones lie under distant battlefields to those who lie under new-made mounds in the home cemeteries. It is that there is ever more respect and affection for the little band that still remains, that still gathers at the post camp fires, that still trudges to the burying ground to pay again its respects to their comrades who are gone.

So, at least, it should be; and so, we believe, it is. As their ranks grow smaller and their steps feebler, and as the ranks of the dead are recruited so steadily and so fast, the dwindling band of veterans of the Civil war grows more precious to the country to which its gallant members dedicated their services, and if need was their lives, more than fifty years ago.

To the dead—may their sleep be sweet, their dreams happy!

To the living—may their days with us be many, may their lot be peaceful, may their journey down toward the Valley of the Shadow be pleasant!

A thought, too, on this day of ever growing tenderness, to the wives and mothers, living and dead, of the boys who fared forth in the embattled Sixties, laying their all upon the altar of their country. Of blessed memory, those splendid wives and mothers who, though seldom reckoned with in history and though their story is all too seldom sung, bore the heavy burden at home in patience and a patriotic spirit of sacrifice. Flowers of memory and affection let there be for these splendid women who typified all that is finest in the American spirit, as the loved ones they contributed to the cause of Union typified all that was bravest and best.

And as this nation journeys in spirit to a multitude of thickening graveyards to pay again its homage to the heroes, living and dead, of the War for the Union, its people should be inspired with something of the spirit of Lincoln's immortal address at the dedication in war time of the battleground of Gettysburg as a soldier's cemetery:

> But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here.
> It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced.
> It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to the cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain, that this nation under God shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth.

The Odds Against the Kaiser

Editorial in the New York Evening Post.

Italy's entrance into the war has elicited at Berlin the only comment that could be expected—that the new factor will only postpone the ultimate German victory. But when Germany admits a postponement of victory, it already admits much. At the beginning of the war it was universally recognized that time fights on the side of the allies. This fact, for some time obscured in the heat of conflict, for some time even regarded with doubt as the development of allied strength proceeded more slowly than anticipated, remains a fact nevertheless. Time has brought Italy to the side of the allies, has swelled England's strength on land, has increased the allied munition resources. Time has also, to be sure, weakened Russia; but balancing loss against gain, the impression is unavoidable that the allies are relatively much stronger today than they were during the first three months of the war, when there was still a chance for German victory by lightning tactics; stronger than at any time during the entire ten months. A comparison in numbers bears directly on this point. When hostilities began the population strength of the rival nations in approximate numbers was as follows:

Germany	70,000,000	Russia	175,000,000
Austria	50,000,000	France	40,000,000
		England	47,000,000
		Belgium	8,000,000
		Servia	3,000,000
Teutonic Allies	120,000,000	Allies	273,000,000

The anti-Teuton preponderance was, in numbers, overwhelming, but not so great as the figures we have cited would indicate. In so far as strength on land is concerned, Great Britain's showing was not at all in measure with her population. Her army of about 100,000 men was probably smaller than Servia's. Judged by her army, England might have been a nation of 5,000,000 inhabitants. From the allied figures above we should accordingly substract 40,000,000 of population, leaving 120,000,000 Austro-Germans to about 230,000,000 allies, or a little more than 1 to 2.

Time has been piling up numbers against the kaiser. To his credit side goes Turkey, which entered the war during the last days of October. To his debit side must be charged Italy and England. The latter's army in the field today is at least eight times as strong as it was in the battle of Mons. The full national effort has not yet been put forth, but for months there have been at least 2,000,000 men on the army lists, and the number of volunteers today is close to 3,000,000, if it has not passed that figure. When Berlin admits a postponement of victory, it admits that there will be time for England to put into the battle line an army approximate to her population. By the end of the first year of the war the rival numbers will therefore stand about as follows:

Germany	70,000,000	Russia	175,000,000
Austria	50,000,000	France	40,000,000
Turkey	20,000,000	England (including Canada, Australia, etc.)	58,000,000
		Italy	37,000,000
		Servia	3,000,000
Teutonic Allies	140,000,000	Allies	313,000,000

To the allied side must be added the Belgian army, still in being and represented a national strength of, say, 2,000,000, making a total of 315,000,000. So that by August the Teuton resources in men, disregarding the wastage of war, will be 45 per cent of the allied resources, as against 55 per cent at the beginning of the war. By August all the signs point to an addition of 10,000,000 to the allied resources through the entrance of Roumania and Greece, with Bulgaria a probability.

By the beginning of the second year of the war, therefore, while the kaiser will have added 20,000,000 to his human resources, the allies will have added 90,000,000, and probably a full 100,000,000. Subtract from the allied total a number corresponding to the diminution in Russia's strength relative to her defeats, and the allied advantage is still impressive. We may go further and deduct Russia entirely, and the allies are still equal in numbers to the Austro-Germans. No one supposes, of course, that Russia can be so eliminated. Defeated again and again, she must always remain a factor by keeping employed from one-third to one-fourth of the Teuton strength. So that reduced to terms of efficiency, Russia must always be reckoned as a nation of half her numerical strength, and the allied preponderance in population cannot imaginably fall below 75,000,000.

But the addition of mere numbers to the allied side does not represent the full measure of the gain. The increase of nearly 80,000,000 of population through the entrance of Italy and the full development of England's military resources is an addition to the efficiency status as well as to the mere numerical status. It is not as if Russia's population were suddenly increased by 80,000,000; it is an addition of better human material and superior resources. The Italian soldier is probably not better than the Russian soldier, but the Italian army, after a year of preparation and of study of the lessons of war, is unquestionably better supplied and will probably be better led than the Russian armies. As for England, it has been shown that her soldiers are pretty nearly the equal of any in the battle line, and her material resources are greater even than Germany's. For here enters the question of munitions, in which respect the United States must be reckoned on the side of the allies, and to a minor extent Japan. It is reasonable to suppose that the deficiency in munitions, which partially accounts for the Russian defeat in Galicia, was due in some measure to the recent Chino-Japanese crisis, when for a time it seemed as if Japan would need her own ammunition instead of selling it to Russia. Today there must be war material coming in from Japan by way of Vladivostok, just as material is coming in from this country by way of Archangel on the Arctic. Today, so far as the war on land is concerned, the kaiser may justly say that he has the whole world against him.

Against such odds the kaiser has the advantages which he had at the beginning of the war—excellent leadership, the discipline and courage of the German soldier, probably intensified by desperation, and the advantage of fighting on interior lines. The geographical situation of the Teuton empires which in times of peace was described as one of encirclement becomes in war a gain. Germany has been hitting and guarding on two fronts; her admirable organization is undoubtedly prepared to cope with the new enemy to the south. As compared with the beginning of the war, the Teutonic allies have the additional advantage of a partially weakened Russia. The advantage claimed by Germany of fighting on the enemy's soil has little meaning in the present situation. Were the allies wearying of the war, the German holdings in Belgium, France and Russia would count. With the allies only gathering their strength for a protracted struggle, Germany's territorial gains really mean a longer line of defense and increased strain.

Home Making

Youth's Companion: A home is not merely a house; it is an atmosphere, a feeling. It is a place of beloved associations, where you can wear old clothes, and think old thoughts, and hear familiar voices without hearing them. You can be happy there, and be comfortably unhappy, be thoroughly unpleasant even, and know that those you love will think no worse of you than they do already. Luxury cannot make a home, nor can books, or pictures, or rugs, or bric-a-brac. A cat, a canary, two geraniums, a Bible, and an old rocking chair may make one of the loveliest homes in the world. At the same time, a home is not necessarily happy because it is the house of poverty, as some would have us believe.

The art of creating home atmosphere is wholly the art of woman, and she has none more charming. Mere care will not do it, or mere neatness and tidiness; indeed, those things sometimes work the other way. The love of prettiness will not do it; good cooking will not do it, although it is a mighty help. Even being gay, and merry, and kindly yourself is not quite enough, although it helps even more than the cooking. Success in homemaking, as in everything else, requires that you shall feel a real joy in your work. If it is a drag, if it is an irksome duty, if your mind is on a thousand outside things that are not home, you cannot make home what it should be. Not that the home-maker should think of nothing else. That is neither desirable nor possible. But the woman whose first pleasure is to create that beautiful thing, home, will be a precious and permanent influence not only to her own family, but to all her household, to all her guests, to the whole community in which she lives.

The Swords of Grant and Lee

Methinks tonight I catch a gleam
Of steel among the pines,
And yonder by the illied stream
Repose the foemen's lines;
The ghostly guards who pace the ground
A moment stop to see
If all is safe and still around
The tents of Grant and Lee.

'Tis but a dream; no armies camp
Where once their bay'nets shone
And Hesper's calm and lovely lamp
Shines on the dead alone.
A cricket chirps on yonder rise
Beneath the cedar tree
Where glinted 'neath the summer skies
The swords of Grant and Lee.

Forever sheathed those famous blades
That led the eager van!
They shine no more among the glades
That fringe the Rapidan.
Today their battle work is done,
Go draw them forth and see
That not a stain appears upon
The swords of Grant and Lee.

Today no strife of sections rise,
Today no shadows fall
Upon our land, and 'neath the skies
One flag waves over all;
The Blue and Gray as comrades stand,
As comrades bend the knee,
And ask God's blessing on the land
The swords of Grant and Lee.

So long as southward, wide and clear,
Potomac's river runs
Their deeds will live because they were
Columbia's brave sons.
So long as bend the Northern pines,
And blooms the orange tree,
The swords will shine that led the lines
Of valiant Grant and Lee.

Methinks I hear a bugle blow,
Methinks I hear a drum;
And there, with martial step and slow,
Two ghostly armies come;
They are the men that met as foes,
For 'tis the dead I see,
And side by side in peace repose
The swords of Grant and Lee.

And let each deathless star
Forever shine upon the brave
Who led the ranks of war;
Their fame resounds from coast to coast,
From mountain top to sea;
No other land than ours can boast
The swords of Grant and Lee.

The Riggs Bank Case.

New York Evening Post: The results to date of the hearing of the injunction suit of the Riggs national bank of Washington, D. C., against the officers of the United States treasury have hardly vindicated the wisdom of the bank in bringing such a suit. The case was one in which intelligent public opinion was divided as to whether the controller of the currency had or had not directed irritating and discriminatory measures against the bank, in the way of government supervision. There had seemed to be something of a personal element in the policy thus pursued, and both the public and the court showed willingness to suspend judgment pending the evidence.

But in a case of this nature, especially when brought against the government, it is vitally necessary for himself that the plaintiff should come into court with absolutely clean hands. The judge, after considering all the several petitions of the bank, has granted a temporary injunction in one somewhat technical matter: The imposition of a fine. But he refuses to grant even a temporary injunction against the calling for further special reports by the treasury, or against "interfering or meddling" with the bank's affairs.

In denying these requests, the court declares that the allegation of bad faith on the part of the treasury has not been proved and that the treasury's counter-allegation of persistent violation of the banking law by the bank itself has been proved. The least that can be said, by people who have read the testimony intelligently and impartially, is that the bank and its attorneys showed a strange lack of understanding of the position in which their own admissions would place them in such a controversy. There is something of the infatuation with which Barnes, in order to gain a controversial point of essentially minor importance, brought matters deliberately to such a head as compelled the introduction of some facts, very awkward to his own position, into the evidence in his libel suit.

Stung.

"What is the trouble?" asked the clerk.

"There ain't no such animals," replied the angry man.

Northern Minnesota, Land of Opportunity

Chorus of Minnesota Boosters.

Trip to North Minnesota.

Sam Y. Gordon in the Browns Valley Tribune: The Tribune editor thankfully acknowledges the receipt of an invitation to join members of the state senate on a trip throughout Northern Minnesota the fore part of next month. We may not be able to accept, but we nevertheless bespeak for the party a most pleasant time, and we dare say that those members of the senate who have never visited the north part of the state will return from this trip more proud than ever before that they live in Minnesota. Northern Minnesota, with its many deep, cool water lakes, its fine fishing, its pure, bracing atmosphere, is an ideal place for a summer outing. While Northern Minnesota is comparatively new country so far as development is concerned, those who go on this trip need not expect to find a barren waste. They will find many prosperous towns and cities made up of some of the best people on earth; they will see many well-developed farms, showing the possibilities of agriculture in this region; they will see the greatest iron mines of the world; at Duluth they will see one of the most picturesque scenic driveways to be found on the globe, and here also will they get an idea of the great shipping industry, as carried on at the head of the Great Lakes. Minnesota as a whole is a magnificent state, but no man fully knows Minnesota, or is capable of passing judgment on her merits who has not personally visited and inspected her great North country resources and her still greater possibilities of that section for the future.

Business Chances.

Biwabik Times: Wanted—10,000 expert farmers now to settle in St. Louis county. A good living assured from the start, with a competence to those who really work.

A Bright Spot on the Map.

Grand Rapids Independent: "When the sun ceases to shine in Minnesota the average citizen kicks like a bay steer until it appears again," says the Anoka Union. And at that, they don't get a chance to kick so very often—anyway in Northern Minnesota. Scarcely a day passes up here that the sun does not shine part of the day, at least.

"Wilderness!" Ha-ha!

Aurora News: The poor homesteader is the man to be envied these days. While the small business man still walks, the farmers, even in Northern Minnesota's wilderness, are paying spot cash for automobiles.

Damaged the Weeds.

Brainerd Dispatch: Many of the farmers throughout the section visited by the frosts and freezing weather of recent days, are claiming considerable benefit from the fact that the weeds were killed, the wild buckwheat withered, the pigeon grass shriveled and the Canadian thistle stunted in its growth, while the real damage did not amount to much except the nipping of the tomato and cabbage plants that over-zealous gardeners had exposed to the weather. The grain crop of the Northwest promises to be the cleanest ever raised. With warm weather and bright sunshine early vegetation will be as far advanced by the first of June as usual.

More New Banks.

Ada Index: More new banks are being organized in Northwestern Minnesota than ever before. A number of towns are reporting new banking ventures. Fergus Falls is to have two new ones. Norman county is getting as many new ones as any of the other counties. Within a few years new banks have been started in Ada, Twin Valley and Fertile and each of these places now have three banks. Other banks are being organized to be started at Lockhart, Hendrum and Ada, and a new one at Gary is nearly ready for business. Either this country is getting rich or the people believe it is.

Just a Moment

Daily Strength and Cheer.

Compiled by John G. Quintius, the Sunshine Man.

For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh; how much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered Himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?—Heb. ix, 13, 14.

That is the great central thought of the atonement; the sacrifice of Christ's own blood, not the blood of bulls and goats, shall "purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God."—John A. Broadus.

The last that the world ever saw of Christ, He was hanging on the cross. The last business of His life was the saving of a poor penitent thief. That was a part of His triumph; that was one of the glories attending His death. No doubt Satan said to himself, "I will have the soul of that dead thief pretty soon down here in the caverns of the lost." But Christ snapped the fetters of this soul and set him at liberty. Satan lost his prey. "The Lion of the tribe of Judah" conquered the lion of hell.—D. L. Moody.

The great strength in us and the great stumbling block by which the devil himself will be overthrown is the blood. By the blood of the Lamb we are saved, we are strengthened; by the blood of the Lamb we are misunderstood, we are scoffed at.—John McNeill.

But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law.—Gal. v, 22, 23.

Another Fish Story.

Shelbyville dispatch to Cincinnati Enquirer: Rev. John Rees, pastor of the Mt. Pisgah Baptist church, east of here, had fish for supper. It was as fine a bass as ever graced the table of the most successful disciple of Izaak Walton. It weighed one pound dressed.

Mr. Rees became possessed of the fish in a most unusual way. The minister, members of his congregation and thirty converts had assembled on the banks of Lewis creek for baptismal services.

One-half of the converts had been baptized when the preacher felt an unusual sensation because of movements up one of his trouser legs. He halted in the ceremonies several times, as the movements became more and more annoying. Finally the fish managed to get above the belt line and into the folds of the preacher's shirt. The minister held it there until the services were finished. Then he carried his "catch" home.

The graves at Forest Hill cemetery and the Catholic cemetery were decorated in the morning and the parade was held in the afternoon, 300 veterans being in line, accompanied by four companies of the National Guard, secret societies, the fire department and many citizens. The procession proceeded to the Temple opera house, which was crowded. Ex-Governor A. H. Burke of North Dakota presided at the exercises and introduced Col. W. C. Plummer, the well-known orator of Minot, N. D., who gave the oration of the day.

Says Women Are Wonderful Executives.

David Grayson in the American Magazine: I think sometimes that women are far better natural executives and organizers than men. To keep a great household running smoothly, provisioned, cleaned, made sweet and cheerful always, and to do it incidentally as it were, with a hundred other activities filling her thoughts, is an accomplishment not sufficiently appreciated in this world. The true women of the race have this capacity highly developed. They have a real genius for orderliness, which is the sanity, if not the religion, of everyday life.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the books of general interest, but discussions of sectarian religious differences are barred. Letters must not exceed 200 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer (though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

What is the matter with the Duluth police ball team? Have they got cold feet? The Northern Pacific firemen challenged them to play on Sunday next and they would not play. Sergeant Butchart wanted to know what team we wanted to play, the first or second team of the police force. Our captain told him it made no difference as we would play both teams together. Our challenge is still open.

FIREMEN.

Duluth, May 28.

THEY SHOULD.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Inasmuch as Monday, May 31, 1915, is Decoration day, and for the purpose of furthering the patriotic spirit of the nation on this day, should not all patriotic Duluth citizens see that the flag be displayed from all buildings, both public and private?

VETERAN.

Duluth, May 29.

"THE ATLANTA JEW."

To the Editor of The Herald:

In your worthy paper of May 27 I read a reprinted article from the St. Cloud Times regarding the "Frank case," where that paper regrets the noble stand you have taken in behalf of Frank. It surely is to be regretted that such a hideous article was reprinted in a liberal paper like yours, but I am sure it was to enlighten the editor of that paper, who took a very narrow-minded stand, that his article would never have gained admittance to the columns of The Herald.

The St. Cloud Times surely shows its color when it emphasizes the words "Leo Frank," the Atlanta Jew." Is that why the Times is so willing this man should hang, just because he is a Jew? It was a mob of such mind-poisoned, prejudiced people looking for the blood of a Jew who made the jury convict of a Jew who made the jury convict Frank. It was a case of convict Frank or be lynched themselves.

No one can deny the fact that this case made an uproar all over the country. Protests and petitions pouring in on Governor Slaton by the thousands from governors of different states, legislative bodies, commercial clubs, village councils, our greatest statesmen and last, but not least, the entire press of this liberty-loving country. In face of all this the Times comes out like a crow flying high up in the air trying to cover the rays of the sun with its black wings. Shame on you, St. Cloud Times.

POEMS ASKED FOR.

The Herald acknowledges with thanks the receipts of the following poems: "Tommy's Dream" and "Because," from Mrs. C. M. of Duluth.

"Comrades," from a Duluth subscriber.

"The Land of My Dreams," from Mrs. John A. Whalen of Hibbing.

"A Little Boy in Blue" and "Little Rosebud" from Mrs. Gust A. Anderson of Virginia.

Requests have been received for a poem beginning "It was a cold winter night and the tempest was raging; the snow like a sleet covered cabin and sty," etc., from Mrs. Burcheli of Duluth.

The poem, "Ostler Joe," which was asked for Thursday is too long to publish. It can be found in any volume of the poems of George Sims.

Because.

"Now, John," the district teacher says,
With frown that scarce can hide
The dimpling smiles around her mouth,
Where Cupid's hosts abide,
"What have you done to Mary Ann
That she is crying so?
Don't say 'twas nothing—don't, I say,
For, John, that can't be so."

* * * * * * *

"We—were playing p-prisoner's base,
An' h-he is s-such a t-easer,
An'—when I wasn't l-looking, ma'am,
H-he k-kissed me—if you please."
Upon the teacher's face the smiles
Have triumphed o'er the frown,
A pleasant thought runs through her mind
The stick comes harmless down.

But outraged law must be avenged!
Begone, ye smiles, begone!
Away, ye little dream of love,
Come on, ye frowns, come on!
"I think I'll have to whip you, John;
Such conduct breaks the rule;
No boy; except a naughty one,
Would kiss a girl—at school.

Again the teacher's rod is raised,
A Nemesis she stands—
A premium was put on sin
If punished by such hands!
As when the bee explores the rose
We see the petals tremble,
So trembled Mary's rosebud lips—
Her heart would not dissemble.

"I wouldn't whip him very hard"—
The stick stops in its fall—
"It wasn't right to do it; but
It didn't hurt at all!
What made you cry, then? Mary Ann!"
The school noise makes a pause—
And out upon the listening air
From Mary comes, "Because!"

Tommy's Dream, or the Geography Demon.

I hate my geography lesson!
It's nothing but nonsense and names;
To bother me so every morning,
It's really the greatest of shames.

The brooks, they flow into the rivers,
And the rivers flow into the sea;
I hope, for my part, they enjoy it,
But what does it matter to me?

Of late, even more I've disliked it,
And more disagreeable it seems,
Ever since the sad evening last winter,
When I had that most frightful of dreams.

I thought that a great horrid monster
Stood suddenly there in my room—
A frightful Geography Demon
Enveloped in darkness and gloom;

His body and head like a mountain,
A volcano on top for a hat;
His arms and his legs were like rivers,
With a brook around his neck for cravat.

He laid on my poor trembling shoulder
His fingers, cold, clammy and long,
And fixing his red eyes upon me
He roared forth this horrible song:

"Come! come! rise and come
Away to the banks of the Muskingum!
It flows o'er the banks of Timbuctoo.
With the peak of Tenneriffe just in view;
And the cataracts leap in the pale moonshine,
As they dance o'er the cliffs of Brandywine.

"Flee! flee, rise and flee
Away to the banks of Tombigbee!
We'll pass by Alaska's flowery strand,
Where the emerald towers of Pekin stand;
We'll pass them by, and will rest awhile
On Michillimackinac's tropic isle;
While the apes of Barbary frisk around
And the parrots crow with a lovely sound.

"Hie! hie! rise and hie
Away to the banks of the Kang-tsze-ki!
There the giant mountains of Oshkosh stand,
And the icebergs gleam through the falling sand;
While the elephant sits on the palm-tree high,
And the cannibals feast on bad-boy pie.

"Go! go! rise and go
Away to the banks of the Hoang-ho!
There the Chickasaw sachem makes his tea,
And the kettle boils and waits for thee.
We'll smite thee, oh! and we'll lay thee low,
On the beautiful banks of the Hoang-ho."

These terrible words were still sounding
Like trumpets and drums through my head,
When the monster clutched tighter my shoulder,
And dragged me half out of bed.

In terror I clung to the bed-post;
But the faithless bed-post, it broke.
I screamed out aloud in my anguish
And suddenly—well, I awoke.

He was gone. But I cannot forget him.
The fearful Geography Sprite,
He has my first thought in the morning
He has my last shudder at night.

Do you blame me for hating my lesson?
Is it strange that it frightful should seem?
Or that I more and more should abhor it
Since I had that most horrible dream?

Subscriber, Duluth—Would you favor me with an answer in your Open Court me with an answer in your Open Court about the below particulars. As I am a foreign citizen of the United States of America, and have my parents still in Europe, would like you to advise me whether the United States consulate could help me in any way to get my old folks to this country, of which I am a citizen:

Their home is now in Fiume, Hungary, and there is the American consul, of which I lost the address, as he is a Minnesotan.

Kindly let me have his name and address as soon as the time will permit you.—The consul's name is Benjamin F. Chase, and he would undoubtedly do all in his power to help you get your parents to America. What he would be able to do depends on the conditions in that part of the country.

A. E. Emsley, Proctor—Would you kindly inform me how the United States ranked in naval power at the beginning of the European war? Is Japan ahead of the United States in naval power.—The naval powers are ranked as follows: Great Britain, Germany, United States, France, Japan, Russia, Italy, Austria, Brazil, Argentina, etc.

MUCH INTEREST IN GREETERS' MEET

Duluth Hotel Men May Send Delegates to Atlanta.

Duluth hotel men are following with interest the plans now being made for the national convention of the Greeters, which will be held in Atlanta, Ga., June 7, 8 and 9. The branch of the association in which Duluth is contained comprises Minnesota, North and South Dakota. It has not been decided for certain whether Duluth will be represented.

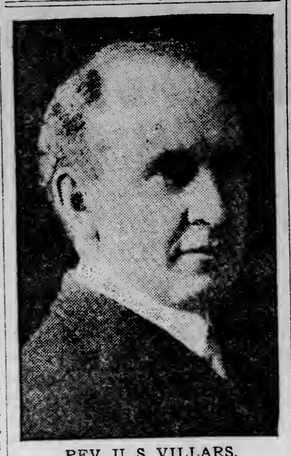
Roy Quigley, chief clerk at the Spalding, has just received a communication from Earl W. Byers of the West hotel, Minneapolis, saying that the Mill City will send about twenty Helegates, and that arrangements are being made for an excellent trip. The program this year is said to be one of great merit, containing many interesting features.

The Greeters from the Northwest will meet in Minneapolis June 4. The round trip will cost $60 from that point. Stops will be made at Birmingham and Chattanooga, so that the Northerners may look over some of the historic scenes of the new and old South. Chattanooga was the scene of several important battles of the Civil war, and is visited annually by large numbers of tourists. Lookout Mountain, which is near Chattanooga, is one of the most noted battle-grounds of the Rebellion, and it was there that Gen. "Fighting Joe" Hooker fought the famous "battle above the clouds."

Duluth Greeters are asked to forward to Minneapolis the list of members that will be sent to the convention, and to make all necessary arrangements at once.

MEMORIAL DAY ADDRESS DELIVERED BY REV. ULYSSES S. VILLARS

Pastor of Lester Park Methodist Church Declares Old Soldiers Are Glory-Crowned Living Links of Glorious Past to the Glorious Present—Denounces Frivolous Observance of Memorial Day.



REV. U. S. VILLARS.

"And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise: God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect."—Heb. xi., 39, 40.

Standing on the highlands of the present, looking forward and back we are convinced of a law of continuity in history. With its traditions and superstitions, conscious of its own incompleteness, struggling and falling, but ever rising again to new life, always to greater heights, a purer air and a clearer sky,—the past seems an age so apart from our own that we, measuring so small a span in the eternities of God, little realize our part and place in the development and attainments of future generations.

Yet ever between these ages and their contrasting conditions are links—living links,—holding the present in perfect equipoise with the past and future. It is indeed a solemn hour and vital in the life of a man or a nation, when there dawns the realization of the truth of Napoleon's words as his army stood before the Pyramids, "Forty centuries are looking down upon you." But infinitely more vital and pregnant with profit to the world is the realization that forty centuries will look back upon our work, and pronounce their verdict of benediction or malediction.

Part of All Time.

So we find ourselves as much a part of yesterday and of tomorrow as of today, and these our fathers are living links, material and moral, human and divine, binding the glorious past, the wondrous now and the glory-fraught future of American history into the perfect unity of divine progress.

Our nation was born out of infinite sacrifice for liberty. The oppressed sons and daughters of custom and creed-bound Europe—to escape the evils so destructive of all conscience and good—dared to fly to others they knew not of, nor cared, so that they might be free to worship God and serve their fellows according to the dictates of their own conscience. Little did they reck the barren rock-bound coasts of a new world, terrors of forest, dark and dense, and natives fiercer and more cruel than the ravening beasts of that wilderness. Parched corn doled out by the half score keepers gave occasion for thanksgiving, while the winter's keen blasts and hunger's fierce pangs but quickened their hope and strengthened their faith.

Made Heroes of All.

Time fails me to tell of the conflicts and conquests by which they slowly pushed the frontier westward. Truly these people reversed Shakespeare's proverb, for here conscience did make heroes of them all. Thus year by year they laid the foundation, how well they little knew, upon which would be builded a superstructure which most nearly would realize the Utopian dreams of humanity.

Early in the life of the nation was discovered a blot upon her escutcheon —a flaw in the civil fabric,—a cancer upon the body politic. With this ill condition her people could not live in peace with their neighbors or in quietness among themselves. The elimination of this curse involved a task like unto the cleansing of the Aegean stables.

Upon the body of the young nation she curse had fixed itself like the virus impregnated robe of Deinira upon the form of the demigod Hercules—but the God of nations interposed, and though flesh and bone were racked and torn, the unity of the whole body was preserved, the system cleansed, new life infused and its spirit enthused by the outpouring of the blood of the nation's martyrs for liberty and union, and by the inflowing of that rich tide into and through the lives of their sons and daughters, and

'Twas but the ruin of the Bad,
The wasting of the Wrong and Ill,
Whate'er of Good the old time had
Was living still."

New Things in Conquest.

Out of this cataclysm of woe that overwhelmed the land, out of the seeming inevitable wreck, there was saved to the world the good of human freedom—civil, intellectual and religious—and a new ideal in the relation between conqueror and the conquered. In other of the world's great conflicts, the victor has assumed supremacy, subjugating and compelling tribute from the vanquished. Subjugation to the point of slavery or national annihilation, mark the path of Alexander, Caesar, Napoleon, and other of the world's so-called heroes. But this conflict has been as the furnace heat and anvil blows that have welded together inseparably North and South into one truly divine brotherhood of humanity. Its secret is well told by Rourke Cochran:

"This government does not depend upon phrases committed to paper, but upon principles planted in the heart of man from the beginning of the world."

For it is the glory of the American soldier that he not only fought but thought, and when that recognized divinely inspired principle was assailed, he stood invincible and in attack irresistible.

Said a friend to John Knox, "All the world is against thee, John." He replied, "Then I am against all the world."

So stood these home-made heroes of ours against the systems, customs, prejudices and crimes of the past and with a fount of blood unstinted washed from our banner the stain of human slavery and expelled the dark spirit of disunion.

"Once to every man and nation
Comes the moment to decide
In the strife of Truth with Falsehood,
'Twixt the good and evil side.
Then it is the brave man chooses,
While the coward stands aside,
Doubting in his subject spirit
Till the Lord is crucified."

Brave Men Who Chose.

"And these are the brave men who chose. These are the forms that bent beneath the stress of that conflict, theirs the brains that thought out the solution of those tremendous problems, the hearts whose loyal affection for the flag made life's own sacrifice seem small indeed.

"Well has a comrade of the Sandwich, Ill., post, G. A. R., spoken:

"Not as they marched in days of old,
Young and gallant and strong and bold,
To the stirring lilt of martial air,
Or the warlike note of the bugle's blare.
But staid and slow, for the heads are white
And the feet are heavy that once were light,
And the sturdy shoulders are bending now,
And old time's fingers have marked each brow.

"'Tis two score years since the war-god flung
The challenge grim from his evil tongue.
'Tis two score years since the village street
First heard the tramp of these marching feet;
And men left mother and child and wife
And sought the clash of civil strife?
To throw their lives in the breach and fight
For the flag and the cause they deemed the right.

"And now they're marching again today
Old and feeble and bent and gray.
Not to the storm of shot and shell,
Nor the raging rout of the battle's hell,
But to the church-yard calm to heap
Tributes fair where their comrades sleep
Wreaths of lilies and rose to strew
O'er the men in gray and the men in blue."

"And so on this day when 'the dead and the living are not far apart,' when earth's desolations and heaven's joys come very close to all our hearts, alike consecrated by the blood of the 'Boys of '61,' we will forget their faults, their sins, and only remember that they were on battlefield on weary march, in dreary camp and prison pen for their country, their God and their homes.

Likely to Forget.

"We are so busy with our own affairs that we are likely to forget the cost of our liberties; so engrossed with our pleasure that we have little, if any, thought for those who paid the price.

"We will not forget. To truly perpetuate the memory of our soldiers we dedicate ourselves that we may have a country worthy their sacrifice. Their valor in war shall be equaled by ours in peace, that the vigor and sacrifice of their battle may be equaled by our own.

"But let us be practical in our sympathy. As it was said of those who entered the service of the Man of Galilee, so may it be said of those who served their country and served it well in its hour of need, 'Not many rich.' This is a theme that will always interest an old soldier, for of necessity it occupies much of their thought. With 10,000 in the almshouses of the land, 1,000 of whom die annually and are buried in the potter's field; 50,000 and more supported by friends or private charity, to say nothing of the widows and orphans in actual need, it is well that we say with Corporal Tanner:

"'It is no time to use the apothecary's scale when you come to weigh the services of the men who saved the nation. Shall we present to the world the spectacle of a nation, the richest, most prosperous and most powerful, permitting the men who established its power and preserved the nation a Union to live in want and to go down to the grave as paupers, eternal monuments of a nation's ingratitude?'

I tell you nay; and so long as I can raise my feeble voice, it shall be a part of my duty to rid the public mind of the false notion that the pension is an alms to be doled out with niggardly hand. There must be a fuller realization and recognition of our national obligation and a personal debt to the "boys of '61" and a more liberal policy toward the pensioner. The pension is not a public charity but a public debt and therefore a public duty.

Have Monetary Value.

The services of these men have a monetary as well as a sentimental value. It is true that debts of such sentiment in value cannot be paid in the counting room, but neither can this obligation be met in the tossing of oratorical bouquets from pulpit or rostrum, or by casting the choicest roses upon their graves. Justice must here reign jointly with gratitude.

"Why do we wait and coldly stint our praises,
And leave our reverent homage unexpressed,
'Till brave hearts live beneath a roof of daisies,
Then heap with flowers each hallowed place of rest.

Ah, why not give to living hearts some token
Of half the love and pride that throb through ours?

"Bring blooms to crown the dead, but in your giving
Forget not hearts that still can strive and ache!
Oh! give your richest garlands to the living,
Who offered all in youth for honor's sake."

For us of the later days these men have a message—not of words. We of the younger generation are in the majority, but we shall do well if, inspired by the glorious record of our fathers, we shall be dominated by their spirit—magnanimous—self sacrificing—peaceable and patriotic.

It is easy to be patriotic on occasions like this, self-sacrificing in the rush of a nation's crisis and peaceable when there is no cloud in the sky or the odds against us—but magnanimous—ah, there's the rub. "We can forgive but not forget," we say. What then is our forgiveness worth if it involves a cherished hurt and perpetual enmity. Rather let us rise above such unworthy sentiment and follow the lead of the incomparable Grant who said:

"I feel that we are on the eve of a new era when there is to be great harmony between the Federal and Confederate. I cannot stay to be a witness of the fulfillment of this prophecy, but I feel it within me that it is to be so."

Vision Fulfilled.

We have lived to see the fulfilment of that vision. We have seen a Wheeler and Lee, Lawton and Grant, and sons of the Blue and the Gray keeping step, shoulder to shoulder in defense of a common humanity. I do not expect to live long enough to hear more loyal, patriotic utterances from man than I heard at the dedication of the monument to the Confederate dead in Oakwood cemetery, Chicago, May 30, 1895, from the lips of Generals Longstreet, Lee and Gordon.

Your conquest was great not alone because of the battles you so bravely fought in spite of carnage and death, the price of your victories; but because your matchless leader could be magnanimous, and you rejoiced in it. We can afford to be magnanimous. In that conflict we gained all we sought and more; and the dawn of a new era of peace and good will and prosperity, silencing the thunder of battle and dispelling the clouds of strife, sets the seal of divine approval on the work you did. Any display, therefore, of "fire-eating" proclivities or the manipulations of the "bloody shirt" is a reversal to evil type and only embitters our own hearts, and checks the new patriotism, rising phoenix-like from the ashes of desolation in the South land.

Glory Cannot Be Obscured.

Who can dim the glory of these "boys of '61?" Though our nation endure to the end of time, no hand can mar, no cloud obscure the brightness of the names of these sons of Columbia, for they are written on the highest panels in fame's pantheon in the blood of self-sacrifice.

Here is the secret of those victories, the power that subdued their enemies and preserved the Union. What, indeed, has been the secret of the world's redemption from ignorance, error and sin, but sacrifice, self-immolation upon the altar of liberty and human progress.

When the disciples of Jesus of Nazareth first heard the call, "Follow Me," the world sank into nothingness beside that duty, and they forsook all and followed Him. So when these men saw their country's need and heard her call, her cry for help, they counted as naught all self-interest, and severed even the ties of love and home. "One step beyond themselves," and the common-place became heroes, saviors of your country and mine.

This sacrifice establishes a closer, holier relationship, a new bond of interest and affection, which nothing can break and which nothing should be allowed to desecrate. How can we belittle the services of these men and their fallen comrades? Shall we give over Memorial day to sport and dissipation? How dare we, remembering the cost, make this holy day a mere holiday? When a people can do this, it marks the beginning of the decay of loyalty, the decline of patriotism and a vacuum of moral sense.

Thomas Carlyle responded to the greeting, "Merry Christmas!": "Merry Christmas? I had forgotten it until I saw men at the ale house unusually drunk, and then I remembered that it was the anniversary of their Savior's birth."

Condemns Frivolity.

Shall I hold a picnic because my neighbor's father has died? Yet that is just what many are doing today. Through the thoughtlessness of youth, the greed of gain and the pleasure of debauch, Memorial day is being more and more prostituted from its original intent, and to such an extent that reverence for the dead has been so dishonored that a fearful degeneracy of patriotism is imminent and the loss of all sense of the sacredness of human feelings and sacrifices.

The sporting events on this national funeral day are as great an offense against good taste and patriotism as for children or other members of the household to turn from the grave of a father or patron to similar revelries. The boys ought to stop playing while the funeral is taking place and not make a gala day of the occasion when even the birds sing a requiem for the nation's dead and the flowers yield their choicest perfume.

As now prostituted, the holiday is an affront to the living soldier and the widowed and orphans of the dead.

The greatness of the American soldier lay not in his efficiency as a fighter alone, but in his devotion to the home and its ideals. When you have declared "America is a nation of homes" you leave nothing unsaid as to their character and motives.

When the news reached the Confederate army that Lee had surrendered, a shout rent the air, echoed by the boys in blue, not of derision, defiance or of battle, but joy unbounded—for the war was over and they could go back to their homes again, for after all "home-loving" is only another way of saying peace-loving. These brave warriors loved peace best of all. They knew Sherman was right, but they also knew just as well that under certain conditions peace might be worse than war, in its ultimate consequences. Their arms had long shielded the weak and oppressed of the land and guarded well her integrity, and now the day of rest and peace and security had arrived. Never will the world forget the price of that day.

What was the force that impelled and energized and inspired these farmer boys, clerks, merchants and mechanics, business and professional men, day laborers and school boys to turn their backs on home life with all its affection and comfort? What, indeed, but that holy principle by which the most glorious pages of history have been written, not always in blood, than which none but the love of God is higher and holier—patriotism, love for country?

Spirit That Controls Now.

It is that same spirit that holds the people safe guardians of the nation's honor today.

Nothing in our history during my lifetime has so impressed me with the consciousness of the perfect unity of our nation, in spite of the mixture of the races in its population and convinced me that the "Melting Pot" had done its work well, as the effect upon all classes of President Wilson's note to Germany protesting the sinking of the Lusitania. The heart of every one of American ancestry (if there is really such a thing) must have been stirred to its depths by the loyal response of the people of all nationalities and especially of those American citizens of Teutonic birth and blood. Never have I been so sure that there was no such other thing as an "immigration peril."

Nothing has occurred in our history that will so effectively hasten the day (if it has not already ushered it in upon us) when the "hyphenated citizenship" shall be eliminated. Indeed I am convinced that now is the time for all loyal people to refuse to recognize in any manner the existence of such a thing as a Norwegian-American, Italian-American, Irish-American, German-American or any other qualified and so restricted American, but insist that all shall be only Americans.

President Wilson expressed this well and in terms that could not be misunderstood when he said to a company of newly made American citizens in Philadelphia:

"You cannot become thorough Americans if you think of yourselves in groups. America does not consist of groups. A man who thinks of himself as belonging to a particular group in America, has not yet become an American, and the man who seeks to trade upon your nationality is no worthy son to live under the Stars and Stripes. You do not love humanity if you seek to divide humanity into jealous camps. Humanity can only be welded together by love, by justice, not by jealousy and hatred. The man who seeks to divide man from man, group from group, interest from interest in the United States, is striking at its very heart."

Patriotism Universal.

But this spirit of loyal and united patriotism is not dominant alone among the native born, but today, in North and South, East and West, among the Englishman, Italian, Frenchman, German and all, it holds full sway.

Patriotism in the broadest and deepest interpretation must be taught intelligently, propagated zealously and defended zealously for devotion to the vital principles of loyalty, liberty, justice and personal and civic righteousness must not be taken for granted. It is complimentary but it is also dangerous.

Such patriotism calls for the same courage—"grit"—today as in the days of our fathers. Now as then the nation needs men with "iron in their blood." For the patriotism you men displayed in the 60s, if worthy the name, will be as fervent in this day of our country's need as then. There is no call to arms, but to service which puts humanity first.

When the Christ announced "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's," He laid the foundation for all true loyal citizenship. The French Revolution, its goddess a harlot, its devotees butchers, and its victims humanity, is a fair manifestation of a godless patriotism.

Contrast the opening of the first Constitutional convention with prayer, Washington at prayer in the snow at Valley Forge, Lincoln on his knees all night in the crucial hours of the Civil war, Garfield on the day of Lincoln's assassination—"God reigns and the government at Washington still lives."

No wonder some of us love the flag, for it speaks of a united people, one, not as North and South, East and West, but just as men, with one love and one purpose.

So as we stand today in the presence of a great national world-crisis, with the men of the Blue and the men of the Gray before us, the broken remnants of the past, we call to you and pledge our troth:

"But you, O soldiers that are left
Close up the thinning lines,
And lift with pride your weary eyes
To where Old Glory shines.

"That banner still shall proudly float
When years have passed away,
When children of the future meet
To keep Memorial day.

"For those who fought and fell,
Whose death was glory,
And those who lived their span,
Let there be kept a place in song
And story
While mankind honors man.
And, bugler, blow
High and low,
Taps."

TRIBUTE FOR WAR VETERANS

Their Sacrifice, Patriotism and Purpose Lauded By Dr. Hoffman.

Civic Freedom and High Religious Ideals Needed, He Declares.

Dr. John W. Hoffman, pastor of the First M. E. church, paid a fine tribute to the patriotism, loyalty and self-sacrifice of the soldiers of the Civil war yesterday morning when he preached the annual sermon at the services for the Grand Army of the Republic. About 200 were present, comprising forty members of the G. A. R., members of the Spanish War Veterans, Sons of Veterans, Citizens' Staff, the National Guard, and included Col. Resche and Lieut.-Col. Eva.

National colors featured the decorations of the church, and there was a tasteful display of flowers and plants. Appropriate music was rendered, and Miss Gladys Reynolds received a hearty response when she sang "Taps."

Dr. Hoffman gave an eloquent address on "Patriotism and Peace," in which he said:

Veterans Preserved Nation.

"Veterans and fathers, we are not unmindful of the honor of your noble presence with us. Your enthusiasms have woven their moral value into the warp and woof of our daily life. Neither the enormous cost of your devotion nor the sight of the tremendous sacrifice you must offer could deter you from that holy dedication of self and life in the determination that, 'This nation, under God, might have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth. With heroic abandon you consecrated all to one flag, one political authority, one nation for our great land. We reverence you for your splendid devotion and are grateful for your gallant services to state and nation.

Justice in the Cause.

"Yours was a patriotism that exhibited itself in battle array; ours must be that of the valorous conquests of peace. We need not the heroism of the brilliant charge but that of the toiler in the mill who will not betray his conscience. It is ours to vanquish the irritating, destructive, wasteful forces of our body politic. Patriotism, peace, prosperity! Noble words all! The sarcasms of the European slaughter neither dim the luster of these holy symbols nor do they divert us from the firmly rooted conviction that the world will yet sheathe the sword and appeal to reason and principle.

Vision of Life's Problem.

"That this glorious ideal may be realized we must have vision for the basic problem of life. It is not labor, it is not wealth, it is not health, it is not politics; it is, as Prof. Eliwood points out, the fine art of living together in just, honorable, right and kindly relations with one another. It is all a matter of wages, incomes, salaries, we are told. It was the economic differences between North and South, some declare, that made the Civil war inevitable, as the real cause of the oversea clash is affirmed to be a struggle for markets. We do not minimize the economic, the eugenic, the political needs of life. They are essential but do not deal with the moral value of wealth, nor do they inspire elemental human relations of justice and honor and kindness. Neither wages nor incomes impose moral imperatives on men.

Issue In Moral.

"The heart of our life problem, the solution of which means peace and prosperity for all, is neither material nor mechanical, it is moral. It has to do primarily with personal worth and social relations not with military programs. Our supreme need is therefore a moral ideal which finds our highest development through service and happiness in a character pulsing with every human sympathy. Out of such an ethic we shall build a state which has a consciousness of the common good, which repudiates provincialism and cynical utilitarianism in diplomacy and is dedicated to human welfare. Business and industry will then participate in a finer justice, a holier righteousness, and a grander humaneness. No success is thus ever worthy which comes at the expense of others.

Religious Ideals Necessary.

"That we may realize this broadened moral ideal, education must develop a fine passion for religious ideals and the church be emancipated from all unworthy control. Oversea Christianity has not failed, but the state church has miserably failed. Ever Tory in its sympathies, it sees not the vast human outreaches of our common life. The fighting instinct is neither controlled nor guided. The state pulpit is timid and silent. An open pulpit, a free press, free speech, the unfettered swing of the intellect and all interpenetrated with the purpose and passion of Jesus Christ: These we must have if peace with honor and prosperity with justice are to be ours. We plead for a patriotism that enthrones God and loves folks, that lives for the right and dies for the truth, and that is dedicated to one moral code, one spiritual ideal, one religious aim for all people."

YOU CAN'T RUB IT OUT

The pain of rheumatism is something that you cannot rub out. Every sufferer from rheumatism has been advised to rub this or that on the affected part but after all the rubbing the pain remained.

Thin blood and rheumatism come together and if they are properly treated they will go together. One prominent medical writer says that "there is no acute febrile disease in which an anemia occurs with greater rapidity." Anemia means thin blood and thin blood is something that can be corrected so why not build up the blood until the rheumatic poisons are driven out?

This is exactly what is done in the treatment of rheumatism with Dr. Williams 'Pink Pills. Acute, muscular and articular rheumatism all show improvement as the thin blood is built up and when the poisons in the blood are burned up and driven out the rheumatism does not return as long as the blood is kept rich and red.

Care in the diet is important during the treatment and every rheumatic sufferer should have two booklets published by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., called "Building Up the Blood" and "What to Eat and How to Eat." They are free on request. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

An Everyday Cake

Here is a simple and inexpensive cake that can be varied in many ways with different frostings and icings. It looks a little nicer baked in a tube pan, but will be equally as good baked in a square loaf.

K C Gold Cake

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

½ cup butter; ½ cup sugar; yolks of 4 eggs, beaten light; 1 cup flour, less 2 level tablespoonfuls; 2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; ½ cup milk; grated rind of 1 orange.

Sift flour and baking powder together three times; cream butter and sugar, beat yolks of eggs, add these to creamed mixture, and lastly add the moisture and flour alternately, beating batter until smooth. Gold Cake can only be made successfully by beating yolks of eggs, very, very creamy and light lemon colored, using a rotary beater. The rotary beater is the only beater that will do justice to the yolks of eggs. The beating kills all egg taste and improves the texture of the cake.

Cocoanut Frosting

Beat the whites of 2 eggs dry; gradually beat in half a cup of sifted confectioner's sugar and continue the beating until the frosting is smooth, thick and glossy; then beat in grated cocoanut, fresh or prepared, and spread upon the cake. This frosting is made thick by beating rather than by sugar.

Save this recipe. You will want to use it frequently. Or better, send us the colored certificate packed in each 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder and we will mail you "The Cook's Book" containing this and 89 other baking recipes equally good—all by Mrs. Hill. Jaques Mfg. Co., Chicago.

GIVING THE SPORT WORLD DOINGS THE "ONCE-OVER"

BY BRUCE.

NIMRODS returning from the nearby lakes lug home the report that bass fishing at this early stage of the proceedings is not what it might be or doubtless will be. The frigid atmosphere wafted thither by northeasters has done the fishing no good.

There are no mosquitos out as yet—and the veteran follower of the pastime made so famous by Izaak Walton will tell you that fishing is not really what it ought to be until the little insects that cause srong exclamations are flying about.

Mandot and Freddy Welsh.

WHILE in Duluth Saturday Tommy Walsh did some rustling around. The manager of Joe Mandot saw several prospective fight club managers. In the wake of the departure of Thomas the impression was left that it was possible that the first boxing contest held here under the legalized ruling would be one between Joe Mandot and Freddy Welsh.

Naturally the majority of the fans are pulling for a meeting between the champion and Louisiana Joe over the twenty-round route, with a decision attached. This is about the only way the title can be pried loose from the elusive Mr. Welsh. But ten rounds would give the fans at least a peek at the lad who has succeeded in annexing the world's lightweight championship.

Today's Double Bill.

DENNIS SULLIVAN is here today with his Fort William baseball aggregation. Dennis received his first baseball job under Bill Carney, now an umpire in the same league where Denny is handling the managerial reins of the first Northern league club he has ever handled.

Fort Will is hiking right along this season. Two games are down on today's program. The Fort William aggregation will also be in our midst on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Darby's Dooks will have to show a dash of speed to hold the visitors. The playing of the White Sox has been rather indifferent so far this season. A brace is expected by the hopeful. Now would be a good time to tighten the belt.

Race Getting Interesting.

SOME interest in the Grade School baseball race! Some race and some league. This week the final lap of the race for the two division championships will be started. After the title in the Eastern and Western divisions has been decided, the city grade school championship games will be played off in Athletic park.

It is safe to say that there is not a kid in the public schools of the city, a parent, a teacher or a principal who does not look forward to the playing of these games.

If you, fond and doting parent, own a kid who manifests no glowing interest in the outcome of these games, or manifests no burning desire to witness them, there is something the matter with said kiddo. Take him to a doctor. Waste no time.

It is believed that the games that will decide the grade school title will be played before monster audiences. Already the interest is beginning to glow and raise its back to be fondly stroked. At the end of the present week there should be even more of the sparkling kind of enthusiasm.

Chicago a Good Stand.

AT the end of last season the moguls of the American league realized that stern measures must be adopted to fight the Federal league. Part of the program of aggression included the placing of strong teams in Chicago and New York, the two great centers of the great American game.

Judging from the result of the season's play to date the plan of providing a real ball team for Charley Comiskey has worked out with admirable success. In the bright lexicon days of the Chicago American there is no such a thing as talk of baseball stringency.

Frank Farrell and old Bill Devery were chased out of the ownership of the New York American club. It required some heaving, some plotting, considerable dickering and some real coin to accomplish the ousting. Bill Donovan, unfettered, unhampered, and driving with a free managerial rein, has so far kept his team up in the race and has therefore squared with the program outlined by Ban Johnson.

However it is doubtful if the Yankees can cling to their present rather exalted position in the junior major circuit. The Western trip has not been one of triumph. The Yanks got off to a flying start, it is true, but the race hardly settles to its stride until after the first month. There is not such a great change in the Yanks and it is doubtful if they can stay high enough in the race to realize the vaulting ambition of Ban Johnson—that of putting a winner in New York.

Comiskey has what looks like a real baseball team. The result is great crowds at the South Side park. If the Yanks could cling to the top during the greater part of the race there is little doubt but that crowds would flock to see them perform and thus assist in the war against the invading Federal league, that has as yet been unable to break into the metropolis.

DOOKS WIN FINAL GAME

Red Sox Beaten By Score of 6 to 2 in Ten Rounds.

Williams and Truman Hit Home Runs in Last Frame.

Duluth defeated Superior over at Hislop park yesterday by the score of 6 to 2. Superior counted two runs in the fourth frame. The White Sox one in the fifth and another in the eighth. Neither team could cross the plate in the ninth, but in the tenth the White Sox piled up four runs and won with plenty to spare.

Big Turner was on the mound for the Dooks and held the Swampers to four hits. Outside of the fourth round the big fellow was invincible. Williams was the knoll laborer for the Superior gang.

McGee singled in the fourth and was scored by Swalm's homer. Sweeley scored O'Brien in the fifth by a double and Bud Croake came home in the eighth ahead of Chief Williams' long single. In the tenth Croake was hit by a pitched ball and was scored by Williams' home run. Collins also hit and scored when Truman hit the ball out of the bandbox. That was all and enough.

In the game of Saturday Benton held the Dooks to three hits and Superior won the game by the score of 2 to 0. Boley slabbed for the Dooks and worked nicely. It was a heaver's duel and Benton had the better of the going. Both teams performed well in the field.

PEGGERS GET AN EVEN BREAK

Winnipeg, Man., May 31.—The best the tail end Peggs could get in the last games of the series with the Flickers here Saturday was an even break. The Flicks won the first 7 to 6 and the lost the second 11 to 9.

Pitcher Snow won his first game and when the firing became too heavy in the second game for Snyder, Snow went in and pitched the last three innings holding the Peggs scoreless. Manager Roy Patterson also relieved McNeely in the seventh but the Forkers made one more run. Grand Forks staged a ninth inning rally in the ninth when a base on balls and a two-base blast counted and broke the tie. Score:

EDISONS TAKE DOUBLE-HEADER

Canadian Northern and Street Railway Teams Are Defeated.

The Duluth-Edison team got a good start in the Duluth Amateur Baseball league Saturday by the defeat of the Canadian Northern team in the first game of the bill and the Duluth Street Railway aggregation in the second. The first game was copped by the score of 10 to 5 and the second 6 to 3.

Schaeffer was on the mound for the Edisons in both games and pitched nice baseball. Hilber, shortstop for the Edisons, secured two doubles in the first game and four hits in the second. Tims threw a steady game for the street railway men in the second contest, but his support was not of the best. The scores:

PLAYERS DON'T TALK BACK TO THIS LARGE PERSON

DOMINICK J. MULLANEY.

Dominick J. Mullaney, one of Ban Johnson's new umpires, is getting a lot of publicity of late. Mullaney tips the beam at about 225 pounds and stands 6 feet 3 inches in his bathing togs. He is of Irish extraction, was born at Louisville, Ky., and for a time he played professional ball. He was also manager of several teams in the South. So far none of the players in the league has seriously questioned his judgment and respect for Mullaney's big fists has had something to do with it.

Lewis Institute of Chicago took first place in the meet, beating Shattuck Military school of Faribault, Minn. The Chicago team scored 25½ points and the Faribault school was second with 19 1-3.

The meet was the hardest fought track event ever staged on Northrop field, and a feature was the work of Zoellin of Chicago, who lowered the Minnesota state record in the high hurdles from 16 seconds to 15 1-5 seconds. Zoellin was also individual winner of the meet.

Cubs 1: Cards 0.

Chicago, May 31.—Phelan's double in the tenth, followed by two two-base hits, gave Chicago the decding run in a ten-inning 2-to-2 defeat of St. Louis yesterday. Sallee pulled out of several tight holes and clever fielding by Wilson helped him in some crises, but Butler's two errors were partly responsible for a Cub run in the third. Pierce's unsteadiness caused his retirement, and the Cardinals were unable to count against Vaughn, who succeeded him in the sixth. Archer caught three would-be stealers. Score:

Split Double-Header.

Kansas City, Mo., May 31.—Kansas City and Milwaukee divided a double-header here yesterday, the visitors taking the first game 5 to 4, and Kansas City the second, 16 to 0. The second contest was called at the end of the first half of the seventh inning by agreement. The visitors got an early lead in the first game, and held it with Slapnicka, who replaced Young in the first inning, pitching well in the pinches and the Kansas City team was unable to bunch hits. The second game was a runaway affair, in which Milwaukee used all available pitching material, even using Lewis, who had been playing first base. A dispute over the decision of the umpire caused an unsatisfactory ending in the ball game between the Maccabee-Lincoln Park team yesterday. The lodge team led by the score of 7 to 6 in the ninth when the Lincolns scored what proved to be a hotly disputed run and the Maccabee players refused to continue the game. The game was played at Lester park.

Emergency Remedies in the Medicine Chest

MOST surgeons agree that the safest antiseptic for emergency uses in cases of cuts, bruises, abrasions or open wounds is plain old-fashioned tincture of iodine, not the so-called "colorless iodine," which isn't iodine any more, but the brown tincture which we so loved to paint on our bumps when we were kids and children.

One swabbing or painting of the injured part and the skin for a few inches, more or less, around it. Then no further applications other than perfectly clean or sterilized muslin, linen, gauze or other protection. To sterilize any cloth you must wrap it in a cover and bake it in the oven. Then keep it well covered until you are ready to use it, and in applying it be careful to avoid touching the part which is to come in contact with the injured place.

Among the useful things to keep on hand for emergencies may be mentioned aromatic spirits of ammonia. This makes an excellent stimulant for cases of sudden faintness, heart failure, nausea, shock or collapse from heat. It should be given in a little cold water—for an adult about half a teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in six or eight spoonfuls of cold water. It is prompt and safe. Personally we consider it incomparably better as a stimulant than whisky or brandy. Indeed, the latter is only false stimulation.

Camphorated oil is another good thing to have in the medicine chest. Make it yourself by dissolving as much powdered gum camphor as will dissolve in hot olive oil or sweet almond oil. Keep tightly corked. For children, as well as for adults, we think camphorated oil quite as effective as any other application for the chest, throat and bridge of nose, in cases of coryza ("cold in the head"), sore throat, bronchitis or pneumonia. It soothes, counter-irritates and seems to do good, and can be applied early and often without blistering or doing harm.

Cigarette Smoking Women.

Is it injurious for a healthy young woman to smoke two or three cigarettes a day?

ANSWER—Yes, Mabel, we think it is very injurious to a healthy young woman, just as it is for a young man. If healthy, why crave a narcotic?

Thin, Sickly Looking Fellow.

I am 24 years old and feel perfectly well, but I have a thin, sickly looking face which makes people ask me what is the matter, if I am sick or anything. What do you think would help me?

ANSWER—Dear People: Don't drive folks to the doctor. Tell 'em how fine they're looking, even if you have to lie. Doctors lie about this, and it does patients good, so it would be great for well people. A letter of advice on gaining weight will be sent on receipt of stamped addressed envelope.

Our Collection of Stamps.

We have on hand about a million postage stamps which correspondents have contributed despite instructions. The owners may have property on receipt of a stamped addressed envelope and a request for the return of the stamps. They are of no use to us without the addressed envelopes, which must be stamped.

HOUSE HAS LOW SCORE

Turns in Low Golf Card in 18-Hole Medal Handicap.

The Memorial day medal play handicap contest began at the Northland club links Saturday afternoon. The contest was an 18-hole one and was played over a fast course, the bright weather of the last few days serving to dry up the greens in fine shape. Play is on today, starting at an early hour.

F. E. House turned in the low score card of the day with a 74, M. B. Cullum being second with 77, and W. W. Walker, third, with a mark of 78. The majority of the scores are considered good, considering the fact that Saturday's program was one of the first of the season and also that later on the course will be in much better condition.

Other cards are as follows:

J. L. Mullin, 86; Elmer N. Whyte, 81; M. J. O'Brien, 84; R. J. Raley, 81; R. S. Patrick, 83; Laird Goodman, 81; E. P. Towne, 81; F. H. White, 87; W. G. Hegardt, 86; C. E. Tweed, 80; A. J. McCulloch, 83; R. L. Griggs, 82, and R. F. Smith, 81.

BLUE COATS DEFEAT WORK FARM GUESTS

Duluth "Cops" Play Fast Sunday Game, Winning By Score of 5 to 2.

Spurred on by their defeat at the hands of the Superior "cops" last week, the Duluth bluecoats journeyed to the work farm Sunday and "took a fall out of" the city and county team by a 5-to-2 score.

With Capt. Oscar Olson on the bench as a result of injuries sustained in the Superior contest, Traffic Officer L. A. Root was sent in to do the twirling for the "coppers" and the big motorcyclist had the game in hand from the start.

The work farm shortstop let a fast one get away from him in the fifth inning and two runs resulted, while the "cops" said: "You ought to get thirty days for that."

Work farm men stated that the real reason for their defeat was Capt. Olson's cigars. The burly leader of the policemen distributed many "smokes" to the prisoners, and it is said that the tobacco proved too strong for some of them and interfered with their playing.

Commissioner Silberstein, with Chief of Police McKercher, watched the contest, which went the full nine innings. After the game the policemen were guests at a dinner.

"We're getting started now," said Capt. Olson after the game, "and the boys are closing up some of those holes that were so much in evidence in the Superior game. We'll stage a real comeback act in the near future."

The men who lined up on the "cops" team were Callahan, Boland, P. Barber, Eckard, J. Perry, Harry Toewe, Henry, Honnold and Root.

Women Golfers at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., May 31.—The first amateur woman's golf tournament to be played in St. Louis began today on the links of the Bellerive Country club with more than eighty entries.

Several of the players have taken part in Western championship tourneys and keen competition for the honors of the meet was expected.

MANY DOUBLE-HEADERS MADE NECESSARY BY BAD WEATHER

New York, May 31.—Rain and cold weather prevailed to such an extent in major league territory during the week just passed that out of more than fifty scheduled games only thirty-eight were played. With these postponed games added to the many others due to the backward spring, most of the clubs will have doubleheaders for some time to come. The round of first visits has been completed and double hill attractions are now possible under the rules.

Friday's double header in Boston may have been the turning point in the Braves' campaign for another National league pennant. The world's champions had been doing none too well since the injury, weeks ago, to Johnny Evers. Week before last they lost four of five games and dropped two out of three during the week just closed before the Western clubs started back home and the Philadelphia leaders appeared in Boston. The Braves then began playing something like their old game, and subjected Moran's men to three beatings in two months, thereby establishing themselves in third place, three games behind the Phillies.

The work of the St. Louis club attracted attention during the week. They outplayed the Giants except in the last game of the series and won from, and tied with Pittsburgh in Saturday's doubleheader.

Chicago's Winning Streak.

In the American league race, there was no change in the first division clubs, Chicago holding the position in a week of consistent play, which brought its total of straight victories up to nine. It stopped at that, however, for the White Sox were beaten yesterday by the Clevelands in a close game.

Detroit, another heavy batting team, which, during the week won four games in six, suffered a check from St. Louis yesterday, when Weilman won an extra inning pitching duel with Dubuc, the Tigers' star and the latter were held to a tie in a second half of the doubleheader. The Browns have been showing prime form recently. Washington has been playing better ball and winning more games, and there also has been a slight improvement in Boston's working, and Cleveland has been showing signs of betterment.

Yankees Poorest Showing.

The New Yorks have made the poorest showing recently of any club in either league, having dropped six straight games.

Indianapolis maintained its place in the front of the American association race despite the advance of Louisville and Kansas City's continued streak of winning. Rain caused many postponements during the week ending Saturday and is said to have cost the association magnates much money.

Although the National and American schedules were badly broken up by bad weather, the big circuits of organized ball suffered much less severely during the week than the Federals. Seldom in the history of a league has there been so much postponing within a short space of time. There were more postponements, in fact, than games played, the figures standing twelve played and fifteen postponed.

CORNELL WINS BIG TRACK MEET

Harvard Second and Yale Third in Philadelphia Contest.

Philadelphia, May 31.—The Cornell university track and field team won the fortieth annual games of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletics Saturday afternoon, scoring 45½ points.

Harvard was second with 26 points, one more than the total scored by Yale, with Pennsylvania and Princeton tied for fourth place, with 21 points each. Dartmouth and Michigan divided sixth place with 14 points each; Columbia with eighth with 10; while Maine with 9, Pennsylvania state 6, Johns Hopkins 1½, Massachusetts Tech and Bowdoin 1 each, completed the scoring colleges.

Two new records were established and a third equaled. Westley M. Oler of Yale cleared 6 feet 4¼ inches in the running high jump after a great leaping duel with Alva W. Richards of Cornell, the winner of the Olympic games jump at Stockholm in 1912. Oler's feat displaced the association record of 6 feet 3¾ inches, made by T. Moffit of Pennsylvania eight years ago, and the collegiate record of 6 feet 4 inches, made by W. B. Page of Pennsylvania in 1886.

H. P. Bailey of the University of Maine broke the second record, sending the 16-pound hammer 165 feet ¾ inch in his preliminary trial, winning first place without further ado and 2¾ inches to the figure established by John R. Dewitt of Princeton in 1903. Ted Meredith of Pennsylvania equaled the association record of 48 seconds in winning the 440-yard run.

Home With Good Record.

Fargo, N. D., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a record of winning seven of the ten games played on the first road trip, Unglaub's ball players are back on the home grounds for a series with Winnipeg, St. Boniface and Grand Forks. Col. Bob is still limping as a result of his injuries in one of the early games away from home.

New Manager for Pegs.

Winnipeg, Man., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frosty Thomas today took charge of the Winnipeg baseball club, succeeding Roy Patterson as manager of the aggregation. The change was made at Fargo, where the club plays a doubleheader today. Under the new arrangement, Patterson remains with the Winnipeg club as a member of its pitching staff.

TRACK FAST FOR BIG AUTO CONTEST

Weather Conditions Threatening at Indianapolis; Immense Crowd on Hand.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 31.—Lowering clouds with a light mist falling did not dampen the ardor of thousands of motorists who began early today to make their way to the local speedway, where the fifth international 500-mile motor race was scheduled to start at 10 o'clock. On account of heavy rain the race was postponed from last Saturday until today. Speedway officials announced that the race would start at 10 o'clock unless ther was a downpour of rain at that time. As early as 5 o'clock today automobile enthusiasts, in motor cars, interurban trains, railroad trains and street cars were on their way to the speedway.

Interest in the race is unusually keen on account of the excellent showing of American cars in practice and the great speed displayed by all entrants.

American cars won the first two 500-mile contests and foreign cars finished first in 1913 and 1914. Ralph De Palma is the favorite in the betting. Howard Wilcox, Dario Resta and others, however, have large followings. The cold rains which caused postponement of the contest chilled the brick paving of the course and the result will be, it is declared by many, that fewer tire changes will be made and consequently greater speed can be maintained. Rene Thomas, who established the record of 6:03:45 in 1914, drove on an average of 82.47 miles an hour.

Missouri Golf Tourney.

St. Louis, Mo., May 31.—The annual tournament of the Missouri Golf association began on the links of the Glen Echo Country club here today. More than 200 men were entered for the qualifying round. Practically all the golf stars of Missouri were on the list including Stuart, Stickney, Drummond Jones, W. A. Stickney, Ebergard Anheuser, E. R. Morrison of Kansas City and Alden B. Swift of St. Joseph.

EX-PRECEPTRESS SUES PRESIDENT

Head of Duluth Normal Defendant in Damage Action.

E. W. Bohannon, president of the Duluth Normal school, is made defendant in a suit for damages brought in district court Saturday afternoon by Bella Beard, ex-preceptress at the school. She asks $7,490.87 damages on three causes of action.

The plaintiff alleges that she was employed as preceptress at the school, Aug. 26, 1913, and that although she was trained and efficient in the management of the dormitories, she was summarily discharged on April 10, 1914.

She alleges that she had a contract for ten and three-fourths months for which she was to receive $950, free board and room and laundry service.

On her first cause of action she is asking $259.12 due for services under the contract and $231.75 for what she expended for rooms and laundry after she had been discharged.

On her second cause of action she asks for $2,000 damages as a balm for her wounded feelings, the mental anguish occasioned by her being discharged, and loss of time.

The plaintiff also seeks on a third cause of action to recover $5,000 as damages to her good name and reputation.

Grand Forks Church Bids.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—St. Mark's English Lutheran church has received bids for the construction of a $25,000 church. The church will be constructed on the Romanesque style, and work on it will be commenced within the next two months. It will be the second church constructed in the city this year.

CHIPPEWA GENERAL COUNCIL.

Will Be Held at White Earth, Minn., June 12.

White Earth, Minn., May 31.—John G. Morrison, Jr., of Red Lake, president of the general Chippewa council, has sent out notices that a general council of all the Chippewa Indians in Minnesota will be held here June 12, to hear reports of officers of the organization and consider matters pertaining to the welfare of the tribe in Minnesota.

"The basis of representation to the councils of this organization shall be one delegate for each one hundred members or the major fraction thereof, of the White Earth and Red Lake Reservations and reservations ceded under the provisions of the act of congress of Jan. 14, 1889," says the call. "Such delegates shall be elected on the first Tuesday in June of each year, by the local councils of said reservations and ceded reservations.

"All chiefs of banks are ex-officio delegates to the meetings of the general council in addition to the regularly elected delegates.

"In the absence of local organizations or councils, it is suggested that the executive committeemen for the general council for the reservations call a council for the purpose of electing delegates for this meeting."

PLAN DEBATE AT ANETA, N. D.

St. Paul Equity Exchange Official and North Dakota Farmer Matched.

Aneta, N. D., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—What promises to be the chief debate held in the North Dakota this year will be staged here July 2 and 3 when George S. Loftus of Minneapolis and Treadwell Twichell of Mapleton, N. D., will discuss the terminal elevator proposition.

George S. Loftus, as manager of the Equity Co-operative exchange of St. Paul, is a strong advocate of the establishment by this state of a terminal elevator in St. Paul and contends it would be of immense benefit to the farmers of this state.

Twichell is a Cass county farmer and was floor leader in the house at the last session. He was formerly speaker of the house and also served in the state senate. At the last session he strongly opposed the terminal elevator plan, contending that North Dakota was not in a financial condition to establish an elevator in another state, that if it was established farmers of other states could use it as freely as those of North Dakota, and that with all the available money at hand an elevator of only $75,000 value could be erected, which would have no appreciable effect in handling the 100,000,000 bushel wheat crop of this state, even if used exclusively by North Dakotans. He also believes the plan unconstitutional.

Loftus Scores Twichell.

Because of his position Twichell was excoriated by Loftus and other Equity Co-operative exchange speakers at Bismarck last winter and frequently since at public meetings in this state.

Knowing the intense interest felt in the movement J. G. Gunderson of this city conceived the idea of arranging a public debate between the two speakers. That it will draw hundreds of people from all over the state, that the fur will fly because both speakers are masters of invective and rather careless about the manner in which they express their opinions of each other, seems a foregone conclusion.

The action by Attorney General Linde to have the Equity Co-operative exchange declared insolvent and its charter canceled will have been submitted before the courts by that time as the hearing will be resumed in Fargo before Judge Pollock June 17.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Blood Risings Begin A Mere Speck

Stop Them From Growing Large and Dangerous.

Nearly everyone who uses S. S. S. for the blood recalls a friend who went through untold suffering as the result of a mere pimple or small blood rising. A host of people did not realize, until too late, what may result from a slight skin abrasion. But they recovered if they used S. S. S., and in almost every village and hamlet, every crossroad and away back off the road is someone who will tell you how S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, restored his health.

It is a most interesting fact that this remarkable vegetable medicine overhauls the blood in a manner that excites curious minds.

But it acts in accordance with accepted physiological laws and yet its effect is almost beyond comprehension to those who are wedded to such drugs as mercury, calomel, arsenic, iodide of potash, copper and other baneful influences which all the world bears silent testimony to their destructive tendencies.

S. S. S. is indeed a nature's tribute to what we need and it is worthy of note that in almost any drug store throughout the country you will find it regularly in stock. Get a bottle today. And if you believe yours is a peculiar case, write to the Medical Adviser of The Swift Specific Co., 106 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Our word for it, he is one of Georgia's appreciated specialists, retired from active practice, but proud of his name and of his recognized ability.

MRS. WILLIAMS' LONG SICKNESS

Yields To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SADIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

HIBBING BALL GAME DRAWS LARGE CROWD

Third of Series of Games With Chisholm Proves Magnet.

Hibbing, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Favorable weather and keen enthusiasm over the third of the series of games between the Hibbing Colts and the Chisholm boys drew a record crowd to the ball park this afternoon. Both teams are on their mettle and spectators are promised some thrilling plays.

About 1,200 witnessed yesterday's game here, which was won by Chisholm, 6 to 2.

Dalgren and Benrud were in the points for the visitors, while Reiger and Edmonds constituted the battery for Hibbing. The feature of the game was a triple play by the visitors in the last half of the fourth. The Booth boys singled, Fautch was hit on the head by a fast one and Withers was sent to the bag in his stead. Williams hit a terrific line drive which Cullis grabbed, threw to third, catching C. Booth. Leighty completed the play by throwing to first doubling Withers. Fautch took his place at short again the next inning, but was forced to retire in the seventh and was taken to his home in an auto by a physician. His condition is not considered serious.

Clifford's Home Run.

On a hit, an error, a sacrifice and a sacrifice fly Chisholm scored one in the fifth. Clifford's home run added another for the visitors in the sixth. Three sacrifices, an error and a hit by Kriz gave Chisholm four more in the seventh. Hibbing's only scores came in the eighth on Edmunds double, C. Booth was hit and D. Booth tripled to left center. Each team made eight hits and one error.

Chisholm defeated Hibbing on the former's ground Saturday, 3 to 2. Morton twirled for Chisholm and was touched up for nine hits. Wilson pitching for Hibbing allowed five hits and struck out six men.

HUSBAND IN THE TRENCHES

Mrs. Catherine Simoulin Says He Fled With Her Savings.

Thinks He Joined Army and Asks Court for Divorce.

A story of how her lover turned traitor, then soldier, is unfolded in divorce proceedings started in district court Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Catherine Simoulin, wife or Armand Simoulin, formerly of this city.

Simoulin's present whereabouts are unknown, although it is supposed that he is following the French tri-color in the great European war. His wife does not know whether he is dead or alive.

Disappointment and bitterness marked Mrs. Simoulin's short matrimonial career, as she relates it in her divorce papers. They were married in this city on St. Patrick's day, 1914, and he deserted her before she was a bride of a month.

According to her version, Simoulin turned out to be "lazy, intemperate and criminal in his tendencies." She declares that not only did he violate his marriage vows by deserting her before they had been married a month, but he also absconded with $400 of her savings.

Mrs. Simoulin says she has reached the conclusion that he married her merely for the purpose of getting what money she had. She asks that the court grant her a legal separation and restored to her her maiden name. She is 37 and he 34.

Mrs. Simoulin states in an affidavit filed in connection with her complaint that she knows nothing concerning the present whereabouts of her husband. Simoulin is a Frenchman and when hostilities broke out in Europe, it was reported to her that he had responded to the call of colors. He is reported to have sailed from New York for France on Dec. 10 last. She has heard nothing from him since.

WAR METHODS ARE DENOUNCED

Pastor Says Sinking of Lusitania Was National Crime.

Declaring that Germany's assault upon Belgium and the sinking of the Lusitania with its cargo of human freight were international crimes, Rev. Charles N. Thorp, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church, denounced her method of carrying on warfare in unmistakable terms. He asserted that, whatever the sacrifice, the United States should show that "erring nation" that "the way of the transgressor is hard."

"War is not wholly lawless," he said. "The leading nations have wrought out at a great cost a system of international law with certain well-established rules governing warfare between civilized peoples. From the very beginning of the present war the German nation has been charged with breaking certain of these great laws and disregarding the rules of the game when it seemed to her advantage so to do.

"Our people have given the Germans the benefit of the doubt; we have been unwilling to believe that a great civilized nation like Germany could, under any conditions, deliberately transgress international law. But that she has adopted a policy of lawlessness on land and sea is now proven by incontestible evidence.

"Her assault upon neutral Belgium was an international crime. The report of the Bryce commission is convincing evidence that the horrors inflicted upon Belgium men, women and children by German soldiers were not only frightful beyond description, but were inflicted by order of military authority. The horror of the Lusitania is no more terrible than these atrocities in Belgium. Both are shown to be part of the German method of warfare. Both transgress the rules of civilized warfare.

"The Germans have definitely arrayed themselves by these deeds against international law, which is the bulwark of civilization. There is but one attitude for the American people to adopt. Had Great Britain been guilty of similar deeds, our government would have sent a similar message to her. Had the United States been guilty of such deeds we should have deserved the censure of all civilized nations. It is for us, for the sake of civilization, for the sake of international right, to back up the noble message of our government. If need be, the German nation should be cut off from commerce with other nations. In every wise way, whatever the sacrifice, the United States should show this erring nation that 'the way of the transgressor is hard.'" ignored the real issue presented by the American note of May 13. As was clearly set forth in that historic document the attitude of the United States is not based upon any one of the series of events cited but upon the principle involved in the method of warfare in which they were incidents. The United States stands today the champion of neutral rights and non-combatant humanity. In the case of Germany versus civilization the United States holds a brief for civilization—and will to the end. Germany must respect the rights of non-combatants traveling upon the high seas.

ANXIOUS FOR PEACE.

New Yorker Herold: The reply of the German government shows conclusively that Germany is most anxious to live at peace with America. That she desires to be shown where she is in the wrong is but natural, and we think fair-minded men will concede that with the vessel being carried on the navy list as an auxiliary cruiser the presumption is strong that German submarine officers thought her armed and ready to offer resistance.

POINTS FOR DISCUSSION.

Chicago Tribune: Even though, as Washington is confident, it can be shown that the Lusitania was not armed with guns or conveying soldiers, Germany has succeeded in raising points which in consideration of the very advanced position taken by our government with respect to arbitration * * * we should find some embarrassment in refusing to discuss and perhaps even referring to The Hague tribunal.

FAILS TO MEET MAIN POINTS.

Chicago Herald: The American people regret that the German government's answer fails wholly to meet the main points at issue, both the specific point of the slaughter of American citizens on the Lusitania and the general point of the "impossibility of employing submarines in the destruction of commerce without disregarding rules of fairness, reason, justice and humanity," the established principles of international law.

RESPONSIBILITY NOT DENIED.

Chicago Staats-Zeitung: The administration cannot honestly dodge the questions raised by Germany. The German government does not deny responsibility for the sinking of the Lusitania * * * but wishes to determine the status of the ship whether or not she was an auxiliary cruiser.

SHIFTY AND INSOLENT.

Chicago Journal: The claim that the Lusitania was an armed vessel is an unmixed insult to the United States which cleared the ship as a merchantman, but the request for an investigation of circumstances already known to the civilized world is as shifty as it is insolent.

WHOLLY UNACCEPTABLE.

St. Paul Pioneer Press, under the caption "Disappointing Attitude of the German Government": The announcement from Washington that the German reply to the demand of the United States is in reality no answer and is wholly unacceptable will meet a responsive echo from one end of the country. There is in the document forwarded from Berlin, aside from the stereotyped expressions of friendship which diplomatic interchanges demand, but one saving clause, and that is that the reply "does not come as a finality." Berlin has said no more than was contained in the first and unsolicited announcement that issued immediately after the Lusitania tragedy. To the chief point to which the demand of President Wilson was directed there is no response. This feature of the German attitude is as astounding as it is disappointing and disheartening. The proposal to reach an agreed state of facts concerning the Lusitania is illusory and fatuous.

QUIBBLE AND EVASION.

Minneapolis Journal: The German note is not a reply to the American note, but a postscript to what Germany's reply should have been. It is many's reply should have been. It is a quibble, an evasion, a petit fogging argument about minor details. Germany finds everyone to blame but herself, yet it was a German torpedo that sent 1,500 innocent non-combatants on the Lusitania to their death. The future course of the United States in view of the German note is for President Wilson to determine. We believe he will act with decision and with the consciousness and dignity of him that hath his quarrel just.

REPLY TO GERMANY TO BE DISCUSSED TUESDAY

United States a peaceful merchantman, and that under all rules of international law and humanity the vessel should have been visited and searched and her passengers transferred to a place of safety, whether she carried ammunition or not. American law does not prohibit ammunition from being carried on a ship, it will be asserted, but only self-exploding material and liners in the past have been permitted to carry guns and ammunition by special ruling of the state department on the meaning of Federal statutes.

Germany's failure even to discuss the reparation demanded by the American note and evasion of the request that guarantees be given that American vessels and lives be not endangered in the future, are the main points, however, which the United States government, it is generally believed tonight, will refer in the second note. The expressions of regret and offers of reparation for unintentional attacks on neutral ships, are said to have little weight in determining the nature of the response of the United States. When he first note was sent, it was pointed out that such promises did not remove the risks to which American vessels and lives are subjected,—and to support this contention, the United States will add, it is said, that the American steamer Nebraskan was torpedoed without warning within the last few days.

Reply Will Be Prompt.

While it is generally thought the United States will answer Germany's request for facts with a re-statement of the circumstances as recited in the American note of May 13, the promptness with which the reply will be dispatched is counted upon to serve as an indication that the American government wishes an early answer and does not desire to engage in a protracted diplomatic discussion.

Persons close to President Wilson have learned that he is determined to obtain reparation for the Lusitania victims, and assurances of respect for American rights in the future, and, failing in this, he would not hesitate to sever diplomatic relations with Germany.

In German quarters here, it was again reiterated that the Lusitania was armed.

To controvert this, the United States has proof, gathered before the American note was sent, that there were no guns abard. Furthermore, the British government entered into an informal agreement with the United States early in the war, to see that no British vessels left American ports armed.

THREE IN SEARCH OF ADVENTURE

Frantic Mothers Recover Their Children After "Parade" Is Over.

Lured by the prospect of seeing bands, uniforms, prancing horses and many flags, Master Robert McMartin, aged 8, went out in search of adventure bright and early this morning.

Master Albert Peterson, aged 7, similarly lured, decided to elope with the young lady of his heart, who lived next door to his house, 2018 West Fourth street.

Master McMartin made his way from 5421 Glenwood street to the center of the city in time to see the "prade," and near him, as he stood on a curbstone and waved his chubby arm, was Master Peterson and his little "fiancee."

When the horses and automobiles and bands and soldiers 'n everything were gone, the three wanderers began to think about "somepin" to eat.

They were found by policemen and brought to headquarters, being returned to frantic mothers soon afterwards.

ACTION DISMISSED.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 31.—Circuit Judge William J. Turner, in a lengthy ruling Saturday, dismissed the action of Gen. Samuel Pearson in which he sought to restrain the Allis-Chalmers company, Otto H. Falk and others from manufacturing shrapnel shells, which, it was alleged, were being supplied to the allies.

FLAX ACREAGE KNOWN SOON

Next Government Report Likely to Give Definite Information.

In Meantime Market Sags for Lack of Interest.

Last week the flax market closed with the extreme of inactivity, and this condition was prevalent for several days, the market sagging down with its own weight. Activity earlier in the week caused by some little demand by crushers to cover small requirements stopped short when those needs were filled, and the dealers are waiting for more definite information as to the probable new crop.

The next government crop report is due on June 8, and until then, at least, not much in activity either way is looked for. The season for sowing the seed is up now, and the next report should show pretty definitely about what the comparative acreage is that will be devoted to flax this year. That it is very short as compared to former years is, of course, well known, but the extent of the shortage is the question.

With that out of the way, the market will thereafter be concerned mostly with reports of progress of the crop and with war conditions.

AMERICAN MARKETS ARE ALL CLOSED

Break Feared Tuesday on Account of Situation With Germany.

This being Decoration day, all the American grain and stock exchanges are closed.

Marked unsettlement in market circles is predicted tomorrow on account of Germany's reply to President Wilson's note over the Lusitania incident being generally regarded as unsatisfactory. It is believed though that the leading bankers and brokerage interests will take measures to guard against any severe break in quotations.

Heavy selling developed in grain at Winnipeg today. May wheat sold off 5⅞c to $1.43⅛ and July 3½c to $1.43½. October was steady, easing up to the extent of ⅝c to $1.19¾.

May flax declined 1¾c to $1.71, July 5½c to $1.68 and September 6¼c to $1.70¾.

May oats broke ⅞c to 61⅜c and July ⅝c to 62⅝c.

EMPLOYES ARE ON THE INCREASE

Eastern Industrial Centers Show Distinct Improvement Right Along.

Reassuring news is coming from the various Eastern industrial centers. It is agred by authorities that the ratio of employment is steadily on the ascendant, and that the improvement promises to be more marked as the harvest season approaches.

An interesting resume of trade conditions at the leading centers published by a New York paper, follows:

"A Chicago official of the International Harvester company is quoted as saying that plants throughout Europe have been closed at the beginning of the war and there is no busines there. Additional men are being put on as demands warrant it. Plants are running with 30,000 men or about two-thirds of the maximum force. Six months ago about 25,000 were employed.

"Judge E. H. Gary of the United States Steel corporation is quoted as saying:

"'March, 1915, final figures are not yet available. We estimate the number of employes would be about 3 per cent above February, 1915, and the total payroll about 10 per cent above. March having more working days than February, makes a relatively greater increase in total payroll than in number of employes. On the basis of this estimate March would show:

	Employes.	Total Payroll.
March, 1915 (estimated)	161,000	$12,550,000
March, 1914 (actual)	207,333	16,076,941

"Steel corporation mills at Joliet, South Chicago and Gary are running with a force of about 75 per cent of maximum compared with 45 per cent a year ago. In the plants of the Steel corporation, in and around Pittsburgh, 21,340 men were employed in April, compared with 22,889 in April, 1914.

"The General Electric company in the five factories located at Schenectady, Lynn, Pittsfield, Erie and Harrison is employing 30,000 men, with a weekly payroll of $440,000. Six months ago they employed 30,400 and the weekly payroll was $400,000. A year ago they employed 36,400 and the weekly payroll was $523,000.

"The Studebaker corporation, at its South Bend plants in March, employed 3,329 men, compared with 3,768 men a year ago. The number is now 4,000. The Detroit plants employed 4,725 men in March, compared with 6,791 in March, 1914. The company is rushing work on a war order of 60,000 sets of six-horse harness, a portion of which has been sublet. A large order of artillery wheels is in process of completion and work is being rushed on an order for motor ambulance bodies.

"The Baldwin Locomotive company is now employing 5,045, compared with 3,970 in October last year and 7,950 in April, 1914.

"Regarding Detroit automobile manufacturers: The Cadillac Motor Car company is now employing 3,000; the Chalmers company has increased its payroll 97 per cent since December; the Federal Motor Truck company has increased its force 75 per cent since December; the Packard has increased its payrolls 25 per cent; the Ford Motor company is employing 17,000, against 10,000 last December; Dodge Brothers had 1,600 employes last July and now have 8,000."

TRADERS WAIT FOR WAR NEWS

Operations in the Stock Markets on Smaller Scale.

Operations in the stock markets were in smaller proportion last week and operations were upon a more orderly scale, with, however, weakness apparent in what are known as the "war stocks," such as Bethlehem Steel, American Locomotive, etc.

Commenting upon the situation, Finley, Barrell & Co.'s weekly review to C. E. Lewis & Co. says:

"At no time this week has the stock market attained large proportions, traders and investors preferring to wait until something definite is known as to the nature of the German reply to the American note of protest. Average price of the four active leaders tonight is almost precisely what it was a week ago. Information which we believe to be the best obtainable, and upon which we thoroughly rely, is to the effect that Germany contemplates making no concession whatever in its first paper. At the same time we anticipate a favorable final outcome of the controversy. Assuming that the first message from Berlin in the controversy is susceptible of unfavorable construction, the action of prices will depend largely on the technical position of the market. If too many people anticipate a break and commit themselves accordingly, the decline on favorable reply will be slight. If too many people become optimistic, and a considerable long account develops, there will be a material drop in values. On Wednesday the markets in this country were pretty generally convinced by the nature of the available reports that the American steamship Nebraskan, sailing for home, had been deliberately torpedoed by a submarine and that such an act vitally constituted the German reply to our protest. Stocks declined but 1½ points and showed pretty conclusively that liquidation of the market at the time news was received was quite complete. In addition to large orders from firms making munitions of war for European mills, they have booked sizeable foreign government orders direct and many large inquiries are in the market, while our railroads are buying a little more liberally.

"Copper metal is in a very strong position. Prosperity among metal properties was attested by increases in Utah, Chino and Nevada copper dividends; resumption of Ray Consolidated payments and a large extra dividend on Butte & Superior. Railroad earnings for April reported this week generally show gross decreases, notable exceptions being Western Maryland and Atchison, but in most cases economies largely offset or more than offset the loss in receipts. With crops promising well and a large foreign business assured, railroads should do much better in the coming fiscal year than in the present one."

FIVE GLASSES TOO MUCH.

"Moderate" Drinker Draws Suspended Sentence; Pal Thirty Days.

"I plead guilty to drinking five glasses of beer, your honor," said Matt Willman, age 35, when Municipal Judge F. H. Cutting asked him if he had been intoxicated.

Torn clothes, a muddy face, concealed in bandages, worn by Willman, convinced the court that the five glasses were enough in his case.

Charles Laine, age 32, with Willman, was charged with having thrown the sixth glass at Willman's head. He was sentenced to thirty days at the workfarm, while Willman's sentence was suspended. Both men were arrested at 332 Lake avenue south Saturday night by Officer David Olson.

JITNEYS BOOST TIRE DEMAND.

James Brooks Faces Charge of Stealing Rubber Goods.

"In these days of jitneys, automobile tires are worth their weight in gold," is the belief of James Brooks, alias John Smith, according to the police.

Brooks faced a charge of third degree burglary in municipal court this morning, waived examination, and was bound over to await the action of the September grand jury.

Early Sunday the East End Tire company, 509 East Superior street, reported that their shop had been burglarized and a tire and two robes taken.

An hour or so later the Mutual Auto company telephoned headquarters, stating that there was a man there trying to sell them an auto tire. Officer P. Barber made a quick trip to the garage and caught Brooks as he was expounding the virtues of his tire. Police claimed that one of the robes was pawned in a shop on West Michigan street.

"MIXED" WITH OFFICER.

Cop Gets Assistance and Joe Gaidis Draws $15 Fine.

Insisting that his friend, Peter Walovich, age 36, was not intoxicated and that he "would take him home all right," Joe Gaidis, age 31, finally "mixed" in a rough and tumble fight with Officer Noreen last night.

A crowd of about 300 persons gathered at the corner of Twenty-seventh avenue west and Superior street to watch the struggle and the two men were subdued and placed under arrest until a hurry call for the emergency brought Officers P. Barber and Wanvick to Officer Noreen's assistance.

Officer Noreen, who is mounted, was riding along Superior street, when he noticed that Walovich was creating a disturbance, and left his horse to arrest him. Gaidis interfered and the fight started.

In municipal court this morning Walovich paid a $7 fine for being drunk and disorderly, and Gaidis paid a $15 fine for interfering with an officer.

"GUEST" WAS ARRESTED.

Police and Assistant City Attorney Get Wires Crossed.

To be invited to spend the night at police headquarters, the "guest" of the third assistant city attorney, and then to be jailed as a "vag" was the experience of Anton Yonkoski, aged 71.

"What in the world did you do with my man?" asked Attorney Walter Gonska this morning.

It developed that "his man" was Yonkoski, and that he had spent the night in jail.

"I told him to come down here and sleep," said Mr. Gonska, "because his wife wouldn't let him stay at home. He has been doing some work for us."

Officer Peter Barber arrested Yonkoski because "he was hanging around too much," but the mistake was explained when the assistant city attorney appeared, and Mr. Gonska's "guest" was allowed to go free.

NEW OFFICER APPOINTED.

G. A. Henry Succeeds Victor Fagerburg as Member of Police.

Commissioner Silberstein of the public safety division has ratified the appointment of G. A. Henry to the police force, in place of Patrolman Victor Fagerberg, suspended for drunkenness Saturday.

Chief of Police R. D. McKercher announced this morning that the new officer would go on duty June 1. He has not been assigned to a beat, and other men probably will be transferred to fill the vacancy left in the West end force by Officer Fagerberg's dismissal.

The new officer was given a high standing in the last civil service tests. He lives at 426 Sixth avenue east.

ONE SENTENCE CAUSED WAR

"All Men Born Free and Equal" Brought on Conflict.

"One of the causes of the Civil war was a little clause inserted in the Constitution by its framers which said 'That all men are born free and equal,'" said Dr. N. L. Upham last night in a patriotic address given at the Westminster Presbyterian church, Fifty-eighth avenue west and Ramsey street. "This clause probably more than any other brought on the greatest conflict this country ever experienced."

Dr. Upham spoke of the duty of a chaplain in the army. To them the men looked for their spiritual advice and in time of strife and trouble he said men turn to God for assistance.

National pride and honor, said the speaker, often cannot be maintained without resorting to the force of arms. All great advancement made by mankind from the time man first lost out in his stewardship in the Garden of Eden, he said had been made through battles. "In all battles the warriors have prayed that God be on their side and hope that they are on God's side in the conflict."

Expensive Bumps.

Two bumps at $20 each and one bump at $10 were experienced by Einer Graning of Proctor yesterday afternoon, according to a story he told the police. He had $50 in gold in three pieces and these he said he had lost while riding on Grand avenue between Seventy-first avenue west and Twenty-fourth avenue.

He said the money belonged to his mother. He told the police he believed the money had been jolted out of his pocket while riding along the street and asked their assistance in finding it.

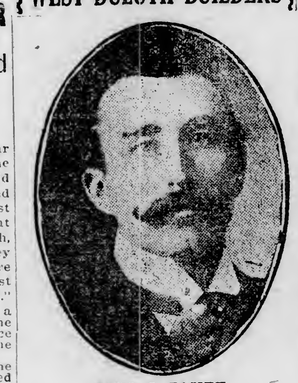
WEST DULUTH BUILDERS



EMIL J. ZAUFT.

All West Duluth needs is a start on paving of the residential streets and every section will want the improvement, according to Emil J. Zauft, one of West Duluth's progressive builders. Mr. Zauft's idea is to begin on one of the streets with a concrete paving and it will be but a short time before the community will have one of the best systems of paved streets in Duluth.

Mr. Zauft has been one of the West Duluth Commercial club's most active members. He has resided in this end of the city for nearly twenty years. As a builder he has erected a number of the handsome homes in this end of the city.

BOY KILLED BY EXPRESS TRAIN

Foot Caught in Switch; Engineer Unable to Stop in Time.

Harry Larson, age 6, son of Louis Larson, a farmer living at Rockmont, was crushed beneath the wheels of the Omaha Twin City limited at 2:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the approach to the railroad company's bridge over the Amnicon river. The boy had his foot caught in a "frog" and despite of the efforts of his two brothers, Carl, age 8, and Norman, age 10, he was unable to get the foot loose.

The boys had been fishing and were on their return home. They had intended to walk across the bridge over the river when the whistle of the train attracted their attention. The boys turned to go back and as they reached the approach Harry got his foot caught.

The passenger was going at a high rate of speed and the boy's predicament was not noticed by the engineer until rounding the curve. Efforts to stop the train before running over the child were futile. The body was horribly crushed and dragged for several feet along the tracks.

Charles Hattery of Duluth was engineer and Herbert Moore, conductor of the train. The train came to a stop within twenty-five feet after passing over the body.

Ends Life With Musket.

Placing the muzzle against his breast and by the means of a strap pulling the trigger with his toes, Albert Sanders, age 65, 3312 Belknap street, fired a charge of shot from an old musket and ended his life at his home yesterday afternoon. Despondency because of prolonged illness was the cause of the suicide. No members of the family were home when the shooting took place. Sanders has been ill for six years. He leaves a widow and nine children.

"A few minutes ago, two young women swept into this place and demanded to look at our directory. I showed them where to find it. In a few minutes I heard one of them say:

"'Why, her name isn't in this directory. Did you ever hear the like?'

"Then the ladies approached me, haughtily.

"'Can you tell us if there is a first-class drug store in this vicinity?' asked the spokeswoman. 'We wish to consult their directory.'"
